Bosox Whip Yankees, 4-1, To Tie for League Lead

Parnell Wins 25th, Williams Hits 43d; Byrne Faces Kramer Or McDermott Today

CARDS WIN, DODGERS LOSE

The St. Louis Cardinals increased their lead in the National League to 1½ games yesterday by defeating the Chicago Cubs, 6-1, while the second-place Brooklyn Dodgers were losing to the Philadelphia Phils, 5-3. (Details Page 11.)

Boston, Sept. 25.—Five long, bitter months under the heel of the New York Yankees came to an end for the Red Sox today. Before 35,517 lusty-yelling Fenway Park supporters, the Boston club bracketed itself in a tie for the American League lead with a 4-1 victory over the Yanks, that was sweet to the feel.

They bore down on the Yankees with the ninth straight of their current winning streak in their drive for those World Series checks, with a hero trio of Mel Parnell, Ted Williams and Johnny Pesky leading the charge.

Parnell threw a magnificent four-hitter at the Yankees. Williams took all the pressure off with a two-run homer in the seventh that was the crusher. Little Pesky got them their first two runs with a single in the second, off Allie Reynolds.

When the Yankees threatened in the second to break loose from the spell of Parnell, the Red Sox battered them down afield, with three precise and death-dealing double plays of the kind with which former, and better, Yankee teams used to de-fang the opposition.

Bosox 21st in Row at Home

And tonight they were exactly even in the league standings, the Yankees bereft of any margin for the first time since April 17. To achieve that status, the rampant Red Sox today annexed their twenty-first consecutive victory on their home grounds.

The two teams are moving into New York for another head-to-head clash tomorrow in Yankee Stadium, with only six games remaining for each, on the season's schedule. Hard-pressed Casey Stengel, Yankee manager, has his erstwhile ailing southpaw Tommy Byrne, ready to shoot at the Red Sox in that one.

Tropical Storm Hovers Off Coast Below Tampico

Tampico, Mexico, Sept. 25. (AP)—A tropical hurricane with winds estimated at from 90 to 100 miles an hour howered off the Mexican Gulf coast southeast of here tonight.

Mexican navy weather observers reported the storm had remained stationary during the last six hours.

"Little movement is expected in the next few hours," the navy said. It estimated the center of the hurricane at about 100 miles southeast of here.

Martial law was declared here and troops and police were alerted. They evacuated low-lying portions of the city in anticipation of abnormally high tides that might flood the water front districts.

Brannan Bill's Defeat Is Seen By Anderson

By David McConnell
NYHT News Service

President Truman last night was put on notice by his former Secretary of Agriculture that the Administration-sponsored Brannan farm program will be rejected in the Senate in favor of an amended version of the 1948 Republican-passed agricultural bill.

Senator Anderson (D., N. Mex.), for three years Mr. Truman's Agriculture Secretary, predicted that Congress would enact a new long-range farm program along lines drafted by the Senate Agriculture Committee. The Senate measure, which Senator Anderson sponsored, revises the 1948 farm bill by providing for a sliding scale of 75 to 90 per cent price supports for basic crops.

The wide split between the Administration and Democratic members of the congressional farm bloc over agricultural legislation was emphasized by Anderson when he asserted that "I am very free to admit" the Senate bill is not what the President wants.

In a broadcast over radio stations of the Gannett newspapers, Anderson said he opposed the Administration-supported plan advanced by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan. The Brannan suggestion provides for direct subsidies to farmers if prices fall.

Asserting that farm legislation should be nonpartisan, Anderson

Union Official Is Pessimistic On Steel Talks

Pittsburgh, Sept. 25 (AP).—A high official of the CIO United Steel Workers Union today said there was "little chance" that negotiations opening Monday would head off a Nation-wide steel strike.

James J. Thimmes of Pittsburgh, international vice president of the union, made the statement in Terre Haute, Ind., at a meeting of local officers of District 30.

The last-ditch negotiations will be held in the workshop of the world which already has been hard hit by a strike of 400,000 United Mine Workers. They begin the sec-

Shift of Wind Saves Town From Fire Destruction

Carson City, Nev., Sept. 25 (AP). A fortuitous shift of the wind early today saved Virginia City from possible destruction by fire.

Firefighters checked the menace on the very doorsteps of the town of 1500. One abandoned, four-room, ranch house near the town was destroyed and flames came within 50 feet of the Eagle Valley home for mentally handicapped children.

Then the wind shifted—and later died—and firefighters quickly ended further threat to the town.

Blonde Waitress in Quebec

3d Woman Linked to Jeweler Held in Air Crash Killing 23

Quebec City, Sept. 25 (U.P.)—Police tonight disclosed that two more arrests are expected within 48 hours in the case of the jeweler accused of killing his wife and 22 others by planting a time-bomb on an airliner.

At the same time, it was revealed that the suspect, J. Albert Guay, 31, lived a dual love-life last summer in a Laurentian Mountain town whose residents frowned on his extracurricular romances.

During the day, two plane loads of airlines investigators and Provincial and Royal Mounted Police flew to Seven Islands, Quebec, to delve deeper into the tangled love life of the jeweler.

Meanwhile, police cabled Scotland Yard in London to learn if any of the persons involved ever had lived in England.

The investigators learned that in Seven Islands, Guay had lived alternately with his wife and a blonde known as "Nicole." Police believed Nicole was a Quebec City waitress named Marie-Ange Robitaille, because she had asked the postmaster there to give her all mail addressed to Miss Robitaille.

Townsfolk reported the jeweler lived with Nicole for six weeks during June and July and then in August brought his plump brunette wife, Rita, to Seven Islands.

Eustache Pelletier, who knew Guay and Nicole last summer, said Guay took capsules containing a yellowish-white powder quite often.

Guay yesterday was charged with the murder of his wife and jailed pending a preliminary hearing October 4.

Police charged he masterminded the bombing plot to get rid of his wife and collect the $10,000 insurance on her life.

Neely Backs Suffrage Amendment

Will Introduce Constitution Change To Permit District 'Hill' Representation

Senator Matthew N. Neely (D., W. Va.) said yesterday he would introduce a Senate joint resolution this week proposing a constitutional amendment to enable the District to elect Senators and Representatives to Congress.

Sounding a ringing call to battle to District citizenry, "shipwrecked on a voiceless, voteless island in the midst of the greatest ocean of democracy in the world," the chairman of the Senate District Committee and "Mayor" of Washington declared:

"I don't believe the District can be half democratic and half autocratic."

The fiery lawmaker, addressing the District Democratic Club, lashed out at "the resistance of reactionary members of Congress" to home rule and at "the little group of willful men," residents of the District itself, who he said were trying to "thwart the will of the majority."

"Casting Out Devils"

Neely said he was spending the Sabbath in a way authorized by the Bible: "casting out devils."

Chief among the District demons he would like to expel, he asserted, was the "apathy" he said he had found among some District citizens on the matter of home rule.

"I've never known a time when there was a single mass meeting held in front of the Capitol," the 74-year-old veteran of politics averred. "Don't tell anyone I said so—they'll say I'm trying to start a revolution.

"But if I lived here and knew my children could never vote, never so much as choose a magistrate or constable, much less a President of the United States, I would do something if I had to hire a band and go up and parade in front of the Capitol."

Might Change Some Minds

Such action, he intimated, might serve to change the minds of those "people on the Hill who don't believe anything like 51 percent of the people here want to vote."

He offered "my sincere congratulations to those who intend to do something about the District's unhappy situation" and "my pity to those who are content to believe and proclaim that we should let what they call 'well enough' alone."

Further stressing the justification for his proposed constitutional amendment to permit District citizens to elect their own Senators and Representatives, he said there were nine States with smaller populations than here.

A resolution calling for the amendment was also adopted by the District Democratic Club at the meeting, held at the quarters of the Woman's National Democratic Club, 1526 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Easier Taxes On Foreign Profit Asked

Administration Seeks Change to Stimulate 'Point 4' Investing Of American Money

By The Associated Press

State Department officials said yesterday the Administration will ask Congress to "liberalize" tax laws on incomes earned in foreign countries to stimulate private investment abroad.

A five-point program for that purpose has been prepared by the Administration.

It is part of Mr. Truman's "Point Four" plan for building up underdeveloped areas in Latin America, Africa and Asia in order to raise living standards and promote general trade and economic prosperity.

Officials said that the President wants action at this session of Congress on basic legislation which he proposed last June.

Guarantees to Be Asked

Along with a request for an appropriation of 45 million dollars to finance technical assistance to underdeveloped countries, the Chief Executive also asked authority for the United States Export-Import Bank to guarantee private investments abroad against certain risks.

State Department officials expressed belief that the guarantees and the technical assistance program would themselves make foreign investment more attractive.

However, in order to obtain maximum stimulation of capital outflow they are also prepared to advocate the tax law changes.

Changes Proposed

1. Easing of the limitations now imposed on the credit against United States tax liability which is allowed for taxes paid to foreign countries. The limitations are designed to prevent taxes abroad from reducing the Federal tax yield on income received from sources in the United States. Officials said that to stimulate foreign investments greater credits should be allowed in cases where some foreign activities result in net profits and others in net losses.

2. Permission for an American corporation which holds less than majority control of a foreign corporation to receive credit for taxes paid by the foreign corporation. At present the credit is allowed only when the American corporation holds majority control of the foreign corporation.

3. Broadening of provisions which exempt from income-tax payments U. S. citizens living abroad. A citizen must now be out of the country for the entire taxable year as a bona fide resident of a foreign country before his earned income is exempted.

4. Provision to allow credit for foreign death duties paid on property owned by U. S. citizens in foreign countries. The present Federal estate tax makes no such allowance.

5. Permission for domestic corporations to treat income from their branches and agencies abroad in the same manner that income from foreign subsidiaries is now treated. Income from subsidiaries is not taxed until it is sent to the United States, but the same rule does not presently apply to the income derived from branches and agencies of domestic corporations.

After Police Horn In

Cow With Downturned Horns Helps Solve Hornswoggling

When the Laurel (Md.) farmer took another look at the horns of his recently purchased cow, he realized he'd been hornswoggled.

The horns, unlike the common or garden variety, turned downward and the wife of the farmer, Harry C. Barton, Sandy Spring Road, near Laurel, remembered reading that such a cow had been stolen from Nedill S. Torbert, a maintenance man for the City of Greenbelt, on September 8.

Furthermore, the cow obviously was homesick, observed the farmer's wife, since the cow's milk output dropped from the usual 4½ gallons to 2½ gallons.

Well, anyway, Barton called Torbert, who went to the farm and —yes, sir—there was Bossy. Barton said he bought the cow from a Baltimore County cattle dealer, Clarence W. Meekins, of Woodlawn.

Police contacted Meekins, who said he bought the cow and a bull from Edward William Bromwell, 38, a painter and auto mechanic of Waterloo, Howard County, Md.

Meekins refunded the $160 Barton paid for cow and helped police trace several other cattle he purchased from Bromwell and sold to other farmers. Among these were a 1000-pound Holstein bull and a calf, both taken from Montgomery County farms.

Browwell at first denied he was the rustler, but when Prince Georges County Detective Richard A. Pearson confronted him with casts made of his truck tires matching those of the rustling truck, he confessed, police said.

Later, two other cows were located through the efforts of Meekins, police said. These also had been taken in Montgomery County.

In explaining it all to Pearson, Bromwell sadly declared, "If it wasn't for drinking I wouldn't have taken a single cow." He said he has seven children and that stomach ulcers had interfered with his earning a living for his large family.

He was charged with larceny of a cow and a hearing was set for today in Hyattsville Police Court after he failed to make $1000 bond.

The International Refugee Organization announced yesterday that 892 new European refugees will arrive in New York City today aboard the steamship General Haan.

They will bring to 82,207 the number of displaced persons to enter the United States under current legislation. Most of the new arrivals will be located in New York State.

'Date Pulled from Hat'

Dr. Urey Labels As a Bluff Reds' Claim of A-Secret in '47

Chicago, Sept. 25 (U.P.) — Dr Harold C. Urey, atomic pioneer said today Russia's announcement it had the atom bomb secret in 1947 was "a bluff—a date pulled from a hat."

Urey, Nobel Prize winner who helped develop America's atom bomb, said he distrusted any statement coming from Russia, but believed the United States announcement of an atomic explosion in Russia.

He said Russia cannot set a date for discovering the "secret" of the bomb.

"The United States doesn't know when it had the secret," he said. "We just continued over a four-year span to learn about the atom bomb."

However, Dr. Samuel Allison, director of the Institute of Nuclear Studies at the University of Chicago, said scientists never doubted Russia had the bomb secret "in 1947 or even in 1945."

Allison said it takes four years from finding the "secret" to developing a bomb. If Russia had the secret in 1947 and exploded a bomb in "recent weeks," he said, then Russia apparently moved faster than the United States.

Urey and other University of Chicago professors appeared on a round-table radio program to discuss the impact on Europe of Russia's possession of the bomb.

They believed the weight of the knowledge would stagger Europe and may crush her "psychologically."

In this connection, Dr. Leo Zsilard, professor of biophysics, said Russia's strategy needed fewer bombs than the United States and that its position was stronger now that it has possession.

"Russia needs fewer bombs because she can threatened destruction with them, which could be used to undermine alliances between Western nations," Szilard explained, and now with the bomb "Russia will have Europe at its mercy."

U. S. Ship Sails Foreigners Out Of Shanghai

1219 Heading South In First Large-Scale Exodus From Reds

Aboard the U. S. S. Gen. W. H. Gordon, Sept. 25 (AP).—This American President liner sailed from the Nationalist-blockaded port of Shanghai today with 1219 foreigners.

It is the first large-scale exodus of foreigners from Communist China. The General Gordon now is heading south off the China coast toward Hongkong.

So far the liner has encountered neither Nationalist naval units nor aircraft which are enforcing the blockade. The ship has been granted safe conduct by both the Nationalists and the Communists.

After weeks of struggling with Communist red tape to obtain exit visas, the foreigners were cleared through customs quickly.

Shanghai reported, however, that Chinese labor delegations prevented a handful of passengers from sailing. One of these was Donald King, head of the Northwest Airlines. King's exit permit was canceled at the gangplank after a delegation of 18 Chinese workers complained to authorities the successor King left to head the office was unacceptable.

Communist officials seized a camera of a Chinese photographer employed by the Associated Press who tried to take pictures yesterday of the departure preparations.

Cain Puts Off Decision on Race Against Magnuson

By the United Press

Friends of Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) said yesterday he probably won't decide for a month whether to resign his present Senate term to oppose Senator Warren Magnuson (D., Wash.) for reelection next year.

Cain's present term still has three years to run. But he has been urged to resign and run against Magnuson. It would be unprecedented in Senate history.

Arthur Burgess, administrative assistant to Cain, said the Senator is giving the idea "serious consideration" but hasn't decided yet.

"He probably won't decide for a month," Burgess added.

Red Rocket Bases Ring West Europe

Bomb Sites Aided By Radar, U. S. Sources Disclose

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Russia has virtually ringed western Europe with super-secret V-2 rocket launching bases, Allied and German sources said tonight.

The sources said the V-weapon bases were aimed at strategic points in western Europe from the English Channel to the Adriatic.

The report, coupled with Russia's newly-disclosed atomic know-how, raised the possibility of missiles with atomic warheads blanketing western Europe in event of an East-West war.

Allies Confirm Reports

Anglo-American intelligence sources said they had confirmed reports, brought out of Russia recently by an escaping German expert, that the Soviet were building an elaborate network of V-bomb launching sites around the perimeter of western Europe.

Evidence indicated the bomb sites were supported with radar installations necessary to keep guided missiles on their course.

The German expert, who was shipped to Russia with other German technicians in 1946, recently escaped to the west.

He said that when he fled Russia, five single-battery bases had been completed in eastern Germany and Czechoslovakia and that six three-battery bases were being constructed.

Quick Action Planned

The expert said that according to his Russian overseers several Soviet commissions were working on projects to bring the launching sites into action on a few minutes notice.

"Each already is supplied with ballistic computations and firing orders to blanket a fixed target area in west Europe," he said.

Locations of the finished bases were listed as follows:

1. Between Neustrelitz and Penzlin, in Mecklenburg, Germany —aimed at southern Sweden.

2. Between Anklam and Wolgast, in Mecklenburg—aimed also at southern Sweden.

3. South of Erfurt, in Thuringia, Germany—aimed at Rhine river crossings and bridgeheads

Stratocruiser Makes Record Tokyo Flight

Tokyo, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—A commercial descendant of the B-29 bomber which blasted Japan four years ago flew into an amazingly reconstructed Tokyo today with a new trans-Pacific passenger record.

The Pan-American Stratocruiser landed at Haneda airport at 2 p. m. (Tokyo Time) in 24 hours and 36 minutes of flying time from San Francisco on a preinaugural flight for a new service scheduled to start next month. The current schedule is 34 hours.

Because of Red Power

Taft Wants U. S. Friendship With Spain to Be Expanded

By The Associated Press

A speedy return to friendly relations with Spain was urged yesterday by Senator Taft (R., Ohio) as a step toward strengthening North Atlantic defenses against a possible Soviet attack.

Taft, who heads the Senate Republican policy committee, said he thinks Spain ought to be invited into the community of nations prepared to fight any advances of Communism.

"There is great strategic value in having the friendship of Spain," the Ohio Senator said. "She is in a key military position so far as Europe is concerned. There is no reason why we shouldn't recognize her fully in a diplomatic way and send an ambassador to Madrid."

The Spanish question may get a new airing when Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) returns from a European trip, in the course of which he planned to see Premier Franco.

The State Department terms Franco's regime fascist and a dictatorship which bars human rights. It is guided by a 1946 United Nations resolution under which this country and most Western democracies refuse to send ambassadors to Spain. Relations are maintained on a lower diplomatic level.

Taft said he isn't proposing that any military aid be advanced to Spain.

In fact, he contended that the foreign arms assistance slated for North Atlantic treaty nations under a pending bill passed by the Senate last week may be largely wasted because of Russia's development of atomic weapons.

While Spain would be as vulnerable to atomic attack as other European nations, Taft said it would provide additional bases from which to launch counterattacks by air as well as areas in which American troops could be landed.

McMahon Says Reds Repeating Phony Offer

Official Declares Next Step Now Up to Russians; Propaganda Seen

By the United Press

United States diplomatic officials yesterday received Russia's new call for international atomic controls with interest, but skepticism.

Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.), of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee also took a dim view of the Soviet move.

"They are repeating the same phony offer they made for the last three years," he said. "It (the Russian control plan) would be as good as the 30 treaties they have already broken."

State Department quarters fervently hope Russia really means business, now that both sides in the Cold War apparently are armed with atomic weapons.

But they said it will take deeds instead of words to convince them the Kremlin finally has changed its long and stubborn opposition to veto-proof United Nation curbs on atomic armaments.

Claim Pooh-Poohed

The Russian assertion that atomic controls are now "essential" was made in a statement by the Soviet News Agency, Tass, which also said Russia had an atomic bomb "at its disposal" by November, 1947.

Atomic authorities here were strongly inclined to pooh-pooh the latter claim. They pointed out that the Russians could never have been sure they had developed a successful atomic bomb without testing it.

And if they had exploded one, this country almost certainly would have known about it, just as it knew about the atomic explosion in Russia "within recent weeks," which President Truman disclosed Friday.

McMahon said he doesn't believe the Russians had a successful atomic bomb until recently.

"It would be convenient for them to have the world believe that they have a large stockpile by now," he pointed out.

"The Russians probably knew in 1947 that they could build an atomic bomb, but it is my belief that that they did not achieve a 'working bomb' until a few weeks ago."

One informed source said U. S. officials are taking the Russian claim of a 1947 bomb as "almost certain propaganda" and the call for international controls as "probably more of the same."

On Alert for Real Signs

One qualified official said no new U. S. move is planned to seek Russian agreement on an effective control plan.

"The next step is up to them," he said.

He quickly added, however, that

Cominform Does Not Exist, Tito Red Declares

London, Sept. 25 (AP).—A leading Yugoslav Communist claimed today the Communist International Information Bureau (Cominform) "does not exist any more."

Moshe Pijade, a member of the Yugoslav Communist politburo, made the claim in the party newspaper Borba.

Pijade wrote that the Russian-led Cominform was not known to have met since June, 1948, when it kicked out Yugoslav Premier Marshal Tito's party on the grounds of un-Marxist nationalism.

Pijade said only two meetings of the Cominform had been publicized—the June meeting in Romania and an organization meeting the previous September.

"The world has never been informed of any other informbureau (Cominform) meeting," wrote Pijade. "In fact, it does not exist any more. The only thing surviving from it is its organ, the dirtiest journalistic rag which has ever soiled the international working class movement."

U.S. 'Laxity' Aided Reds, Velde Alleges

U.S. Brass 'Hit'

500 Planes In British Air Games

London, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—A combined force of 500 American, British, Dutch, French and Belgian bombers and jet fighters maneuvered over Britain today in giant air games.

Russia's disclosure of its possession of the atom bomb gave a note of urgency to the maneuvers in which some 10,000 British anti-aircraft gunners and civilian plane spotters were taking part. Every radar station in Britain was manned.

All night RAF bombers droned over important cities in England and Scotland trying to sneak through radar screens. At dawn, B-50 bombers from the U. S. Air Force's British-based Third Air Division took up the attacks. British jets streaked in, simulating surprise jet bomber assaults.

Jet interceptors were sent up with orders to "shoot them down—don't let a single plane get by."

Exercise "Bulldog," as the maneuvers are called, was planned as a realistic preview of a lightning air attack on Britain.

Maj. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, commander in chief of the United States Air Force's Third Division, and Air Marshal Sir Aubrey Ellwood, chief of the RAF bomber command, were "shot down" today in the mock warfare.

Their plane, a B-50 bomber piloted by Capt. James H. Morris, who flew the "Lucky Lady" nonstop around the world, was part of an American formation of 10 B-50s that "attacked" Oxford

The B-50s were just over Oxford when four meteor jet fighters closed in, concentrating on the lead plane, carrying Johnson and Ellwood.

Weakness and laxity in the Government, he said, let "a number" of Russian agents escape from the country with information on the atomic bomb and other scientific developments.

"It is evidence," he said, "that the executive branch has no intention of taking any corrective steps that will expose its past mistakes. Plainly, Congress must act unless we want to welcome a second Pearl Harbor with open arms."

In his broadcast, Senator O'Conor repeated official estimates that the number of aliens illegally in America may run up to 5 million. (He didn't say so, but that means that one of every 30 people in this country might be an illegal alien.)

The Senator said that aliens seeking admission as representatives of foreign governments and international organizations like the United Nations aren't even required to tell this Government whether they are Reds.

He got the information as acting chairman of an immigration subcommittee.

British Physicist Believes Tass' Claim on Secret

London, Sept. 25 (AP).—British research physicist A. M. Low today said he believes the claim of the Soviet news agency, Tass, that Russia had the secret of the atom bomb as early as 1947.

"Though there a great many secrets about the production of atomic energy," he said, "there is no secret about its basic principles."

Low, president of the British Institute of Engineering Technology, told reporters Russia has the raw materials necessary for production of atomic energy and the labor and skill of many German scientists to help her find production secrets.

By The Associated Press

Representative Velde (R., Ill.) said yesterday Russia gained three to five years in making an atomic bomb because the American Government "from the White House down" had been tolerant of Communist views.

A former FBI agent who now is a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, Velde urged that Congress investigate the "entire security setup" and what he called its "disgraceful" record.

"We should re-assess our whole security program," he said in a prepared statement, "and throw out of office those incompetents who regard their political lives as more important than our national security."

O'Conor Urges New Laws

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) went on the air yesterday to urge action of another kind, on laws that would stop Reds from coming to America "under the guise of diplomatic and semi-diplomatic status."

O'Conor said in a broadcast interview (WPIK) that ring leaders of the Communist apparatus in this country are coming in by the hundreds.

He said they are "the brains and the guiding force of subversive activity in this country," the "generals of the Communist fifth column."

Velde, who worked on Red spy cases during and after the war, said in his statement that:

"The Russians undoubtedly gained three to five years in producing the atomic bomb, solely because the American Government for the last 15 years has had the official attitude, from the White House down, of being highly tolerant of, and at times even sympathetic to, the views of Communists and fellow-travelers, with the result that the Federal Government has been infiltrated by a network of spies.

150 American Reds Implicated

Velde also declared that:

1. An estimated 150 American Reds and Russian agents were linked directly or indirectly to Soviet attempts to pry secrets of the atomic bomb from scientists who worked on it.

2. Russians spies "are still highly active" in the United States. Numerous cases could be prosecuted without giving away secrets.

3. At this moment we still are giving Russia "an amazing amount of data" that would be of "top military value" in an attack on America. It ranges from harbor depths to information on jet propulsion and atomic projects. Much of it can be bought by anybody at the Government Printing Office.

Upper Hand Held By Russia, Czechs Told

Prague, Sept. 25 (AP). — The Czechoslovak army newspaper Obrana Lidu said today Russia's possession of the atom bomb means that "the Soviet Union's camp now has the crushing upper hand," in world power.

The newspaper said this was not only a warning to "th warmongering West" but also to the Czechoslovak "reaction" which had counted on a victory of the West in a new war.

De Gaulle Tells France To Look to Defenses

Bordeaux, France, Sept. 25 (AP). Gen. Charles De Gaulle said today the Atlantic pact has lost much of its force if the Russians have atomic bombs.

De Gaulle said France "should be warned that the United States is neither obliged nor prepared to participate in the direct and immediate defense of our continent."

He said France should look to its own defense, build up its army, and then "we shall see Europe raise its head and look in our direction."

Evatt Says Problem Is to Eliminate War

Sydney, Australia, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt said today the major problem facing mankind is elimination of war rather than abolition of the atom bomb.

He said demands, such as Russia's, in the United Nations for outlawing the atom bomb were not satisfactory unless the control plan could be supervised to insure good faith on all sides.

New Importance Seen For Spain as Base

Madrid, Spain, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—The Catholic newspaper Ya said today that Russia's possession of the atomic bomb had shattered hopes of defending Europe along the river Rhine, and increased the importance of Spain as a base for action against a possible Soviet attack.

U. S. officials will be alert for any evidence of a sincere Russian desire to work out a foolproof U. N. program for preventing atomic war.

U. S. officials long have held the view that Russia probably had the general "secret" of how to make a bomb long ago, but lacked the facilities actually to make one.

Diplomatic quarters speculated that Russia made the claim to bolster her international bargaining position and to strengthen her propaganda position in Europe.

If Russia had the bomb in 1947, then she would have had two years to build up a bomb stockpile. If she had such a stockpile, she presumably would be in a position to bargain on more nearly equal terms with the West.

In addition, diplomats believed the Soviet Union might be seeking to capitalize on the disclosure of her A-bomb know-how as a means of strengthening her control over eastern European satellites. There have been hints of possible other defections since Marshall Tito of Yugoslavia broke with the Cominform.

"The Same Old Record"

The Tass statement renewed Russia's demand for "unconditional prohibition of the use of the atomic weapon." Then turning to the question of international controls, it said:

". . . It has to be said that this control will be essential in order to check up on the fulfillment of the decision on the prohibition of the atomic weapon."

Officials in close touch with atomic developments noted that the Soviet idea of control in the past has not been satisfactory to the West.

The United States proposal, as approved by a majority of the U. N. Assembly, calls for full U. N. ownership and operation of all "dangerous" atomic activities and full U. N. licensing and inspection of other atomic work.

The Soviet proposal calls for U. N. inspection of those atomic plants which a nation announces it has, but has no machinery to enforce inspection if a nation chooses to conceal its atomic works.

"It sound like the same old record they've been playing over and over again," one official said. "Unless they get off the dime and offer something new, there is no prospect of getting anywhere."

"We Are Interested"

Despite this pessimism, it was indicated that this country would be only too happy if the Russians were ready to modify their opposition to full international atomic control.

"We are interested in knowing whether it means the Soviets are willing to agree to the means of control that 46 U. N. members have agreed to," a State Department official said. "If it means that, we are interested in what they have to say."

Representatives of the Big Five powers, including Russia, have been meeting together with Canadian officials in New York since August 9 in an effort to find a new basis for an atomic agreement. Another meeting has been scheduled for next Thursday and officials said if the Russians had anything new to offer it might be disclosed at that time.

Atomic experts here agree that regardless of when Russia got the atom bomb, this country is undoubtedly still far ahead both in number and in techniques.

A-Weapon in Reds' Hands Dangerous, Dulles Says

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—Senators Dulles (R., N. Y.) today said atomic weapons were dangerous in the hands of Communists who believe "any means are justified to gain their ends."

Speaking on the National Broadcasting Co.'s "Voices and Events," Dulles said:

"The present Russian knowledge is serious. It's dangerous to have atomic weapons in the hands of people who believe, as Communists do, that any means are justified to gain their ends."

He added, however:

"We must not get panicky.

"The Russians may now feel that they can blackmail us with threats of using atomic weapons. We must not give in. It never pays to pay blackmail, least of all to Communists."

Dulles, formerly a United States delegate to the United Nations, added:

"I have dealt with top Russian leaders almost continuously for over four years. We have had some rough encounters, but the wisdom and firmness of a bipartisan foreign policy has made peace more likely."

A war, he said, "is less likely now than a year ago."

Jury Gets 'Rose' Case

San Francisco, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—The case of Mrs. Iva Toguri D'Aquino, Japan's wartime "Tokyo Rose," will be given to a Federal Court jury Monday as the 55-day-old treason trial moves to a climax.

German Aid Cited in Red Atom Weapon

Frankfurt, Germany, Sept. 25 (AP).—German equipment and scientists helped Russia break open the secret of the atomic bomb.

"Without the help of German scientists," a high American officer said today, "Russia could never have developed an atomic weapon so soon."

More than 200 German experts are reported here to have worked in the Soviet Union since 1945.

German scientists started work on an atomic pile before the war ended. Hitler, however, was not impressed with the atom idea. He wanted something that would win the war quick. But the Russians were not slow in picking up German atomic research at the point where the allied victory brought it to an end.

In eastern Germany, there were some German scientists who were waiting for the Russians.

Other German nuclear physicists needed wooing. They were offered high pay and good homes. Some who wouldn't be wooed, were forcibly "recruited."

In 1947, D. Werner Heisenberg, one of Germany's foremost atomic specialists, said three of his closest friends were in Russia.

They were Prof. Gustav Hertz, who built Germany's cyclotron for smashing the atom and is an authority on the separation of U-235 from uranium; D. Robert Doepel, a prominent Leipzig physicist, and Dr. Ludwig Bellilogua, who worked with Heisenberg on developing Germany's atomic pile.

Dr. Hertz was reported today to be working in a Russian government institute in the Crimea.

A former colleague of his, Prof. W. Fuchs of Aachen, said:

"According to his letters he is satisfied and happy. He lives in a private house, has got an automobile and servants. He never writes about his work but I suppose he cooperated in the construction of the Soviet atom bomb."

Montgomery Misses Rite

Southampton, England, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—British Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery was unable to attend a ceremony marking the unveiling of a war memorial today because of "slight illness."

Britain to Receive Nameless Secret Substance, Paper Says

London, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—The Sunday Empire News reported today that Britain had concluded a secret agreement for Portugal's entire output of a "vital radioactive by-product" that is "so secret it does not have an official name."

Under the headline "Britain Makes Atom Deal, Gets World Lead," Empire News said:

"World-wide tests have shown that the substance which is so secret that it has not even been given an official name can be produced only from Portuguese tin mines."

There was no official comment.

Empire News said negotiations with Portugal lasted four months and that Dr. Antonio Salazar, Portuguese Premier, played an important part in them.

Reds Reported Seeking Uranium in Mountains

London, Sept. 24 (U.P.).—With a force of between 30,000 and 40,000 forced laborers, Russia is believed today to be seeking uranium in 20 mines in the ancient Erz mountains, once abandoned by the Germans as worthless.

Westerners do not know how much the mines, between Karlsbad, Czechoslovakia, and Chemnitz, in Soviet-occupied Germany, are producing. But the Germans quit working them long before the war.

The uranium used in Russia's first atomic explosion may have come from these mines, which also produced the ore Madame Curie used to discover radium half a century ago and open up the whole science of radioactivity.

The Russians reopened the mines in September, 1945.

New Uranium Source Held Found by Spain

Madrid, Spain, Sept. 25 (AP).—Generalissimo Franco's mining experts are reported to have found in the Pyrenees new sources of uranium, the stuff from which atom bombs are made. Spain already was the holder of the world's fourth largest uranium deposits.

Diplomatic sources said uranium, more than anything else, might influence the Atlantic powers to change their attitude toward Spain.

Rep. James J. Murphy (D., N. Y.) arrived here today to confer with the Generalissimo on the possibility of an American loan to Spain.

Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) of the Judiciary Committee was due in Madrid today to see Franco on the possibility of a loan and diplomatic recognition by the U. S. Franco was fishing and is not due back until October 1.

(In Washington, President Truman said on September 15 that McCarran was representing no one in the United States Government.)

It is impossible to obtain official confirmation of a new uranium find. It is reported, the new deposits are located around the town of Sert, 100 miles northwest of Barcelona.

Reds Believed Opening New Czech Mine

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 25 (AP).—Reports received today from miners in the Prague area said a new uranium mine has been opened near here under the direction of Russian engineers.

These reports located the new mine at Mnisek, about 25 miles south of Prague. They would be the third on Czechoslovak soil known to be producing atomic material for the Soviets. The Russians, with the cooperation of the Czechs, have been prospecting for new sources of uranium since the war.

Small Nations Ask Curbs on A-Bombs

From Pulpit

Pastor Urges Atom Truce With Russia

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

The pastor of the First Congregational Church yesterday called for a "provisional atomic truce" enforced by public opinion in America and Russia until all atomic weapons are placed under United Nations control.

"We are faced with the tragic spectacle of our top, trusted leaders suggesting an atomic bomb stockpile race, or that we evacuate the Pentagon and scatter the brass out beyond Centerville so they won't get hurt," the Rev. Carl Heath Kopf declared.

He urged that the "mere human beings" of the United States and the USSR "who hold no high office but stand to lose everything by atomic war" to rise up and tell their respective governments that it is the will of 99 out of 100 persons that "no atomic bomb be used against any human being anywhere."

Suggests "Postcard Shower"

"Am I right in my estimate that we human beings of the world will not support any national government which drops the next bomb on women and children?" he asked.

Dr. Kopf suggested a "postcard shower" addressed to the Russian People, c/o the Russian Embassy, Washington, saying "We the people of America, ask the people of Russia to join us in a mutual pledge that our own country will not first use atomic weapons against any people anywhere," signed with the name of the sender, followed by the words "mere human being."

"Let the bombs be used on the desert sand, but never again on human beings," the clergyman said. "Only aroused public opinion in both the United States and in Russia and in every other country can keep any real peace very long," he declared.

"Political Incompentence" Seen

At All Souls' Church (Unitarian), 16th and Harvard sts. nw., the Rev. Dr. A. Powell Davies deplored the toleration of national evils, noting that "we have tolerated political incompentence, and in the crucial matter of atomic energy we have come through only by the skin of our teeth."

"As to atomic energy," he continued, "what a commentary it is that even within the last few weeks we have been hearing protests against sharing our knowledge with our friends . . . and meanwhile the Russians have brought atomic energy into production."

"As every informed person knew, there never was a secret, not in the scientific sense. Our only American secret was the immensity of our industrial capacity. We could afford to siphon off the necessary amount of it—that the Russians would do the same at all costs was an obvious conclusion," he declared.

"Yet we had all this incompetent chatter about a secret; and all this trumped-up sensationalism to make the work of responsible officials harder," the Unitarian minister said.

"Incompetency, when it becomes a threat to human welfare, is immoral, and so is toleration of it," Dr. Davies declared.

America Magic Word, Dr. Harris Declares

America is the most magic word in the world today, the Rev. Dr. Frederick Brown Harris declared in a sermon at Foundry Church (Methodist), 16th and P sts. nw.

Dr. Harris, chaplain of the United States Senate, returned last week from a summer visit to Europe.

"One cannot go abroad and come back home without a feeling of awe at the place of America in the world of today and tomorrow," he said.

"Every wholesome and holy cause on earth prays that God will bless America, and keep her strong—not just for herself, but for those who, threatened by colossal material power and diabolical designs, share her love of liberty," Dr. Harris said.

New York, Sept. 25 (AP). Worried small countries in the United Nations are putting strong pressure on the big powers to curb the atomic bomb quickly. They want international control—and the sooner the better.

That is the consensus of leading spokesmen for the little fellows in the fourth U. N. Assembly. Their fears about the atomic bomb were high when they knew the United States alone had it. Now that the Russians say they have an atomic weapon their apprehension reaches new heights.

Carlos P. Romulo, president of the Assembly, set the pace with a demand that the present Assembly, which he wants to be known as the "Peace Assembly," face up to the problem.

The Assembly will try Monday to wind up the general policy statements of the delegation leaders. The last big delegation on top is Britain's Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

The British and Americans are known to feel that the six-country talks on atomic energy will go along as though nothing had happened. Another meeting of the atomic delegates is slated for Thursday.

The little nations among the 59 U. N. members are responsible for these talks. Last year at the Paris Assembly the big powers, except for Russia, had decided there was no use talking further about atomic control in view of the East-West cold war and the lack of agreement.

But the little nations, frankly stating they would be caught in the middle by an atomic war, refused to let the talks drop. They approved a resolution to try to find a basis for agreement.

Romulo said today the U. N. occupies "a central position in the complex and delicately balanced structure of international relations."

Romulo spoke at the United Nations festival closing United Nations Week in Rockefeller Plaza.

"It may be an exaggeration to say that the Uinted Nations holds the world together," the Philippines chief delegate said. "But it is a demonstrable fact that it keeps the nations from spliting irremediably apart. Conceived as an instrument deriving its strength and effectiveness mainly from the unity of the big powers, the United Nations has not healed the cleavage that divides them. But it has kept the breach within manageable bounds: within bridging distance."

Romulo said no issue illustrated this more clearly than the problem of atomic energy control. He said the big powers differed radicallly on its solution but were agreed on one thing—that the problem "can be solved only in and through the United Nations."

Navy to Show Carrier Role

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Defense Secretary Louis Johnson gets a first-hand idea Monday of how the Navy would "deliver" an atom bomb if it only had the chance.

The Secretary will be flown from the deck of the carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt in a P2V Neptune bomber, a twin-engine, long-range, land-based aircraft the Navy would use at its A-bomb carrier in event of war.

No Cabinet officer has ever made such a flight. In fact, it is far from a routine operation since Navy pilots have only done it some 20-odd times.

The takeoff is one of the highlights of a day-long Navy demonstration designed to show Johnson and other top Defense, Army and Air Force officials that the carrier is not obsolete in the atomic age.

While the others will board the carrier at its dock here, Johnson will be flown aboard by a Navy helicopter. This flight, too, will be without precedent for a Cabinet member.

The demonstration originally was Johnson's idea. He "invited" the civilian and military heads of the Army and Air Force to go along on a carrier cruise as the first step in a program to educate the secretaries, generals and admirals of each of the three armed services as to how the other operates.

Grants to Foreign Countries Top 5 Billion for Fiscal Year

By The Associated Press

The United States Government provided $5,169,000,000 in foreign aid gifts and other grants in the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1949. More than a third of it went to former enemy nations.

The Commerce Department, reporting this last night, noted it was almost double the $2,693,000,000 figure for the previous year. It brought to $13,260,000,000 the total for the four postwar fiscal years covering the period from July 1, 1945, to July 1, 1949.

Japan, Germany and Italy got more than a third of the four-year total too.

$10,080,000,000 in Credits

"These gifts and grants," said the department, "are provided either as outright donations of the United States Government or with indeterminate conditions and terms of recovery to the United States, pending future settlements."

In addition, the department said, the United States has granted in the postwar period $10,080,000,000 in credits, "requiring repayment over several years." That, it noted, lifted "total grant and credit aid to $23,340,000,000."

The Marshall Plan countries and their overseas dependencies got $4,080,000,000 in grants in fiscal 1949 as against $1,890,000,000 in fiscal 1948 when it was just starting. The European Recovery Program itself provided $3,221,000,000 of the fiscal 1949 total, while other programs provided another $858,000,000 for ERP countries.

Germany Chief Beneficiary

Germany was named the chief beneficiary of United States aid in grants in both fiscal 1949 and 1948—983 million dollars in grants in fiscal 1949 and 627 million dollars in fiscal 1948. The former enemy country has received $2,041,000,000 in grants in the postwar period.

Britain and France, with more than one billion dollars each in postwar grants, were second and third in rank in fiscal 1949 with 899 million dollars and 750 million dollars respectively. In fiscal 1948, Britain's grants totaled 102 million dollars, France's 363 million dollars.

Italy with $1,336,000,000 in four years, was given 394 million dollars of it in fiscal 1949 and 288 million dollars in fiscal 1948.

China, listed as second largest beneficiary of United States grants since the end of the war, with a $1,533,000,000 total, was furnished 282 million dollars in fiscal 1949.

Japan and the Ryukyu Islands have received $1,265,000,000 in civilian supplies furnished by the armed forces since the end of the war, of which 410 million dollars was provided in fiscal 1949 and 442 million dollars in fiscal 1948.

Loan to Tito Report Is Due

Belgrade, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—The last of the World Bank experts conducting an on-the-spot investigation of Yugoslavia's economic situation left here today for Washington via Paris.

They will draw up a report on their 2½-month study and are expected to recommend a loan of from 30 million dollars to 50 million dollars to Marshal Tito. He had asked for 250 million dollars in a series of loans.

It was learned that new snags, mainly devaluation, had postponed signing of the British-Yugoslav trade agreement for probably another two weeks.

The agreement is expected to provide for some 250 million pounds (700 million dollars) worth of trade between the two countries.

A. S. G. Hoar, assistant loan director of the World Bank, left Belgrade about three weeks ago, but a team of experts stayed behind to complete the study. They left by plane and train today.

Sam Litkowitz, head economist of the group, said on leaving that Yugoslavia should not expect "too much too quick." He paid tribute to the cooperation of the Yugoslav government.

Europe Wheat Harvest to Set Record

Paris, Sept. 25 (AP).—A postwar record for wheat harvest is in sight for Europe, an Associated Press survey of 14 countries showed today.

Europe's wheat production in 1948, by the latest estimates, was 36,800,000 tons—not including the Soviet Union, which refuses to furnish figures. This was 86.5 percent of the 1934-38 average, also excluding Russia.

French peasants this year surprised Government experts by growing an estimated 7,849,000 tons of wheat, about 200,000 tons more than they turned in last year.

France now hopes to halt all imports, and perhaps to export wheat.

Italy raised 6,860,000 tons of wheat this year, a gain of 12 percent.

Western Germany, bizonal authorities said, had not quite finished its harvest, but it looked "larger even than last year's record postwar crop."

The United Kingdom expected bigger yields per acre, but a drop in total production because of reduced plantings.

Sweden also showed a smaller wheat harvest—977,600 tons against 1,024,300 in 1948. But even this was well above the 1939-48 average.

Belgium reported one of the biggest all-around harvests in history. The Netherlands, Austria ("bread rationing abolished"), Switzerland, Denmark and Ireland ("bumper crop confidently expected") were also on the credit side. Portugal suffered badly from a long continued drought.

The only word from eastern Europe came from Czechoslovakia and Finland. The Czechs officially estimated their grain harvest about 15 per cent higher than last year. That would mean about 1,315,000 tons of wheat. Finland rated its grain production as slightly better than average.

Maybe Sooner

British Vote In the Spring Seems Likely

London, Sept. 25 (AP).—Britain's Socialist leaders soon may be forced, largely by their own supporters, into a general election.

Winston Churchill's Conservatives, backed by a machine in which they've invested £1,000,000 ($2,800,000) in the last three years, already have ordered their first election leaflets.

A government figure who has the confidence of Prime Minister Attlee expressed a private opinion there's an even chance of an election before Christmas.

The Conservative Sunday dispatch today said the cabinet is making tentative plans for a vote the first half of November.

Indications are Attlee has not yet decided on the date and is figuring on a vote in the spring.

For one thing, the government that way could complete its legislative program, which includes nationalization of the iron and steel industry. For another, there's the prospect of more food — the springtime flow of milk and eggs—to make the voters happier.

A potent reason for a quick election is to get it over before the full blows of price hikes are felt.

The government is staking its life on a confidence motion in an emergency session of Parliament this week. The Laborites have a 60 percent majority in the Commons.

The Labor Party executive has called a session this week to weigh the pros and cons of a snap election.

Harry Pollitt, Britain's Communist chief, urged union workers to strike for more pay "in defense of their standard of living."

Britain Raises Tin, Cut in U. S.

London (Monday), Sept. 26 (AP). The government made Malayan tin cheaper in the United States but dearer in Britain today, eight days after devaluation of the pound.

This may cause an increase in the price of canned goods here and one industrialist promptly declared it to be "one of the unforeseen implications of devaluation."

The ministry of supply announced new prices for Straits tin that are eight cents a pound lower in New York than before but the highest ever in the United Kingdom. The ministry also said it is going to stop its controversial bulk buying of tin and arrange for reopening of the London metal exchange to allow free trading in tin.

The ministry stopped sales of tin last Monday just after Britain devalued its pound from $4.03 to $2.80. The ministry said sales would be resumed today at the new prices.

The new price for tin to buyers in the United States will be 95 cents a pound in New York, cartage, insurance and freight paid. The old price was $1.03.

The ministry said the price to other world customers would be the equivalent price in sterling, £739 ($2069.20) a long ton (2240 pounds) at Penang or Singapore smelters.

In the United Kingdom refined tin will cost £750 a long ton.

The price of £750 represents an increase of £181 a long ton, the highest price ever in Britain.

Industrial sources said the cost of producing a can would be increased 2½ percent.

The decrease of 8 cents a pound in tin sold on the United States market represents what the Ministry of Supply considers a 'normal' fall in world prices.

Present United States strategic stocks of tin are about 60,000 tons.

3 Red Armies Open Drive for Canton

Canton (Monday), Sept. 26 (AP).—The Chinese Communists began their long-awaited large-scale invasion of Kwangtung today. Three Red armies surged into the province that holds this refugee capital.

Official dispatches said the force—75,000 troops if the armies were at full strength—used Lungnan, 140 miles northeast of Canton in Kiangsi Province, as the invasion springboard.

A large part of the Reds have reached the vicinity of Hsinfeng, 90 miles northeast of Canton, these reports said.

The announcement came amid bad news for the Nationalists from Amoy. The loss of a key city guarding the big southeastern port was admitted officially.

The reports said Tsimei, on the mainland 12 miles north of the Island port, fell to the Reds Saturday. Reports said it was overwhelmed by wave on wave of Red attackers. The Chinese used the term "human sea" for this type of mass attack.

The Communist press in Shanghai announced that Nationalist armies in the northwest province of Ningsia had accepted Communist peace terms, ending all resistance there.

On the front before Canton, fighting was reported near Sinhwa, 100 miles northwest of the Nationalist base of Hengyang. Hengyang is 265 miles north of Canton.

The Communists captured Namyung, 155 miles northwest of Canton.

Reds Plan Industrial Base in Manchuria

The Communist radio in Peiping yesterday said Manchuria would be "a heavy industrial base" of the new "Chinese Peoples Republic."

The political consultative conference now in session in Peiping is setting up a central government.

The conference adjourned until Tuesday still giving no hint as to when the new government will be ready to operate or who will run it.

Woman Flier Claims New Altitude Mark

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MRS. MILDRED ZIMMERMAN
. . . claims altitude record

Reading, Pa., Sept. 25 (AP).—A 27-year-old Reading mother claimed a new world's altitude record for light planes today.

Mrs. Mildred Zimmerman said she had claimbed to 26,200 feet to break a previous record of 21,900 feet.

She landed her light plane before a cheering crowd of more than 40,000 persons.

Her performance would have to be accepted by the National Aeronautics Association in Washington to become official.

Mrs. Zimmerman's flight was the main feature of an air show sponsored by the Associated Flying Clubs of Reading to mark the tenth anniversary of the opening of Municipal Airport.

Mrs. Zimmerman said she used several bottles of oxygen during her flight and flew in temperature estimated at 50 and 60 degrees below zero.

She wore an Arctic outfit.

Polish Prince Shoots Self in Suicide Try

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—Prince Alexander Hohenlohe, Polish member of a one-time leading German noble family, shot himself in a suicide attempt tonight, police said.

Police said Hohenlohe is estranged from his wife, Boyce Thompson Schulze, daughter of a former wife of Anthony Drexel Biddle, jr., former Ambassador to Poland.

Hohenlohe and his wife were separated last spring.

Hohenlohe is a son of the late Prince Alfred Hohenlohe-Waldenburg-Schillingsfurst and the late Princess Catherine Britton Hohenlohe, a native of this country.

He met Biddle's stepdaughter while they were attending the same school in Poland.

They were married in October, 1939, in Paris. He was assigned to the Polish Embassy in Washington as an adjutant to the military attache.

Police said Mrs. Hohenlohe, now 27, has been living elsewhere in the city, and their two small children have been staying with relatives in White Plains, N. Y.

Family members have included a chancellor of Germany, a Prussian general who commanded an army against Napoleon in the Rhine campaign of 1794, and a marshal and peer of France.

ECA Staff Men Reported Held By Korean Reds

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—The South Korean cargo vessel S. Kimball Smith, missing for five days with two American ECA staff members aboard, has apparently fallen into the hands of North Korean Communists, according to advices received here today.

First word of the missing vessel was broadcast by the official North Korean government radio which stated the American-leased ship had arrived at the major northern port of Chinnampuo on September 22.

The broadcast made no mention of the two Americans aboard. They were Capt. Alfred T. Meschter, New York, and Chief Engineer Albert E. Willis, Brooklyn, who were acting as ECA consultants in training the Korean crew.

Clapp Favors WPA-Type Aid for Arabs

Alexandria, Egypt, Sept. 25. (AP) Gordon Clapp, head of the United Nations Economic Commission to the Middle East, said today he favors a sort of international WPA to put Arab refugees back on their feet.

(The WPA—Works Progress Administration—was a New Deal agency to put people to work on public projects of a small nature.)

He said the first concern of the United Nations should be to supply work to thousands of able-bodied men among the refugees, variously estimated as between 600,000 and 900,000. They left their homes as a result of the recent war between Arabs and Israelis.

Part of the direct relief now going to them should be in the form of work, he added.

The chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority said it was "premature" to discuss the possibility of a small-scale TVA program for the Jordan River Valley. He said that "any kind of a workable project is being studied."

He also said he hoped for creation of a permanent United Nations body in the Middle East to carry out the commission's recommendations, if they are approved.

A-Blast Stirs New Interest In Collins Trip

Tokyo, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Diplomatic observers here believe disclosure of Russia's atomic progress increases the importance of the impending Far East visit of United States Army Chief of Staff Gen. J. Lawton Collins and a group of staff officers.

Collins scheduled to leave Washington October 7 for a three-week inspection tour in the Pacific and Far East.

Collins will confer with Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

There are indications the U. S. Air Force is more interested in Okinawa as a permanent Far East base than Japan.

These bases could be used to launch planes against Soviet fields in Siberia that are within bombing range of the U. S.

Some sources said the U. S. will press for convening of a veto-free Japanese peace conference in diplomatic notes to 11 Pacific allies this fall, but will take no hasty action to call a conference without Russia.

Prospects for an early peace conference still were believed slight. Since neither Russia nor the U. S. have shown signs of backing down in their dispute over the big-power veto in conference.

Some key officials in Tokyo say the new U. S.-British drive for a peace conference was based on belief Russia might abandon the veto in order to get U. S. occupation forces out of Japan.

U. S. Defers Stand Until China Files Formal Complaint

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—United States policy toward the Chinese case in the United Nations will be determined definitely after Nationalist China files its complaint in the U. N., probably Tuesday, informed sources said today.

Dr. T. F. Tsiang, Chinese delegate to the U. N. Assembly, was reported to have given Dr. Philip C. Jessup, United States delegate and specialist on the Chinese situation, a broad report on what the Nationalist government plans, these informants said. Tsiang and Jessup had lunch Friday and some informed persons represented Jessup's reaction to Tsiang's outline as favorable.

Buenos Aires Rumors Hint at Devaluation

Buenos Aires, Sept. 25 (AP).—Unconfirmed rumors in banking and business circles today said the government will adjust the value of the peso this week to compete with world-wide devalued currencies.

Observers pointed out a week-long moratorium on all foreign exchange transactions may indicate a complicated revaluation plan.

U. N. Envoy's Wife Ill

Jerusalem, Sept. 25 (AP).—The United Nations said tonight its newly appointed representative for Jerusalem, Alberto Gonzales-Fernandez, is unable to leave New York because of the illness of his wife.

Extra Trains Carry Mail Through D.C.

Mail for the Midwest and Southwest was being routed through Washington yesterday in such quantity that special trains were required to handle it.

The heavy mail traffic has resulted from rerouting caused by the Missouri Pacific Railroad strike, now in its third week, terminal officials said.

Southern Railway train No. 42 from New Orleans yesterday morning carried 10 mail cars, nine of them making up a special section. Normally the train carries only one mail car.

Southern south-bound train No. 41 Saturday night carried "six or seven" extra mail cars, officials said, also necessitating splitting the train into two sections.

One Washington terminal spokesman said about four special mail sections were run on trains in and out of here last week and that extra cars were added to other trains.

Westbound mail out of here was being sent via the Southern, Norfolk & Western and St. Louis and Southwestern through Memphis to Texarkana, Texas, the distribution center. Mail out of the area was being picked up by the Southern at New Orleans and at Meridian, Miss.

Of Pressmen
Decision Seen Soon On Charter

A decision on the threatened revocation of the charter of Local No. 1 Printing Pressmen's Union is slated to be handed down by the union's international board of directors in the next 10 days, it was learned yesterday.

The International charged the local union had violated an oath to keep union affairs strictly within union circles.

The local officials, James S. Judge, president and Edward Best, secretary, appeared before the international board at Pressmen's Home, Tenn., last Thursday.

Pressure Charge Is Declared 'Bunk'

Atlanta, Sept. 25 (AP).—A Congressman's charge that pressure by the Pressmen's Union ended a labor committee investigation was called "bunk" again today.

George L. Googe, vice president of the International Printing Pressmen's Assistant Union, said the charge by Representative Jacobs (D., Ind.) was not only "bunk" but held "no semblance of truth."

Jacobs, chairman of a subcommittee investigating democracy in labor unions, said in Washington Thursday that "heat" generated by the union prompted Representative Lesinski (D., Mich.) to abolish the sub-group.

The Michigan Representative, chairman of the full committee, also said Jacobs' charge was "bunk."

Union Official Is Pessimistic

ond week of their walkout Monday with no signs of an early return to the pits.

As a matter of fact, UMW President John L. Lewis has said no progress in his negotiations with coal operators can be expected while the steel talks are in progress. The coal talks resume Thursday at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

President Philip Murray of the CIO United Steelworkers and steel industry negotiators will be working against time as they seek to reach an agreement. The latest extension in the steel truce ends at 12:01 a. m. Saturday.

Murray says if no agreement is reached by that time he'll pass the word for his men to hit the picket lines.

Already, some 2000 men in two Pittsburgh steel plants have walked off their jobs. Company and union spokesmen say the men are jittery over the whole situation in industry—where a strike has been threatened for weeks.

Monday's top bargaining session will be between the U. S. Steel Corporation, headed by Vice President John A. Stephens, and the Steelworkers, led by Murray. A few other sessions will be held elsewhere.

Last Friday more than 60 representatives of Big Steel and the union acceded to President Truman's latest request that bargaining be resumed.

The session was merely exploratory. There was no official word after the session, but it was reported Murray was holding steadfast to his belief industry should finance the entire cost of pensions for the men who make steel.

Murray's attitude on pensions and his insistence that industry accept the recommendations of the presidential fact-finding board, nearly led to a strike over the weekend. But Mr. Truman stepped into the dispute for a third time, and now it's up to the union and industry to try and work out a peace formula.

The President's fact-finding board suggested industry pay up to 6 cents an hour for pensions and up to 4 cents an hour for insurance. It recommended no wage boost.

Murray reluctantly gave up the fight for a wage increase for his men—who now average $1.65 an hour—but he's shown no indication of quitting the battle for industry-financed pensions.

Spurring on Murray is the fact that Lewis, a onetime friend and now bitter enemy, has obtained $100-a-month pensions for coal diggers with the coal industry paying the bill through 20-cent-a-ton royalty payments.

While Murray is trying to get pensions for his men, Lewis is mapping strategy to put the miners' pension fund on a more stable basis.

Ford Co., Auto Workers Meet 11th Day in Row

Detroit, Sept. 25 (AP).—Spurred by the threat of a possible strike this week, Ford Motor Co. and CIO United Auto workers negotiators met today for the second Sunday in a row.

Both sides as usual refused to report on progress.

The meetings today marked the eleventh successive day that Ford and the UAW have discussed contract and pension issues.

The old contract expired July 15 and since has been extended on a day-to-day basis.

The UAW has fixed a tentative strike deadline for 12:01 a. m. Thursday.

Crooks Can't Possibly Go Straight in Princeton Room

ILLUSION—The men are the same size. The illusion, used by Princeton psychologists to study human perception, is produced by a slanting floor and a room which appears rectangular but isn't. When they change places, the illusion is reversed

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 25 (AP).—You miss by a mile when you try to swat a fly in a peculiar room at Princeton University.

You miss because the room is crooked, but looks perfectly square and normal. You miss, said the psychologists, because every human is a gambler, making bets for guesses about everything he does.

The crooked room is one of the optical illusions being used by Dr. Merle Lawrence, assistant professor of psychology in new studies, to learn why humans behave as they do.

What you see in this room isn't so. It looks that way because you don't expect a room to be crooked, with far walls slanting toward you and the floor rising at a sharp angle.

If you take a stick and try to hit a spot on one wall, you are betting or guessing that the room is square. You are surprised when the stick hits the slanting wall, before it even reaches the wall you want to hit.

This is one illustration in the significant new psychology studies being made at Princeton, at Dartmouth College and Ohio State University. Dr. Lawrence describes 24 experiments in this field in a book, "Studies in Human Behavior," to be published Monday by the Princeton University Press.

"It was once believed that what you think about a thing determines the way you act," Dr. Lawrence explained. "But these studies show that it is our perceptions of the world about us that determines how we act."

Everyone lives in his own world of assumption based on his own experiences, Dr Lawrence said. We make assumptions about each thing that we perceive, and then make guesses about what is best to do in order to meet that situation.

These studies may help in better understanding the nature and mechanism of prejudices and opinions in human thinking or conduct, Dr. Lawrence said.

They may also aid in treating mental illnesses by revealing what conceptions the mental patient has formed from his past experience.

A Cheering Note

Timorous Americans meditating on the hazards of life under the shadow of a Russia armed with atomic bombs may derive some wry comfort from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s announcement that it sees no reason, at this time, for recommending any increase in charges for life insurance. For that matter, we can see no reason why any life insurance company at any time should adjust its rates to allow for the possibility that someday American cities might be destroyed and hundreds of thousands of people killed by atom blasts. That is a catastrophe that we can only try to prevent, knowing that the loss in life and property would be irremediable, if it were to occur. Furthermore, it would probably bankrupt companies that had insured the lives of victims.

In these troubled days, life insurance companies as well as other businesses have to act on the assumption that our worst fears will never be realized. Otherwise their present usefulness would be impaired by foolish, futile attempts to protect their own interests against the unforeseeable dangers of the future.

A. & P. Suit

The civil antitrust suit brought by the Department of Justice against the A. & P. food chain asks for the dissolution of its retail business into seven separate parts under independent ownership and control, and complete divorce of A. & P.'s manufacturing and processing business from the business of buying and selling food products. The Government also seeks dissolution of the Atlantic Commission Co., which buys fresh fruits and vegetables for A. & P. retail stores, and acts as selling broker for growers and buying broker for produce dealers, who in turn sell to competitors of A. & P. stores.

In a preceding criminal suit the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., and a large number of officials, and subsidiary companies, were found guilty by a Federal District Court of violating the Sherman Antitrust Act. That decision was upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago, the decision being written by Judge Minton, recently nominated to the Supreme Court. Department of Justice officials explain that the present civil suit is designed to prevent a repetition of practices found in the criminal proceedings to be illegal. Among such practices are: coercion of suppliers to obtain discriminatory preferences, unreasonable interference with the buying opportunities of competing retailers; suppression of competition by crediting to A. & P. retail operations savings resulting from discriminatory buying; and selling below cost in some areas while recouping losses by selling at higher prices in less competitive areas.

The antisocial practices of which A. & P. was convicted in the criminal case cannot be excused on the ground that the public has benefited from A. & P.'s low prices. Nor can they be defended by pointing out that A. & P. controls only a small percentage of the Nation's food business. For the short run, unfair competitive practices banned by the antitrust laws may benefit consumers by lowering prices charged by the offender. But in the long run these temporary and restricted consumer benefits are likely to be dearly paid for by suppression of healthy competition and the ruin of small businesses, leaving consumers at the mercy of a few dominant enterprises wielding monopolistic power.

In the criminal case, however, the Government insisted that its attack was not directed against A. & P.'s size or against integration per se, but against the abuse of the power resulting from size and integration. Why, then, should the Government try to break up an efficient, closely knit organization in order to prevent continuing abuse of power? Vigorous enforcement of the law, not dissolution, seems to us the proper remedy in this case, and the remedy that best serves the public interest. For if the separate regional retail groups that the Government wants to set up were to be divorced from manufacturing and processing organizations, and deprived of the services of a buying agency that insures ready access to tested sources of supply, the quality of the products sold would probably deteriorate. And legitimate operating economies of the present integrated system that make lower prices possible would also be lost. Moreover, although seven separate retail groups would be much less powerful than the existing unified system, they would still be in a position to put pressure on suppliers and retail competitors.

If the A. & P. abandons the unfair practices that have brought it into conflict with the law—and constant vigilance will be required to make sure that it does—we see no good reason for breaking up the existing organization, thereby depriving the public of the shared benefits of an economical, integrated system of buying and selling.

By Crook Or By Hook

A new legislative stratagem has been broached in Congress to take control of the so-called tidelands away from the Government of the United States and give it instead to the governments of the several interested States. The attempt to do this two years ago by outright quitclaim legislation was frustrated by President Truman's veto. The attempt is being made now by a subterfuge which amounts to a barefaced fraud. Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman, belatedly accorded a chance to testify before a House Judiciary subcommittee which has listened to a bevy of State witnesses supporting the subterfuge, exposed its real character recently in a statement as notable for its lucidity as for its indignation.

On June 23, 1947, the Supreme Court ruled that the United States possessed paramount rights and powers over the submerged lands lying seaward of the ordinary low-water mark on the coast of California and outside of the inland waters of the State extending seaward three miles. The term tidelands is a misnomer as applied to this area which is properly called the marginal sea; the term tidelands should be used, strictly speaking, only in reference to the area between low-water mark and high-water mark, State ownership of which has never been called into question. In distinguishing the marginal sea from the tidelands and from inland waters, the Supreme Court made it clear that California does not own, and has never owned, the marginal sea area. In respect of the marginal sea off the coasts of Texas and Louisiana, now in litigation, it may be presumed at the very least that the State claims are dubious.

But a bill, H. R. 5991, introduced in the House August 15, and on which hurried hearings were held, would effect an astonishing compromise on an issue about which the Supreme Court has spoken unequivocally. The bill would make a bow to the Court by acknowledging the Federal Government's theoretical paramountcy in the marginal sea but would give the States power to "manage, administer, lease and develop" the oil, gas and other minerals within the marginal sea "without interference." Thus the United States would keep the shadow and give away all the substance of the Supreme Court's decision in the California case.

H. R. 5991 has other provisions no less shocking. It would give to the States 62½ per cent of all royalties derived from oil exploitation in the marginal sea, leaving the Federal Government only 37½ per cent, despite the fact that the usual division of royalties under the Mineral Leasing Act is just the reverse for oil produced on uplands owned by the Federal Government within State boundaries. It would also give to the States 50 per cent of all royalties from oil which may be produced out of the continental shelf beyond the marginal sea—an area to which the States do not have the slightest vestige of any claim. Most brazen of all, the bill would relieve the States of all liability for revenue derived prior to January 1, 1949. This would have the effect of validating leases made by Texas and California subsequent to the Supreme Court verdict of June 23, 1947—leases which those States had no moral right to make and for which they have already received bonus payments and rentals amounting in the case of Texas to about 8 million dollars and in the case of Louisiana to about 12 million dollars.

Bills for the management of the marginal sea have been proposed to two successive Congresses by the Justice, Interior and Defense Departments since the 1947 action of the Supreme Court. Yet these Federal agencies have not yet been accorded a single hearing on these bills. They were designed to deal generously with the States, accepting as valid the State leases made in good faith prior to the Court's decision and allowing the States to retain all the revenue derived from these leases up to that time. They contained essential provisions authorizing the President to reserve portions of the submerged coastal lands in the interest of national security. This is the interest which ought to be paramount in the minds of Congressmen who are not mere State ambassadors but sworn servants of the United States of America.

Defense Of A Smear

Navy Capt. John Crommelin has not improved the regard for his discretion by his statement that ultimately Cedric Worth will be "vindicated in the eyes of the American people." Mr. Worth's motives in writing the "anonymous" memorandum about the B-36 bomber may have been patriotic, but his methods were despicable. Instead of facts, he produced undocumented libels against Air Force Secretary Symington and Defense Secretary Johnson. The effect was to inject the Navy into a sort of appeal to emotions and prejudices. In this connection the curious contradictions in the testimony of Navy Undersecretary Dan Kimball, who was Mr. Worth's superior, would bear some further scrutiny.

The one point raised by Captain Crommelin's blast of September 10 that deserves serious attention is the feeling that the views of Navy airmen on war strategy are not getting across to the persons who make policy. The whole doctrine of strategic bombing, including the use of atom bombs against cities, has such vast implications that it ought to be examined minutely. Is there a course that would serve our purposes better in war than the atomization of cities? How would we follow up the military phase of such a war? What is the proper relationship of strategic bombing to other elements of strategy? The National Security Council is the body that ought to give direction as to what our aim should be in any potential war. Then the Joint Chiefs of Staff can come up with a sound strategic plan for implementing those aims. To assure such consideration is the best purpose that can be served by expanding the now recessed House Armed Services Committee investigation beyond the mere physical capabilities of the B-36.

Saving And Spending

Vernon L. Clark, national director of the Treasury's savings bond division, says that Americans have not been hurting business by saving money. But for the muddled state of economic thinking, it would not be necessary for Mr. Clark to come to the defense of the savers. For it would be understood that saving is a special kind of spending quite as essential as the spending that takes the form of buying for immediate use.

Far from hurting business, savings provide industry with funds to construct new plants, to expand productive facilities, to purchase machinery, and to build up inventories. A large volume of savings is also used to buy new homes—a spur to construction activity. Savers, or investors, who buy securities, whether Government bonds or bonds of industrial corporations, also indirectly increase demands for all sorts of goods by putting money in the hands of Government and business spenders. To repeat: saving is spending, although the saver may not do the spending himself but transfers his spending power to someone else. Hoarding, on the other hand, which leads to the withdrawal of money from circulation, has a depressing effect on demand and business activity, if practiced on a large scale. But even hoarding sometimes serves a good purpose if the supply of money is excessive and inflation threatens.

Saving may be harmful if it is so great as to induce an overrapid expansion of business. But spending is likewise harmful if it results in a disproportionately large amount of income being used to buy consumer goods, leaving too little saved funds available for investment. The question of what constitutes a sound balance between spending (in the accepted sense of the word) and saving is a hotly debated issue to which no satisfactory answer has yet been given. We do know, however, that a prosperous and growing economy like ours requires a large volume of investment funds to finance industry's needs as well as a sustained high level of consumer spending.

Last Quarter-Hour

Well, it begins to look as if we may have been a bit premature in writing off the 1949 pennant races, as we did a few days ago. In Boston yesterday the venerable and sadly spavined gaffers who constitute the New York Yankees were beaten again. The playing rules forbade them the aid of canes, crutches, wheel chairs, and so on, although the redoubtable and indomitable Mr. Tommy Henrich was said to have worn surgical corsets under his uniform. In consequence of this defeat the Yankees now find themselves tied with the Boston Red Sox for the leadership of the American League, with six games more to be limped through, somehow.

Up to now the Yankees have managed, for all their sad season's history of accidents, illnesses, and downright bad luck, to hang on to the leadership, because even as lean and slippered pantaloons they were still superior to their competitors of more recent nativity. Of course, when it comes to that, Mr. McCarthy's boys are not any set of flaming youth, either. Anyway, the game that may decide the whole business will be played tomorrow in the Yankee Stadium.

In the other league that other group of ancients, the Cardinals, are still maintaining the pace. They defeated the Chicago Cubs yesterday while the Phillies were knocking over the Brooklyn Dodgers, and last night most of the hopes that had been nourished by the recent series at St. Louis were sorrowfully loaded upon the sanitation barges and towed down the Narrows out to sea. As a matter of pure arithmetic, the Dodgers can still make it; but yesterday's scoreboards put them a game and a half behind, and that's a lot of distance with only five games more to go, and three of them with the Phillies, while the Cardinals will be having to do with the fifth-place Pirates and the last-place Cubs.

Ah, well-a-day! We shall soon know the best and the worst. And the best and the worst is simply this: that no matter who gets the pennants, it is not likely to destroy the peace of the world or to decrease or increase the dangers from atomic bombs or rockets, or even to affect the premium rates of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

TO A CONTEMPORARY POET

Shall I compare thee to a foggy night?
Thou art more murky and more obfuscate!
The city's gloom is stabb'd by many a light;
And anyhow, the fog lifts soon or late.
Sometimes these twilight vapors are not dense,
And often can the trav'ller find his way
From place-of-work to bus, and homeward thence,
Almost as safely as by bright of day.

But thy infernal darkness does not fade,
Nor any star of meaning ever shine;
And I'll be hanged if I have ever made
A jot of sense of any verse of thine:
For when a path thru one I grope to find,
It is as tho' I'm palsied, deaf—and blind!

Social Security Answer

Why is there no pressure for an expansion of the Federal social security program as an answer to labor's demands for industry-wide pension programs?

At no time since the inception of the miners' pension program has any one in a high place proposed that in place of superimposing special pension plans such as the ones for miners, that the pension section of the social security program be overhauled.

As I understand it, existing laws limit pensions from social security to $80 a month. Deductions are not made from earnings above $3000 a year. Both figures represent an unrealistic view of current family economics.

As a Democrat, I regret that my party has failed to expand the social security program. More blame must fall on the Republicans who have almost to a man joined a minority of Democrats to administer a series of defeats to efforts to expand social security in accord with the original conceptions of the law.

Had social security contributions and benefits been expanded in keeping with present-day economic needs, all labor, organized or not, would be guaranteed an adequate subsistance in old age, labor autocrats would lack a reason for being, and management would find themselves unable to employ lockout tactics against a Federal statute.

"Hunting The Ark"

I have read with much interest the scholarly letter of Mr. John M. McKinney on hunting the Ark, appearing in your issue of September 17. Now we may look forward to an effort by Mr. McKinney to belittle the exploits of Mr. Paul Bunyan, which should be much easier for him, since these stories have not been believed near as long as the story about the Ark has.

Some figures may help clarify the problem of the great flood.

1. The atmosphere of the earth weighs about as much as a 30-foot column of water. Even if the entire atmosphere were water vapor it could not cause a mountainous flood.

Actually, only a tiny fraction of the atmosphere is water vapor. If uniformly condensed, the atmospheric humidity would produce a layer of only 1.5 to 2.5 inches of water over the earth's surface. A universal rain of 3 inches per hour, as imagined by your correspondent, would stop within less than an hour for lack of atmospheric moisture. In order to make a 15,000-foot rain theoretically possible we would have to assume an atmosphere about 100,000 times its present volume.

2. The biblical story does not claim, however, that the flood was exclusively or even overwhelmingly rain-created. Genesis tells explicitly that God opened the rain locks above and the water locks of the depth. Thus, the rain may have been not much more than a make-believe (fed through rapid reevaporation of the downpouring water), while the earth actually was being inundated with ground water from huge subterranean caves that caved in under the weight of overlaying mountains. While geologists have not found a trace of such gigantic cave-ins nor any reason why such huge water reservoirs should have formed in the first place, lack of proof would not in itself invalidate the theory.

What does invalidate the story, however, is the fact that not a trace of the flood-waters can be found at present. What became of those enormous water masses when the flood subsided? They did not evaporate; the atmosphere does not contain that much water. They did not form the oceans; all the ocean water combined does not account for more than a minor fraction of the flood torrents that covered the earth to a uniform depth of 15,000 feet.

School Bickering

I am rapidly getting fed up with Adelbert Lee's personal feud with Dr. Hobart M. Corning. The city went to some trouble to get a capable, educated administrator, and most of us feel we have one in Dr. Corning. Certainly no city in the United States poses the problems that Washington does, for here the citizens have no say in the Government and we must depend upon the whims of Congress for rules and regulations as well as finances.

The vast majority of the school teachers—to my knowledge, for I hold a doctor's degree—are back of Dr. Corning. They are not in favor of making the school board a combined gestapo, inquisition and military clique.

This eternal bickering should end. This is a big city—let's have big men at the head of our educational system.

"The Navy's Role"

Your September 14 editorial, "The Navy's Role," commended Captain Crommelin for his courage and honesty but questioned the wisdom and propriety of his statement. Is a man then unwise to speak out against that which he considers a threat to his country? It is improper for an American citizen to express his opinion on a matter of national concern?

You say that the Unification Act is the "law of the land" and that Captain Crommelin apparently has never accepted this fact. Does passage of a law prevent full and free discussion of its merits or weaknesses after the fact? How then are the people to know if a law is effective? Or are we to accept this unification as a fact, even though it has created disunity and bitterness such as has never before existed in our armed services?

Concern for his country's safety compelled John Crommelin to speak. Let Congress examine the matter in the light of this fact. Let it look carefully at this unification which disunites and has caused the breakdown and death of an able and devoted public servant. Let it look carefully into the circumstances which led to Mr. Forrestal's breakdown. Let it reexamine this new law it has passed in the light of what is happening under it and consider carefully what could happen under it. Above all, let those who wish to, speak freely and without fear of reprisal and let their statements not be "coordinated" by our Secretary of Defense who, in six months time has brought the establishment he heads to such a deplorable state.

"Cost Of Kashmir"

Your issue of September 20 has a letter from Col. Unni Nayar, public relations officer, Embassy of India, accusing your September 17 editorial, "Cost of Kashmir," of alleged inaccuracies. The charge is a characteristic of the self-righteousness assumed by Indian spokesmen, including Colonel Nayar and his principals, whenever they refer to the Kashmir question.

It is a matter of no small significance that the Indian argument begins and ends with the Kashmir ruler's accession to India. The fact that before the accession the people of Kashmir had rebelled against the Maharaja, the oppression, misrule, frustration and grinding poverty for which he was responsible, finds no mention, nor the fact that the accession was made behind the people's back and against the prevailing sentiment among them—in fact feeling against the accession was and is so strong that it makes the accession no more and no less than a cruel fraud perpetrated on the people.

To supply this lack of people's consent to the accession, Colonel Nayar parades before your readers the "people's government of the State . . . headed by Sheikh Abdullah, a Moslem, who had for 19 years been the acknowledged leader and champion of the people and had spent a number of years in jail fighting for their rights." But this champion of the people's rights and his sponsors, the government of India, do not agree to any workable businesslike method by which a free and impartial plebiscite can be held so that the true nature of this "champion of the people" might be revealed. Up to date, we have had nothing but dilatory tactics designed to delay the plebiscite and avoid it if possible.

"India's stand is clear to discerning observers," says Colonel Nayar. But discerning observers may well ask him: "If it is to be considered as beyond question that India is rightfully in Kashmir, why did India accept the resolutions of the United Nations Commission of August, 1948, and January, 1949? To quote from just one of them, the January resolution lays down the following principle: "The question of the accession of the State of Jammu and Kashmir to India or Pakistan will be decided through the democratic method of a free and impartial plebiscite."

Colonel Nayar himself refers to India as the first who "offered the democratic way of plebiscite." Yet, proposal after proposal suggesting methods for implementing the plebiscite has been rejected by India. The latest proposal was arbitration to settle the terms of the truce agreement which would clear the way for the plebiscite. The President of the United States commended it to India as well as Pakistan. Pakistan accepted the proposal while India has rejected it. But Colonel Nayar has preferred to remain silent about why India shied away from a course leading direct to "the democratic way of a plebiscite."

India's stand is indeed clear to discerning observers. And what is in this stand? It is not just lip service to democratic forms and methods without the least trace of willingness to let them be tried in Kashmir? If India is bent on depriving the people of Kashmir of their birthright to decide their future, Pakistan and its people are determined no less to accept no other solution than a free and impartial plebiscite.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Beria Bomb: I

THE TIMETABLE of American strategic planning has been wholly upset by former NKVD chief Lavrenti Beria's success in perfecting a Soviet atomic bomb. The Joint Chiefs of Staff picked 1952, rather than 1949, as the year in which Soviet atomic stock-piling was likely to begin. This means simply that the timetable must be drastically revised, if the strategic balance of power is not to shift disastrously in favor of the Kremlin.

Beria's triumph does not mean that the balance of power has already shifted, overnight. There is still some time in which either to achieve an agreement with the Russians on control of atomic energy, or else to confront the Russians with overwhelming power, despite their possession of an atomic stockpile. These are, clearly, our only remaining alternatives. How much time we have left depends largely on how quickly the Russians can overcome two obstacles.

The first of these is the problem of raw materials. Unless American and British information is disastrously wrong, the Russians are confronted with a serious shortage of uranium and thorium. Their main sources are the Erzegebirge mines in the Soviet zone of Germany and the Jacymov mines in Czechoslovakia. There are believed to be subsidiary sources in eastern Europe, Turkestan, Sinkiang, Siberia and Central Russia. But the fissionable material in these secondary sources is limited and of very low grade.

Even the German and Czech mines are not nearly as rich as Anglo-American sources in the Belgian Congo and Canada. To produce the material for the Beria bomb, the German and Czech mines have had to be worked with a total disregard for human life. The raw material has been almost literally clawed out of the earth, at a cost of an estimated 10,000 deaths a month.

THIS RAW MATERIAL shortage provides, of course, no grounds for complacency. Even if the main German and Czech mines run out, geologists believe that sooner or later rich deposits are certain to be found in the vast land mass controlled by the Kremlin. But the experts do believe that the present shortage of raw material will slow the rate at which the Soviets can expect to build a decisive stockpile of bombs.

The second obstacle which Beria and his colleagues of the Politburo must overcome is the problem of delivery. Until well after the end of the war, the Russians had no strategic air force. But within the last two years, for reasons which are now obvious, they have concentrated their attention on heavy bombers. The Russian bombers are patterned on three American B-29s, which fell into Russian hands during the war. Air Force Intelligence has estimated that the Russians now have about 300 of these bombers.

This small strategic bomber force is considered insufficient for a decisive surprise attack on the United States. One-way flights would be possible from existing Soviet bases. But American defense forces would have sufficient warning so that the comparatively slow Soviet bombers could be knocked out of the skies before more than a tiny handful of planes approached their targets.

There are other means of delivery. One possible technique is to smuggle bomb parts into a great city—say New York—the parts to be brought together later and detonated. But again, according to experts, it would be enormously difficult to deliver a single bomb in this way. To deliver a number sufficient to achieve a knockout blow would be impossible.

The Soviets are known to have been working feverishly on the German-developed supersonic rockets. If these rockets could be fitted with an atomic warhead, it would be virtually impossible to defend western Europe, and ultimately the United States, from surprise attack. But the experts are certain the Soviets have not yet solved the immense problems involved in atomic rockets, and will not soon do so.

ALL THIS MEANS that there is still some time—though no one cares to guess how much—in which Americans can sleep fairly easily in their beds. For the western Europeans, there is not even this consolation. With only a few bombs in his stockpile, Beria could destroy Paris or Rome almost without opposition.

Western strategy has been based on the assumption that western Europe could be put in a position of defense by the mid-fifties, when Soviet atomic stockpiling was expected to get really under way. The whole effort to place Europe in a defense posture must now clearly be redoubled, with heavy emphasis on tactical air defense. Otherwise we must be prepared to see mounting pressure in western Europe to settle with the Kremlin on the Kremlin's terms.

Nor is this all. The military organization of the whole western world must be made so strong that the Kremlin will not dare to challenge it, even with surprise attack and atomic bombs. If this is really to be done, the United States must now make a production effort comparable to wartime. Even this, of course, will promise no real security. Indeed, unless the Soviet Union can somehow be brought to agree to effective control of atomic energy, there will be no real security for anyone, anywhere, any more.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Whither Britain?

THE WAY in which the monetary crisis was handled has jarred the solidarity of the Atlantic community, and has raised questions about British and American intentions which, if they are not answered convincingly, will impair it. The devaluation of a world currency like the pound sterling, though unavoidable, was bound in itself to unsettle the markets and the internal financial position of all of Europe and much of Asia, and of much else besides. But the business was conducted in such a way as to create the dangerous impression that Britain, Canada, and the United States are now an exclusive club within the Atlantic community.

Lippmann

If that impression becomes a general conviction, the fine promises and hopes of the Marshall Plan, the Brussels Pact, the Atlantic Pact and of the European movement will go down in cynicism and suspicion.

NO ONE will suppose that the sterling area crisis could have been handled by a town meeting of the 50-odd governments involved in it. The dollar and the pound sterling are the two key currencies, and therefore intimate and confidential discussions between Washington and London were in the first instance necessary. But since so many other countries were so vitally concerned, it was necessary to convince them that London and Washington were not acting together behind their backs, but were in fact imbued with the public spirit which, as leading members of the Atlantic community, they have a special obligation to exhibit.

A QUITE candid report of the Bevin-Cripps mission to Washington would have to say that little was done to reassure the other governments, to make them believe that, when the chips are down, London and Washington take their membership in the Atlantic community seriously enough. A candid report would have to say that too many British officials connected with the mission made known their feeling that what pleased them most about the talks was not the substantive measures agreed upon, but the fact that the talks were exclusive. A good part of the strange optimism, which had so little justification in the announced agreements or in the actual prospect of devaluation, was in fact derived from the wishful notion that for all great matters of world policy the United States had now accepted a working arrangement in which agreement between London and Washington would precede consultation and negotiation with their other partners and allies.

Thus the British decision to devalue was communicated to the United States long before it was communicated to the others. The other Finance Ministers were taken by surprise. Many of them were caught off base in Washington when they should have been at home to deal with their own forced devaluation. All that can, perhaps, be excused as an unfortunate necessity. But the bitter pill was not sweetened by the inspired comment about the success of the secret talks, nor by the leak which, if it was not calculated was not disavowed, about how the planners of U. S. policy in the State Department had decided to form two groups in the Atlantic world—the one consisting of the English-speaking nations, the other to be formed on the continent with France "taking the lead."

THIS FED the two deepest suspicions and anxieties of Europe. The one is that the British Labor government is only meddling in European union, and that its real policy is to cut itself loose from Europe, which is poor and divided, in order to seek salvation in a special union with the United States, which is strong and rich. The suspicion is not unfounded. For in Europe Bevin and Cripps are regarded as insular and imperial, and not in fact as good Europeans. Their actions in Washington verified the belief, which has been current since the war, that they have participated in European collaboration under the Marshall Plan reluctantly because of American pressure, and in the European movement because of Mr. Churchill and of world opinion.

The other suspicion which was fed by the Washington talks is that the United States is deeply tempted to abandon the continent and to embark on a new career as the heir of, or at least as the very senior partner in, the British Empire. Now it is a fact that in the liquidation of the British imperial connections in Asia and the Middle East the United States is bound to assume new responsibilities. But this development is dangerously prejudiced and complicated by the views attributed by the Alsop brothers to Mr. George F. Kennan in their article of September 2, just before the arrival of the Bevin-Cripps mission. Though it was obviously not based on full information—the article said, for example, that Sir Stafford Cripps was "still firmly opposed to devaluation"—it could not have been written without some knowledge, at first or second hand, of Mr. Kennan's views. And since it has not been disavowed, the Foreign Offices of the whole world are now wondering whether it is our intention to divide the Atlantic community into two blocs.

LET US pray that this is not the British or the American intention. Nor will it be, I believe, when it has been scrutinized and debated. What this "bold concept", as the Alsop brothers described it, would mean to Europe was succinctly outlined a few days later by Mr. David Eccles, one of the distinguished young Conservatives, in a letter to the London Times: "If Britain withdraws from the Continent, all Europe must soon be dominated either by the Russians or the Germans. I think by the Germans. They are recovering fast . . . which way Germany goes, west or east, now hangs in the balance."

What this bold concept would mean for Britain should, once it is explained, insure its rejection. If Britain turns its back upon the great task of uniting the sterling area and the free nations of Europe, she will have refused the mission and declined the only destiny in which her greatness can be renewed. Her future as an historic state and the prospects of the well-being of the British people will be very dim indeed. For in a "union" between the gigantic economic power of the United States and of the British economy as it is today, there can be no true partnership of equals. No amount of tact and good will could disguise or long prevent the inexorable consequence of such a union: the reduction of the United Kingdom to an American dependency in which we, who would be paying the piper, would be calling the tune. The British nation is not, we may be confident, prepared to resign and to retire as a great power in the world, and to be pensioned off by the United States.

FOR THIS conception of their future is the nadir of defeatism, appeasement, and of moral surrender—and it is an economic monstrosity as well.

Cost of Constructing House Cut $1140 Since Last Year

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—The house that cost $12,420 to build last September can now be put up for $11,280 almost anywhere in the country, an authoritative trade publication said today. The same house would have cost $6000 in 1941.

Myron L. Matthews, writing in the Dow Service Daily Building Reports, said on the surface a prospective investor in a new house could have saved $100 a month simply by waiting.

He added, however, that analysis showed that of the $1,140 saving in the last year, $855, of it accumulated between last September and March $285 from March to the present.

The Dow figures came from a Nation-wide construction cost survey in which 132 cities were included.

The over-all building cost reduction for the 48 States has been 2.3 percent since March, Matthews said. The reduction for the 12 months ending September 30 is 9.3 percent.

The general level of building costs today in relation to 1941 is up 88 percent. Last September costs were 107 percent above prewar.

The percentage reduction in building costs in September, 1949, under the same month of 1948 by regions; metropolitan New York-New Jersey, 8 percent; New England, 10 percent; North Central and Eastern States, 8.9 percent; South Central and Southeastern States, 8.5; Mississippi River and West Central States, 9.7, and Rocky Mountain and West Coast States, 10.8.

were also guarding Mrs. Marguerite Pitre, 41, described as a former mistress of the jeweler.

Police explained that Mrs. Pitre was Guay's mistress in Quebec City and Miss Robitaille his mistress in Seven Islands. They said Mrs. Pitre, who has been married to her present husband about a year, maintained her own home while going out with Guay.

Police revealed today that Mrs. Pitre was seen with Guay at the railway station here a few minutes before she left in a taxi for the airport with the bomb package.

They said witnesses had seen Guay give her the package, with these instructions: "Get there fast and don't miss the plane."

Taxi driver Paul Pelletier, who helped police crack the case, said Mrs. Pitre told him to drive fast but carefully.

"This does not contain eggs," Pelletier said she told him as she balanced the package gingerly on her lap.

'Grass Roots'

GOP Parley Hopeful on Farm Vote

Sioux City, Iowa, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Republican leaders, confident that they impressed Midwestern farmers in a two-day "grass-roots" conference here, said today they believed they have improved the party's prospects of capturing the farm vote in 1950.

National GOP Chairman Guy Gabrielson was more outspoken. He predicted a "Republican Congress" after the elections, but added that the party would not be lulled by "over-confidence."

Other leaders believed, at least, that chances had been improved for breaking the apparent Democratic hold on the farm vote.

Plan "Positive" Program

As the conference ended, however, they said the most important development of the parley may be the crystallization of a "positive" GOP farm program, rather than mere opposition to the Democratic Brannan Plan.

Chairman Axel Beck, National committeeman from South Dakota, said he hoped to see the GOP act soon to take farm legislation "out of the field of politics," and would work toward that end.

Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.) also promised the conference that ideas presented here would be distilled into a positive GOP program.

The GOP frankly had wanted to find out the secret of winning the farm vote when they opened their two-day conference Friday.

Favor Price Supports

Some delegates were openly disgruntled at President Truman's announcement of the atomic explosion in Russia which they felt was timed especially to take the GOP out of the headlines.

GOP chieftains believed as a result of the conference that the majority opinion showed a preference for continued price supports, a dislike for the direct subsidies of the Brannan plan, a demand for "permanent" legislation rather than stopgap measures, and a desire for as little Government control as possible.

Dairy Prices About to Rise, Government Forecasters Say

By The Associated Press

Housewives will pay somewhat more for milk and dairy products this fall—but the level will still be below that of a year ago, the Agriculture Department said yesterday.

The price increase forecast was based on a seasonally smaller output. A year ago there were relatively sharp declines in prices for these products.

In early September the average retail price of milk in 24 cities was 20.1 cents a quart compared with 19.9 in June and 21.6 in September, 1948.

The department report said it has purchased a total of about 92 million dollars worth of dairy products up to mid-September in carrying out price support law operations.

These purchases included 76 million pounds of butter, 332 million pounds of non-fat dry milk solids and 23 million pounds of cheese.

NAM Reports Trend To Stable Prices

New York, Sept. 25 (AP). — The National Association of Manufacturers said today there is considerable evidence that the Nation's economy is moving steadily toward price stabilization.

This was indicated, the NAM said, by a study of recent changes in production, productivity, prices, profits, jobs and wages.

Manufacturers' prices now average 9 percent below the August, 1948 top, the NAM said.

NAM Managing Director Earl Bunting said, "This should answer the statements in some quarters that industry has been curtailing production in order to maintain prices."

said he was glad last year to have Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) "take some of my proposals" and that "I am glad to add my amendments to his bill at this time." Aiken is ranking Republican member of the Agriculture Committee.

Other Washington sources said yesterday that Secretary Brannan, who was Assistant Secretary of Agriculture under Anderson, helped draft the recommendations submitted last year to the Senate committee. The recommendations were understood at that time to have White House approval.

When asked yesterday why the Administration this year executed an "about-face" and advanced a new farm program, Anderson asserted: "I guess the best person to tell you that would be the Administration. I don't know why it starts on a wholly new farm program. As a matter of fact, I think the farm program from 1933 on has been a pretty good program."

$150,000 Beltsville Fire Believed Incendiary

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

ROOF OF THE AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT GRANARY COLLAPSES (RIGHT) IN THE BLAZE WHICH RAZED THE BUILDING AT BELTSVILLE EARLY SUNDAY

Eight firemen were injured and $150,000 damage was done by a fire, possibly of incendiary origin, which destroyed the granary of the Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., early yesterday.

The fire was discovered shortly before 1 a. m. by employes of the Sidney Lust Open Air Theater nearby, who had to stop the show because the glare obscured the screen.

A two-story mill at one end of the shed also was involved in the fire, but the firemen managed to salvage machinery valued at approximately $15,000. Four nearby concrete silos loaded with grain valued at another $40,000 also were saved from damage.

Hose lines were strung from the Beltsville shopping center about a mile away and water was pumped from two creeks in the rear of the fire and from the research center water system.

More than a score of firemen were endangered when the walls of the storage shed were blown out by exploding grains inside. The grain was like buckshot, police said. Fortunately the force of the explosion was directed away fro mthe firemen who were working at walls a short distance away.

Traffic was diverted behind the Beltsville shopping center because of the hose lines across the road and was halted on Cook rd., which passes alongside the granary. Thousands of motorists and moviegoers from the Lust Theater lined the boulevard and Cook rd. to watch the fire.

The granary was jammed with cottonseed meal, bran, alfalfa meal, soybean meal, salt and practically every known animal feed, as well as machinery.

The damage was fixed at $150,000, including $20,000 for the contents of the granary, by C. A. Logan, superintendent of the research center, which is operated by the Agriculture Department.

Chief George W. Beers of the research center fire department said he and Fire Chief Joseph Porter of Branchville Volunteer Fire Department and other officials had checked out every possible cause of the fire but were unable to find any logical reason for it. He indicated the fire might have been of incendiary origin.

Among the more seriously injured firemen were:

Fire Chief William Walker of Berwyn Heights VFD, who stepped on a nail, causing a gash in his foot.

Capt. John Walker, brother of Chief Walker, whose hands were torn on corrugated tin.

Pvt. Pat Sanders of the Hyattsville Fire Department, who also stepped on a nail and cut his foot.

Pvt. Lawrence Leigh of the Berwyn Heights VFD was treated at the scene for a slashed left wrist.

Prince Georges Chamber to Have 1st Fall Meeting

Two business leaders of suburban Maryland will address the first fall meeting of the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce at 7 o'clock tonight at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club, Landover, Md.

T. Howard Duckett, banker, attorney and civic leader, will talk on the development and promotion of Prince Georges County.

Col. E. Brooke Lee, Montgomery County real estate developer and civic leader, will discuss the business development of the suburban areas of the two counties and the need for unity between the counties.

Nicholas Orem, jr., president, announced that nonmembers will be welcome. Those who cannot attend the dinner can hear the talks at 8:15 p. m., he said. A campaign for new members will be carried on this month.

County Choral Group To Rehearse Tuesday

The first rehearsal of a county-wide mixed choral group, sponsored by the Montgomery Junior College, will be held Tuesday from 8:15 until 10:30 p. m. in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, East-West highway.

Mrs. Ruth L. Morgan will direct the chorus, which is planning to sing Fauer's Requiem with the Montgomery Symphony orchestra in the spring. Mrs. Morgan is director of the Federal Security Employes Association choral group and the Newcomb Bethesda Community Singers.

Persecutors Bound To Fail, Priest Says

By D. C. Pastor

Catholicism Compared to Communism

The Roman Catholic hierachy is "more dangerous and clever than communism," a rally of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State was told here last night.

The charges were hurled by Dr. C. Stanley Lowell, pastor of the Wesley Methodist Church and author of "A Summons to Protestantism," before an audience of more than 900 in the Sligo Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Carroll and Flower aves., Takoma Park, Md.

After comparing the Roman Catholic religion with Japanese Shintoism and communism, Dr. Lewell declared that "present Roman Catholic strategy" in the United States is designed to bring about a "yoke of spiritual totalitarianism such as is now in evidence in Spain."

In Spain, the speaker asserted, the Roman Catholic Church is all-powerful and all freedoms, particularly religious freedom, are gone.

"I have documented evidence," Dr. Lowell declared, "that Protestant groups receive far better treatment in Russia than they do there."

At another point the speaker charged that the hierarchy is "battling doggedly for tax funds to run their schools.

"Granting of funds to this church for its schools would be a legal recognition of the church, which is the first step toward establishing Roman Catholicism here."

Others who participated in the rally were Dr. Frank Yost, associate secretary of the General Conference of Seventh Day Adventists; the Rev. Mr. Ned S. Ashton, pastor of the Takoma Park Adventist Church and Dr. Glenn Archer, executive director, POAU.

Persecutors of the Roman Catholic Church yesterday were branded as "dumb and stupid" by a priest who asserted that attempts to cripple or exterminate the church are doomed to failure.

Preaching at St. Matthew's Cathedral, 1727 Rhode Island ave. nw., the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, dean of the school of philosophy at Catholic University, pointed out that Jesus predicted that the church would be persecuted.

Quoting from the Book of Matthew that "the gates of hell shall not prevail" against the church, Father Smith declared that it gives Catholics "untold happiness to know that the attempts to cripple or exterminate the church today will be as futile as have been attempts of the last 1900 years."

"Why can't bigotry and atheism learn this? Why does persecution around the world and here in our own country continue to be so dumb and stupid?" he asked.

The church, he said, will multiply and grow even faster under persecution than in times of "serenity and peace."

"They are really amateurs in this country who attempt to hamper the growth of the Catholic Church by unfair legislation against its education, by smearing it with slanders about its alleged but unproven desire to get control of our government," the priest said.

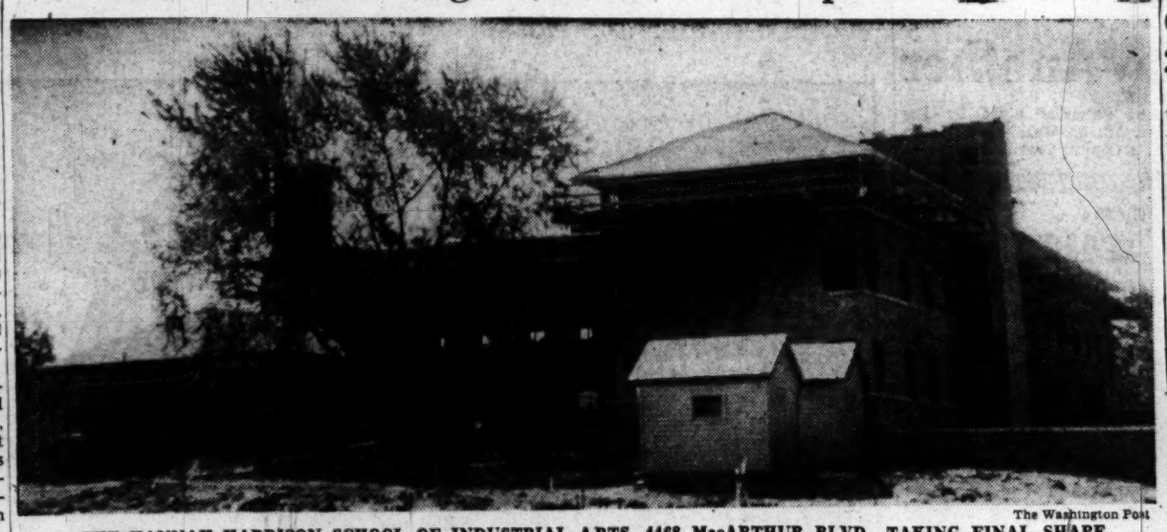
Father Smith traced the history of unsuccessful persecution and opposition to the Catholic church from the time of the Romans to the present.

"Now it is communism that attacks the church throughout the world and here in the United States," he said. "And in the world at large and here in our own Nation communism is not without its spectators who are opposed to its tenets but hopeful for its success in its efforts to exterminate the Catholic faith."

"No coalition of human or satanic power can conquer God," he declared.

The sermon was given at a service commemorating the Feast of St. Matthew the Apostle. The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, presided and the Right Rev. John K. Cartwright, rector of the cathedral, was the celebrant.

Endowed Girls' Training School Nears Completion



The Washington Post

THE HANNAH HARRISON SCHOOL OF INDUSTRIAL ARTS, 4468 MacARTHUR BLVD., TAKING FINAL SHAPE

They're pouring the roof on the Hannah Harrison School of Industrial Arts at 4468 MacArthur blvd. nw., and in just a few months Julius Garfinckel's multimillion-dollar memorial to his mother will be in operation.

Early in 1950, according to the newly appointed director, Miss Augusta H. Clawson, the building will be opened as "a school and home in which worthy young women dependent on their own livelihood may obtain proper training in useful arts and industries" without cost.

That was the department store founder's intent, as stated in his will, for which he supplied a three-million-dollar trust fund, and a half million dollars to build and equip the school.

Committees of the YWCA, which Garfinckel had selected to carry out his bequest, have been working on the project for 13 years, ever since Garfinckel's death. The school was named for his mother.

The will provided for a "healthful and attractive" atmosphere. The building, now almost completed, will therefore have single rooms for 50 girls, a large living room-library, a basement recreation room with a small diningroom-kitchen for parties, and an infirmary on the third floor.

Garfinckel also wanted the training offered to be useful. And so, Miss Clawson won't know what sort of machinery will go into the five large workshops until she finds out what type of skills are most sought after by industry.

She says she wants to be sure that the school's trainees will be equipped for work for which there's a demand and which pays a living wage. Tentatively, she feels plans for courses in retailing, office practice, food and needle trades are justified.

Who can go to the Hannah Harrison School? Although no hard and fast rules have been set, Miss Clawson says the training will be offered to women "who could benefit by it, who need it, who couldn't obtain it themselves, and in personality, persons who are well worth helping."

While the school is set up for a maximum of 50 trainees, the load will be kept at 30 for about the first year, Miss Clawson said.

For a faculty she hopes to have a small nucleus staff with "broad horizontal backgrounds," and a staff of specialists recruited directly from the industries which are being taught.

Geared to Individuals

With so small a group, Miss Clawson believes the curriculum can be geared to individual needs and capacities, so that each applicant will be screened to determine which skills might be most advantageously developed.

Formal applications are not being accepted yet, but the director says she will welcome inquiries from prospective applicants.

More specific plans and policies for the school are expected to be worked out at a policy meeting of Miss Clawson and other YWCA officials scheduled for October 17.

County to Hear 2 WCTU Speakers

Dr. Frederick W. Smith, secretary of the Temperance League of America, and Mrs. Charles H. Wagner, president of the WCTU of Maryland, will address the annual convention of the Prince Georges County, Md., WCTU Thursday at Riverdale Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Wagner will speak at the afternoon meeting which begins at 2 p. m. Reports of officers and election of officers also will be held at the afternoon session. Dr. Smith will address the dinner session, which will begin at 6 p. m. at the church.

Couple Picks Bank To Neck, Routed as Robbery Suspects

Morgantown, W. Va., Sept. 24 (AP).—When a man and a woman picked out a loan company office tonight to do a little necking, little did they think they would be suspected of attempting to rob a bank.

Police Lieut. Fred Demoss said he spotted the man and woman inside the old bank of Morgantown building, which houses the Citizens Industrial Loan Co., about 9:30 p. m.

He released them after quoting them that they had remained in the building when the doors were closed at 7 p. m. "To do a little necking."

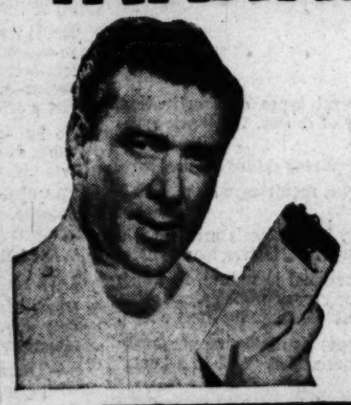
Noted Throat Specialists report on 30-Day Test of Camel Smokers . . .
NOT ONE SINGLE CASE OF THROAT IRRITATION due to smoking CAMELS!



Yes, these were the findings of noted throat specialists after a total of 2,470 weekly examinations of the throats of hundreds of men and women who smoked Camels—and only Camels—for 30 consecutive days.

Long Island housewife EDNA WRIGHT made the 30-Day Test. Her throat specialist reported no sign of throat irritation due to smoking Camels.
MY DOCTOR'S REPORT WAS NO SURPRISE TO ME...CAMELS AGREED WITH MY THROAT RIGHT FROM THE START! AND CAMELS MAKE SMOKING SUCH WONDERFUL FUN!

THOUSANDS MORE AGREE!

"The 30-Day Test opened my eyes! Smoking is really fun when I smoke Camels!" Skater Jinx Clark.

"How long have I smoked Camels? Years! Camels suit me to a 'T'!" Adam Tomey, bridge maintenance.

"Camels passed my smoking test 100%! They agree with my throat and taste so good!" Pilot Mary Morrison.

"My test of Camels has been going on for years! And Camel cheers my taste!" Golfer Gene Sarazen.

"Camels gave me a lesson in smoking pleasure. They taste good and mild!" Telephone operator Rita Edwards.

"Mildest cigarette I ever smoked! A change to Camels was for the better!" Billiard star Willie Mosconi.

"I made my own test. I found Camels the mildest, best-tasting cigarette!" Mary Goodfellow, hat designer.

"I never knew how enjoyable smoking could be until I changed to Camels!" Gladys Swarthout, opera star.

"I changed my ideas about smoking enjoyment when I changed to Camels. They taste so good!" Mrs. Orson Munn, Jr., socialite.

"Personally, I've found the answer to a milder, better-tasting smoke. I'd walk a mile for a Camel!" Aqua-ski star Bill Hatfield.

Start your own 30-Day Camel Mildness Test Today!
You have the word of Camel smokers . . . of noted throat specialists, too . . . but prove it for yourself. Smoke Camels for 30 days. Compare them in your "T-Zone" (T for taste, T for throat). See if you don't agree that Camels are the mildest, best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked!

Woman Reports Holdup by Another

THE MAN WHO—

—mopped his brow

A daylight street holdup of one woman by another was reported to police yesterday.

Miss Margith H. Krogh, 42, of 1750 16th st. nw., a Department of Agriculture employe, said she was walking about 3 p. m. in the 1700 block of S st. nw. when the holdup occurred.

She said a woman approached her from the rear, jammed a hard object in her back, and demanded $10. Miss Krogh opened her purse, she told officers, and handed over $3. The woman then fled southward on New Hampshire ave., she said.

She described her assailant as a young Negro woman, short and plump, wearing a green jacket and dark skirt.

Police yesterday turned over to juvenile authorities three boys, 11, 13 and 15 years old, whom they arrested Saturday night after a purse-snatching. Miss Jacqueline Plankey, 4000 33d st., Mount Rainier, Md., told officers she was walking near North Capitol and M sts. when three boys snatched her purse containing $4.

When police arrived, they said, they saw the 11-year-old, who as lurking nearby, suddenly flee. They caught him and said he implicated the other two, who were arrested later.

A "hit-and-run" robbery was reported Saturday night by Roy Cline, 26, of Washington Grove, Md., a Capital Transit bus driver.

Police Probe 'Mysterious' Death of Man

Police yesterday were investigating the mysterious death of a man identified as Edward H. Haines, 30, of 456 M st. nw.

Police said they received a call about 1:40 a. m., that a man lay on the sidewalk at 8th and O sts. nw. When they arrived, they found a man with a deep cut in his forehead.

When he was taken to Emergency Hospital, it was found he also had a bullet wound in his abdomen. He died at 4:30 a. m. without regaining consciousness. Detectives said they learned that he was a dairy truck driver, when he was identified several hours after his death. Last night police had been unable to throw any light on the shooting.

Two brothers were under arrest yesterday afternoon, each on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. They are Roy Free, 29, and Prince Free, 35, both of 1260 Owen pl. ne. Police found Roy Free at his home with a head wound which they said had been inflicted by Prince Free, with a small plastic statute. They said Prince Free told them Roy had a gun, and he struck in self defense.

Roy Free was in serious condition at Gallinger Hospital with a possible skull fracture, and was held for police on the assault charge. Prince was in jail on similar charge.

Milk-Bottle Slaying Case to Be Heard Today

A special Alexandria grand jury today is scheduled to consider a murder charge against Mrs. Ruth Maxwell, 28, in the milk-bottle death of her husband, Corpl. Gardner Maxwell, July 30.

Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith, jr., said the jury originally was to convene next month, but the date was advanced at the request of Mrs. Maxwell's attorney, Walter I. Young, who asked that she be given an early trial. Young based his request on the fact that the woman has been denied bond, and already has spent nearly two months in jail.

Mrs. Maxwell is accused of slaying her husband with a milk bottle during an altercation outside their rooming house at 732 N. Washington st.

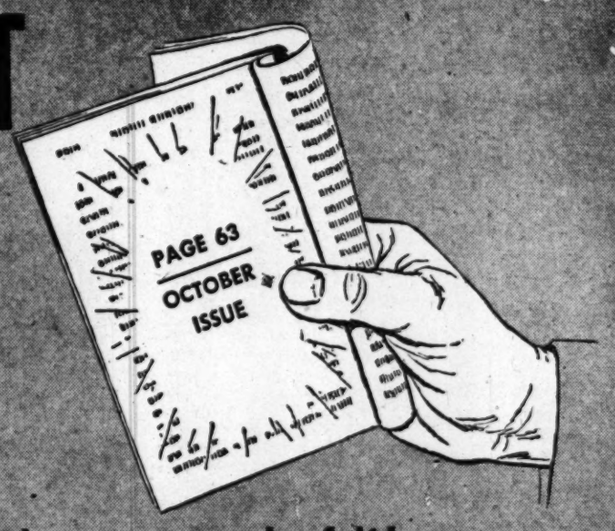
READER'S DIGEST
Reveals the Truth about Laxatives



Every man and woman should read every word of it!

We believe we owe it to those who suffer from constipation to publish, in addition, our message on this vital subject.
Union Pharmaceutical Co., Inc.

HOW TO LEARN TO LIVE AGAIN

The pace of modern living has been blamed for many things. And those who have blamed it have been very often right.

Our lives today have become so intricate, so complicated with daily problems our grandparents never knew existed, that it is little wonder so many long for the "good old days"—when life was simple, and hustle-and-bustle unknown.

We have even envied the caveman—who took life and death as he found it, ate his food raw, and, as the saying goes, "got plenty of roughage" in his diet.

Doctors know that the digestive system is strongly influenced by proper food, regularity and rest.

Their ideal "prescription" for maintaining natural elimination is: (a) Eat a balanced diet at regular hours; (b) Drink plenty of water daily; (c) Get at least 8 hours sleep; (d) Take regular exercise; (e) Always obey the urge to eliminate waste; (f) Don't worry over problems you cannot immediately solve.

Few of us, obey these health commandments. Worst of all, we let worry get the better of us almost daily.

Thus, it is said, civilization has been the underlying cause of most constipation—because today's scanty, hurriedly eaten meals do not supply the bulk necessary to proper elimination, and physical exercise is limited to an occasional dip in the lake or a weekly round of golf.

Hence: Constipation!

Actually, there are several types of constipation, springing from a variety of causes. Two basic types are common:

1. The organic type, requiring skilled medical care.
2. The "functional" type, requiring wise mechanical correction.

The first type, obviously, is a doctor's problem. No mere "laxative" is enough to be of lasting benefit here.

But the second type, functional in nature, in which the intestines fail to do their work properly, can often be justly blamed on the nerve-wracking life we lead.

The end of each day leaves us so tense, so nervously exhausted, that every muscle feels "tied in a knot."

• • • •

Stop and think, for a moment, how you spend an average day.

Instead of obeying the common sense health commandments of the medical profession, here is what happens:

You rise in the morning; often startled out of a sound sleep by the alarm-clock or a sudden knock on your door.

You rush to dress. You gulp breakfast, or all too often skip it. You rush for a train or bus, or to get the children off to school. Then the office, or a mad race against time—housecleaning, shopping, cooking, washing, a thousand-and-one daily tasks no caveman nor grandparent was ever faced with. Lunch? You hadn't time; or at best you "grabbed a sandwich."

If you were lucky, you read or lay down for half-an-hour in the afternoon. Then comes the wind-up of the daylight hours. Children home. Trains to catch or meet. Dinner to prepare. Dishes to wash. And hurry—you're playing bridge this evening.

Finally you fall into bed—knowing that tomorrow you will repeat the same frantic pattern. Strain, pressure, rush, hurry. Every muscle straining to go faster, faster.

That's the answer to the second type of constipation. Sheer nerve-ridden muscular tension that prevents the intestines from properly doing their work.

No wonder 4 out of 5 suffer from constipation.

• • • •

But this muscular tension is only the beginning. You can rush and hurry for years, and except for the occasional type of sluggishness, feel no real ill effect.

But sooner or later, you realize that your intestinal elimination is getting more and more out of whack.

You're just rushed, you think—that's all. You haven't taken the time to attend to this function. Wastes remain too long in the lower intestinal tract. Something must be done about it—fast.

So, to get quick action, you take the kind of harsh, drug-type laxative that "works fast." And you get two kinds of results.

You get the fast action, of course.

But the faster you get it, the more likely you are to start a chain of circumstances that in time can make you a chronic sufferer.

For the faster many of these drugs act, the more probable it is that they contain harsh chemicals, scratchy particles, or violent purges which may (a) bring on a digestive disturbance; (b) irritate an already over-sensitive intestinal tract; (c) cause a further slackening of intestinal activity.

It is self-evident that by doing this same thing, again and again, first at occasional intervals and then with increasing frequency, one can bring on a chronic condition calling for long and expensive medical treatment.

• • • •

This is not to imply that all laxatives cause this unfortunate result. There are many products available through your doctor or druggist, which do not have all of these drawbacks.

But it is a fact that many of the pills, liquids and salts in common use today contain irritating, griping, violent-acting ingredients—designed for fast one-time action—which if persisted in will form the vicious circle of dosage and more dosage.

No harsh "laxative," in the ordinary sense of the word, can overcome this chronic condition nor break this vicious circle.

The opposite kind of product—which acts without griping, irritation, scratching or violent purging—is called for in cases like these.

What is this opposite kind of product?

Let's review the requirements and see.

Obviously, it must contain no ingredient that can unduly aggravate the already over-sensitive intestinal muscular condition.

—Therefore, it should contain no harsh chemicals, purgatives, seeds or scratchy roughage.

Obviously, it must encourage the muscles of the intestinal tract to do their work in their own natural way, thus helping to reestablish the functional rhythm which every normal human being should have.

—Therefore, it should afford some means of gently and mechanically urging the intestinal muscles to self-regulated action.

Obviously, it must not interfere with absorption of essential body elements which normally are retained in the intestines.

—Therefore (unlike improperly taken mineral oils) it should allow complete absorption of the essential Vitamin A.

Obviously, it must contain a bland mass bulkage which will not interfere with the resumption of the normal intestinal rhythm, and which will give the expulsion muscles at the end of the intestinal tract something to work on.

—Therefore, it should expand, on contact with water and the digestive juices, into a smooth mass called "softage" that glides easily along the intestinal wall.

This "opposite" type of product must be pleasant, efficient and economical to take. It must produce no violence, pain, or embarrassing urgency. And it must be sufficiently positive in action to relieve constipation promptly—not with "laxative" speed but within 24 hours or less.

This type of product is both safe and effective in helping to correct constipation.

All of these requirements are met by Saraka, recommended and prescribed by thousands of physicians for the past 15 years.

It is proper, of course, to class Saraka in the so-called laxative field. But, Saraka does not (in the accepted sense) give the laxative type of results.

On the contrary, Saraka is the direct opposite of the harsher types of laxatives designed to quickly overcome a temporary condition—preparations whose habitual use can so aggravate this condition that "the remedy is worse than the ill." Saraka starts immediately to aid in the restoration of the functional rhythm to which the intestines were accustomed, before the fast pace of modern living threw them off the track.

Here are the facts about Saraka:

1. It forms bland, gliding "softage," 20 times its original bulk, which with gentle persistence allows the weakened, irritated or tensed-up intestines to get back to work as soon as they are able to do so.
2. It works so pleasantly that you forget you have taken anything at all—no griping, no urgency.
3. It acts with satisfying thoroughness; you feel the pleasant relief that comes with regularity.
4. It leaves no exhausting after-effect.
5. It usually acts with greater promptness than products that depend solely on bulk, mass or roughage for effect.
6. Because of its expansion and efficiency, it is amazingly economical to use.

This last point deserves special mention. A single teaspoonful of Saraka expands to many times its original size. This is due to one of its vegetable ingredients called bassorin. Bassorin has three times the expansion power of plantago (psyllium seed); ten times that of agar; and twenty times that of bran. Bassorin, together with a vegetable intestinal urger called frangula, produces the "bulk plus motility," or mass plus gentle urging, for which Saraka is famous. Together, these two ingredients bring to bear on the intestines a balanced combination which results in more normal, more natural, more regular elimination.

We need not point out the sense of well-being, of mental satisfaction, of aliveness and health, which this regularity brings about in you.

This feeling "sticks out all over you"; makes you feel as though you look better too. A haggard, dragged-out appearance is regarded as the by-product of harsh types of laxatives. Saraka's by-product is the feeling of contentment that comes from satisfactory elimination.

Cards Down Cubs, 6-1; Dodgers Lose to Phils, 5-3

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, MASS., SEPT. 25.—As of this evening, you'd have to say the Red Sox have all the best of it in this death grapple with the Yankees; with those two much-needed victories in Fenway Park safely tucked away, a tie for the league lead finally achieved and the chips riding on the last six games of the season.

Tonight the trains are whooshing toward New York with the two teams aboard, and Yankee Stadium the new locale of the head-to-head struggle that renews tomorrow. The Red Sox are in full cry with a new thirst for those World Series checks, and the Yankees are understandably apprehensive about their chances of beating a club that has just pinned their ears back.

POVICH

The Yanks were never so desperate, the Red Sox never so buoyant. The Boston club has finally collared the Yanks after being 12 games out of it earlier in the season. The pressure is definitely on the Yanks, who must beat back Boston in the single game tomorrow and then take on the Athletics in three games while the Red Sox are engaging the last-place Nats thrice. The A's are the type of club that could take a fall out of the Yankees, and render the last two Yankee-Boston games meaningless.

THERE WERE BOOS today in Fenway Park, apparently without excuse, until the reason was ascertained. A little party of Yankee rooters loyally getting to their feet at the start of the Yankees' seventh inning proved to be the targets. Among the Yankee fans was a substantial-looking gentleman by the name of George Weiss, general manager of the Yankees, here to see 'em battle it out down the line.

Across the field, Weiss had a clear view of Joe McCarthy maneuvering the Red Sox from the Boston dugout, and in his mind's eye Weiss saw happier days when McCarthy was taking Yankee teams to pennants. Weiss had to realize that McCarthy's Red Sox smacked of the old Yankees, with all that power and spot pitching, while his own man, Casey Stengel, was fumbling with mediocrity in the way of talent.

Mediocrity had stood up nicely for Stengel thus far, with the Yankees never out of the league lead, but in this crucial showdown, Yankee spirit was insufficient to offset the reality of Boston power all down the line, plus guys like Ellis Pinder and Mel Parnell on the pitching mound. In contrast to the Yankees' complete lack of a .300 hitter in the two games here, the Red Sox had a .300-swatter, Bill Goodman, batting seventh.

AFTER THE RED SOX filled the bases in the opening inning with none out, there was naturally a gigantic sigh of reliefe in Stengel's breast at the proceedings wherein Boston got nothing out of the inning. But Stengel knew it was a question of how long his Yanks could contain the Red Sox who in 20 straight games were unbeaten in Fenway Park.

An inning later they broke out with two runs after two were out. McCarthy could dream all afternoon, with complete reason, that he was still managing one of those great Yankee teams. He saw his good Red Sox cut off a run at the plate in the second inning with a throw from the outfield, and stamp out Yankee uprisings in the fifth and sixth with two more precise and deadly double plays. In Boston uniforms, he had old Yankees.

Stengel himself gave the first hint that the Yankees were in a dismal spot, with a pregame jest that smacked of earnestness. "Looks like they made the schedule a week too long," he said, and he may be indeed correct.

WEIGHED EVEN AGAINST the brutal series of Yankee injuries this year, they've been a lucky club, lucky to have Joe Page around, and fortunate that their reserves have caught fire when pressed into service. But there was evidence a couple of days ago, that the Yankees good charm was beginning to desert 'em. That was when Tommy Henrich and George Stirnweiss, a couple of old big leaguers, misplayed a Washington tenth-inning pop fly into a costly defeat.

The Yankees' magic abandoned 'em completely when they moved into Boston for this important two-game series, with Joe DiMaggio a patient in New York. The one man they needed most was unavailable, though he may be rustled out of bed in time to lead the Yanks into battle tomorrow at New York.

The Yankees aren't licked, yet. But they no longer have any cushion with which to absorb another defeat. They need a winning pitcher, quick. The man who can stop the Red Sox from winning their tenth straight tomorrow, could emerge as the Yankees' hero of the season. But they will be asking a lot of him.

Brooklyn Now Trails St. Louis by 1½ Games

By Joe Reichler

St. Louis, Sept. 25 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals shot into a commanding game and a half lead over Brooklyn in the tingling National League pennant race today when Harry Brecheen pitched and batted the Redbirds to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

With the Dodgers suffering a 5-3 setback by Philadelphia, the Cards now need to win four of their remaining five games to insure their tenth championship. Should Brooklyn win all its remaining four games, and St. Louis take three of its five, the race would end in a tie, forcing the second playoff between the two deadly rivals in four years.

Brecheen hit safely four times, batting in three runs, and held Chicago to six hits.

The only Chicago run came in the fourth on a homer by Bill Serena.

Three singles gave the Cards' a lead in the first inning

The Redbirds' big inning came in the second when Marty Marion walked and Del Rice and Tommy Glaviano each singled to fill the bases. Brecheen came up and singled sharply, scoring two runs.

St. Louis added another run in the second and Brecheen batted in the fifth Cardinal tally in the third. Bilko doubled home Red Schoendienst for the final run in the fourth.

Seminick's Homer Beats Dodgers for Phils, 5-3

Brooklyn, Sept. 25 (AP).—Catcher Andy Seminick of the Philadelphia Phillies powered his twenty-third home run of the season into the left field bleachers at Ebbetts Field today, spoiled the day for 33,452 Brooklyn fans and quite possibly knocked the Dodgers out of the National League flag race.

The score was tied 3-3 in the eighth inning and Dick Sisler was on base when Seminick struck his mighty blow off Jack Banta to make the score 5-3 for the hustling youngsters from Quakertown.

It was a doubly bitter defeat for the second place Dodgers, as to all intents and purposes they had the victory sewed up until Ralph Branca, after seven brilliant innings on the hill, broke a blister on his pitching hand and had to be relieved by the luckless Banta.

Having struck out nine Phils and allowed only five hits in his seven-inning tenure, Branca turned over a 3-1 lead to his young successor. But it turned out that Banta was the wrong man. He pitched to five men, including Seminick. Four of them scored, and that was the ball game.

HOYAS' BOB MARGARITA . . . COACH OF THE WEEK

Pulls Upset in Debut

Margarita Is Area's Coach Of Week Without Question

(Each week during the football season The Washington Post's sports staff will pick a "Coach of the Week" for the area. The nomination for the first week goes to young Bob Margarita, whose Georgetown Hoyas upset Holy Cross, 20-13, on Saturday.)

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

THERE ISN'T MUCH argument about the area's "Coach of the Week." Let's make him Georgetown's Bob Margarita. He deserves it.

Margarita had to make his head coaching debut against Holy Cross, a 14-point favorite. Despite the fact that they trailed, 13-0, his Hoyas insisted upon making it successful.

Georgetown won, 20-13, with a comeback that showed plenty of Margarita influence.

The cool, collected gent who won't be 29 until November 3 instilled enough savvy and poise in his squad to make that victory inevitable. After the game, Bob insisted that he never was worried; that he knew his kids would come through.

YOU'D HAVE to know the New England background to realize how tremendous his victory was.

Dr. Bill Osmanski, Holy Cross great, who was an established star for the Chicago Bears when the quiet Margarita joined them, is coaching the Crusaders for his second year.

Before the opener, he told Boston sportswriters that Georgetown was loaded. He told them, too, that both teams used similar T-formation offenses. Then, with tongue in cheek, he concluded, "It will be a case of the better coach winning."

Well, if Osmanski concedes it, we should.

Margarita, Medford, Mass., native, who went on to become an all-league star with the Bears in 1945, met his old teammate Osmanski the afternoon before the game. And Friday night Margarita was elated.

"JUST WHAT I HOPED," he said, "Bill's looking right past us. Oh, he said he was worried, but I know him well enough—I know he isn't."

Margarita, a serious-minded chap, was flabbergasted as his selection as "Coach of the Week."

"Look," he remonstrated, "one victory doesn't make a coach, and one victory doesn't make a season.

"Ours was a team victory. And it was a sweet victory for all the coaches—Bill Battles, Joe Sullivan, Jack Prendergast, George Murtaugh and Buzz McGlynn.

"But we have a long rough road ahead." Georgetown plays Maryland Friday night.

Bob broke down and confessed that he exacted a promise from his squad last Wednesday.

He said, "I told the boys that if each and every one would give everything he had against Holy Cross—and I meant if he'd give until it hurt way down inside—that Holy Cross would crack and we would win."

Parnell Wins 25th With Four-Hitter

righthander handsome Jack Kramer for tomorrow's pitching job, injected new speculation tonight when he announced "it might be McDermott." He was referring to rookie southpaw Maurice McDermott, midseason sensation who came down with a sore arm and hasn't pitched in weeks.

The 27-year-old Parnell was the master of the Yankees today. With each rise and dip of his supple left arm, he hauled the Red Sox closer to equal social standing in the league.

Parnell slammed the door in the Yankees' faces after the fourth inning, holding them hitless from that point and limiting their output in the two crucial games here to one run scored. He solidified his status as the league's top pitcher by annexing his twenty-fifth win against seven defeats, and hurling his twenty-seventh complete game.

Williams Slams His 43d Homer

Pesky's two-run single in the second inning, bravely kept the Yankees in the ball game by yielding only two other hits, until he encountered Williams' home run in the seventh.

The Yankees were battling desperately for this one, and there was dismay among the 35,517 when Reynolds pulled himself together and deflated the Red Sox after they filled the bases with none out in the first inning.

The first three men to face Reynolds reached base, Dom DiMaggio with a single to left, Johnny Pesky with a double to left and Williams with an intentional pass. But then the Red Sox flunked out. Reynolds lured Vern Stephens, the hitting flop of this series, into a pop-up, and then grabbed Doerr's grounder to start a double play via the box-to-home-to-first.

Tommy Henrich, who with Phil Rizzuto, comprised the last remnants of the old Yankee pros that Stengel could field, tried to launch a Yankee run in the second when he led off with a double to right. He moved to third on Johnson's bounder to Doerr, and then the Yankees flunked out in spectacular fashion.

Johnny Lindell raised a moderately long fly to Al Zarilla in right field, and Henrich confidently dashed for home. Catcher Birdie Tebbetts stood idly by as if there was no play at the plate, and then to the surprise of Henrich suddenly grabbed a superlative throw from Zarilla that came in on the fly, and made the put-out on a close play, for a double play.

Parnell himself had a hand in those two second-inning runs of the Red Sox that put the big crowd at ease for the first time. With two out, he lashed a single to center, moving Billy Goodman, who had previously singled, to third. Dom DiMaggio drew a walk to fill the bases, and Pesky got the two runs home with a sharp single to left.

To get their lone run in the fifth inning, the Yankees were unknowingly shooting their bolt against Parnell, packing three of their four hits into that session. Consecutively, Johnny Lindell singled to center, Clyde Honk singled to right, and Jerry Coleman looped a single to right to get the run home with one out.

And then the Red Sox cut 'em off with another superlative defensive bit. Pesky grabbed up Reynolds' smash, whipped it to Doerr at second base, and Doer despite an ankle lamed by the impact with the bag, got off a story-book throw to Goodman for the double play.

Until the seventh, Ted Williams was a nonentity in the Red Sox 11-hit assault on Reynolds, but then his bat spoke loudly. With the Red Sox and their admirers, somewhat apprehensive about Parnell's thin 2-1 lead, Williams, moved in with two out in the seventh and applied the coup de grace to the Yankees.

He found Pesky on base after that young man's single to center for his third straight hit, with two out, and then Williams pounded his forty-third homer of the year into the distant right field seats.

Bears Late Attack Tops Packers, 17-0

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 25.—For 43½ minutes the underdog Green Bay Packers fought the Chicago Bears to a standstill here today, but when the National Football League opener of both clubs was over the Bears had a 17-0 victory.

While a capacity crowd of 25,571 watched the vicious clash at City Stadium, the Bears packed all their points into the last minute and a half of the third quarter and the final period.

It was all Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame's scintillating quarterback of two years ago. Helped from the field just before the half when he was smashed down while getting off and 18-yard pass to J. R. Boone, the big successor to Sid Luckman came back and fetched the Bears a precious three points, after a 70-yard march was halted, on a 16-yard field goal as the third period came to a close.

By way of clinching the thing, although they weren't needed, the former Irishman whipped over two touchdown passes midway of the final quarter. The first went for 20 yards to Ken Kavanaugh with six and a half minutes left, capping an advance of 61 yards. Kavanaugh made a miraculous catch over his head as he went into the end zone. Lujack made it 10-0 with the extra-point placement.

A fumble by the Packers Walt Schlinkman immediately after the next kickoff sent Lujack and his lads goalward again. Guard Dick Flanagan recovered on the Packer 17, but after three plays the Bears were back to their 36.

Lujack broke that impasse with a slant to Boone, who collected the ball dispite Irv Comp's lunge and sprinted the last 20 yards into the end zone. Again Lujack converted to get a hand, or foot, into every Chicago point.

The Packers moved right down to the Bear 30 with the opening kickoff, but there Canadeo fumbled and the first threa tof the hosts ended. But they had two more perfect chances to score before the first half was over, both coming early in the second quarter.

Green Bay had moved 20 yards up to their 38 when Canadeo was sent around right end. After spurting through a jam of Bears, he tore down the right sideline and only Chicago's Canady barred his way to a touchdown 37 yards later. Little Tony couldn't get by his last opponent and was pushed out of bounds.

Seconds later Girard hurled desperately to Luhn from the Bear 25. At the goal line Luhn had George McAfee to contend with, the latter finally snatching the ball for an interception on the Bear two.

Chicago, Meanwhile, reached the Packer 21 where Blanda's field

Louise Suggs Wins Open Golf Title

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Louise Suggs won the Women's National Open Golf title yesterday with a final round five-under-par 70 at Prince Georges Country Club.

She finished 14 strokes ahead of Babe Didrikson Zaharias. Miss Suggs set a 72-hole medal play record with rounds of 69, 75, 77 and 70 for a 291 aggregate, four strokes better than the 295 tacked up by Betty Jameson at Starmount Forest Country Club, Greensboro, N. C.

It was Louise's second record of the week. She set a new course standard at Prince Georges on opening day with a 69.

Miss Suggs received a $1500 check from James Dunn, motion picture star and Academy Award winner for his "Tree Grows in Brooklyn" performance, for her top finish.

Babe Didrikson, who had pulled to within four strokes of the 115-pounder from Carrollton, Ga., Saturday, saw her game fall apart yesterday. She took 80 shots in her final round for a 305 total.

Third was Carol Diringer, of Tiffin, Ohio, with a final round 78 for a 306 aggregate to become top amateur.

Miss Suggs took down $1500 for winning, Mrs. Zaharias $1000, and the next eight low-scoring pros were presented checks ranging from $800 to $150.

Louise opened the final round with a birdie three on the first hole, sinking a putt from twelve feet off the pin; she shaved another stroke off par on the ninth hole with a chipup to within five feet of the cup and repeated the performance on the tenth hole for her third bird of the round.

The 1947 American amateur and 1948 British amateur champion's approach to the par five thirteenth was only two feet off the pin and

Silvera Injured, Feeling 'All Right'

Boston, Sept. 25 (AP).—The battered New York Yankees suffered another blow today when Catcher Charley Silvera was injured by a foul tip off the bat of Dom DiMaggio in the second inning of the Yankee-Boston Red Sox game.

Silvera, struck in the groin by the foul, was carried off the field on a stretcher. However, he was not seriously hurt and was reported feeling "all right" in the clubhouse.

Schroeder Wins Over Sturgess

Berkeley, Calif., Sept. 25. (AP)—Ted Schroeder, of La Cresenta, Calif., retained his national amateur hardcourt tennis title today with a 6-1, 6-3, 6-1 victory over Eric Sturgess, of South Africa.

In the women's singles, favored Doris Hart, of Jacksonville, Fla., easily defeated Unseeded Dorothy Head, of Alameda, 6-3, 6-4.

Stranahan Trims Cisco, 5 and 4, To Win Western

St. Louis, Sept. 25 (AP).—Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, won his second Western Amateur golf championship today, beating Walter Cisco of Louisville, Ky., 5 and 4 in a 36-hole match at Bellerive Country Club.

Stranahan, who won the Western over Marvin (Bud) Ward at Duluth, Minn., in 1946 and lost it to the same Ward at Des Moines, Iowa, the next summer, was complete master today after making the first round one up.

Stranahan played the 32 holes today in two over par. He had a blazing two under par 34 going out with nothing conceded.

'Skins Open League Season Tonight Against Cardinals

(Special to The Post)

Chicago, Sept. 25. — Their thirteenth year as the Nations' Capital representative in the National Football League will be officially opened by the Washington Redskins tomorrow night as they oppose the Chicago Cardinals at Comiskey Park.

The thirteenth could be a very unlucky year, or it could be a highly successful one.

Head Coach Billick Whelchel, himself a rookie, can't predict the outcome. Nor can anyone else because the Redskins go into 1949 league action with 11 of the most promising, but rawest, rookies included on their 31-man squad.

The 20,000 fans at Comiskey Park will be expecting the Cardinals to repeat an exhibition triumph over the Skins at Birmingham two weeks ago. It was 24-10 that time as Paul Christman connected for three husky touchdown passes.

But Washington's admirers will argue that their lads held the famous Cardinal backfield of Christman, Elmer Angsman, Charley Trippi and Pat Harder almost even in yardage and came off with 18 first downs to Chicago's 12.

They will argue that Mr. Redskin, Sammy Baugh, played only long enough to throw for the Skins' only touchdown and that Harry Gilmer, Baugh's understudy, is fin-

Giants Upset By Steelers

Pittsburgh, Sept. 25 (AP).—Unveiling a surprising aerial attack, the underdog Pittsburgh Steelers upset the New York Giants 28-7 today in a National Football League opener for both teams.

The Giants' vaunted passing star, Charley Conerly, was responsible for New York's only touchdown, scored on an 11-yard pass to Roy Poole in the final quarter.

Spearheaded by sharp downfield blocking, the Steelers moved along on momentum provided by Bobby Gage, Joe Geri, Jerry Nuzum and George Papach.

The Steelers scored three times in the second period after drives of 76 yards, 80 yards and 31 yards. Papach snaked through the center for 24 yards to begin the initial scoring push.

Bobby Gage tossed a 16-yard pass to end Elbie Nickel who went 26 yards for the score.

The Steelers scored again on a drive generated by Geri, Samuel and Papach. Geri passed to Elbie Nickel for a 42-yard gain to the 12 and Jerry Nuzum plunged for the score from the nine.

Jack Salschelder's poor 21-yard punt to the Giants' 31 was the break that started the Steelers on their third score of the period. Samuel slanted through left tcakle, was hit on the 20, but slipped away for the remaining yards to the goal line.

Pittsburgh scored its final touchdown on the first play of the fourth period. Glamp kicked all four extra points.

Lupica 'Grounded' After 117 Days Aloft

Cleveland, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Charlie Lupica, the world's champion flagpole sitter, came to earth today with tears in his eyes and rubber in his knees after 117 days in the air waiting for the Cleveland Indians to make first place in the American League.

Charlie descended his flagpole, which had been carted to the home plate of Municipal Stadium for the occasion, and kissed his wife and four children, one of whom was born while he was pole-sitting.

Kozar Slams Homer

Weik Hurls 4-0 Two-Hitter For Nats After A's Win, 8-5

Special to The Washington Post

Philadelphia, Sept. 25.—Though beaten in the opener, 8-5, Washington's Nats had the last word against Philadelphia in the nightcap as Dick Weik blanked the Athletics with two hits, 4-0.

Only Nelson Fox, who was trapped in a double play after leading off the third inning with a single, and Wally Moses, who beat out a bounder to second with one gone in the fourth, could solve Weik for singles, and only two Mackmen walked. Only one man got as far as second base.

Weik, a 12-game loser who had scored one of his two earlier victories in relief against the A's, won the game in the second inning when Al Kozar lined his fourth homer of the campaign into the lower left bleachers. All three other Nat markers off Lefty Lou Brissie, charged with his 10th defeat in 26 decisions, were unearned.

A walk, an error by Eddie Joost, an infield out and a rap to short by Eddie Stewart followed Kozar's round-tripper for another run in the second inning, and two more crossed in the fifth on a miscue by Ferris Fain and singles by Kozar and Al Evans, with an infield out between.

Five Washington hurlers restricted the Macks to seven safeties in the first game, but one of these was Joost's twenty-third home run, with two on, and another was a two-run triple by

Armed May Race In 'Laurel'

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

The appearance of Calumet Farm's Armed may be the highlight of the first full week of racing at Laurel.

Two important fixtures are scheduled. The $7500 added Richard Johnson for 2-year-olds on Wednesday and The Laurel, for all ages, on Saturday. Armed is scheduled to arrive this morning and trainer Jimmy Jones phoned racing secretary Charles J. McLennan that the 8-year-old could be considered a definite starter in The Laurel.

Armed, the world's champion money-winning gelding, has been essaying a comeback this year. Although he hasn't reached the winner's circle, his appearances, generally behind younger stablemates, have accounted for $36,250 in earnings.

Calumet handlers, however, are not too optimistic about Armed. The son of Bull Lea is "no chicken" at his age and hardly can reach the heights he once reached. But Armed likes to run and will be kept in action as long as he is sound.

The Laurel shapes up as a promising event. The 36th running of the stake will bring into action Brookfield Farm's Istan, winner last year. Five horses who tuned up in last Saturday's Capital Handicap are eligible, the group including King Midas, Laran, Childeric, Big Story and Tea-Maker. Other possibilities include Jacobson and Hart's Big Dial, W. Y. Goldsborough's Binky B., S. M. Newmeyer's Turbine, and Mrs. E. duPont Weir's Royal Governor.

Wednesday's Richard Johnson should lure 10 juveniles including Henry S. Clark's Puppet, winner of The Flint Shot, last Saturday. The four 2-year-olds who finished behind Puppet are eligible, the group including R. M. Wood's High Frequency, three-time stake winner this season; W. F. Leatherbury's Eastern Flyway, early 1949 star; G. M. Cohen's Jess Linthicum, and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark's Steel Blue.

Bill Bennings . . .

Dear Folks: At Laurel.

Henry H. Hecht's The Pincher, popular Maryland speed horse, is being groomed here for several stake events. The Pincher created a sensation last fall when he smashed the track record for six furlongs at Pimlico. High hopes were held for him in this year's 3-year-old classics. However, after winning the Chesapeake Trial last spring his handlers came to the conclusion that the son of Heliopolis didn't have the staying power and that his efforts would have to be confined to sprints. While The Pincher will perform at Laurel, his main objectives at the present time involve stakes at Garden State. Scores of afternoon games in the baseball pennant races will be sent out over the PA system here. See you on the rail.—Bill.

A CUP AND A KISS—Posting a 291 for the 72 holes of competition in the Women's National Open golf tournament, Louise Suggs won the title, set a women's tourney record, defeated Babe Didrikson Zaharias by 14 strokes, acquired the trophy shown above, and is kissed by Actor Jimmy Dunn, who presented the cup, yesterday at Prince Georges County Club

Baltimore Beaten in Last Period

Baltimore, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—The Cleveland Browns, apparently not quite the same supermen who have menaced the All-America conference for three straight seasons, had to come from behind in a hurry in the fourth period today to score a 28 to 20 football victory over the Baltimore Colts.

A crowd of 34,879, largest of the all-American conference season to date, saw the thriller in which Baltimore strategy in the final moments backfired to give Cleveland its third victory against one tie and leave it the only undefeated team in the loop.

Two Field Goals

The Colts surprised the champs by going out in front, 13 to 0, in the second period on a touchdown and two field goals. They clung to that lead tenaciously until the opening minutes of the final period when a poor punt by quarterback Charley O'Rourke set up one Cleveland touchdown and an intercepted pass made the other one possible.

In the final period a quick kick by Cleveland's Horace Gillow put the Colts back within five yards of their own goal. The Colts attempted to punt out of danger, but O'Rourke's kick from the one went out of bounds on the Baltimore 21. The Browns scored in five plays, the last a quarterback sneak by Otto Graham Lou Groza converted.

Pass Intercepted

Later a pass was intercepted on the Colts' 13 by Bill Willis of the Browns who ran the ball back to the one. Fullback Marion Motley crashed through for the touchdown. Groza added the extra point.

The Colts' final touchdown was chalked up minutes later, when Tittle, on his own 48, heaved a long pass to Halfback Billy Stone who caught it over his shoulder on the 15 and raced for the score. Grossman added the extra point, his 52nd in succession without a miss.

Edgar Jones accounted for the Browns' final touchdown when he rammed across the goal line from the two after Cleveland had taken over on downs on its own 14.

Bills Hand Coast Pros 28-17 Loss

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 25 (AP).—The Buffalo Bills handed the high-riding San Francisco 49'ers their first defeat of the All-America Football Conference season, 28-17, today before 32,097 spectators in Civic Stadium.

The Bills' George Ratterman outshone Frankie Albert, completing

Buffalo outgained the offense-minded invaders, 445 yards to 230.

San Francisco, seeking its fourth triumph, opened the scoring in the first period on Joe Vetrano's 23-yard field goal. The Bills struck back with a touchdown on an 80-yard march, Ratterman faking perfectly and passing 39 yards to Rex Bumgardner for the score. Chet Adams added the first of four extra points.

Ratterman's 46-yard pass to Alton Baldwin set up the second touchdown, late in the first half. The same combination accounted for the last 7 yards.

The Bills marched 69 yards to score as the third period opened. Lou Tomasetti cracked over from the 1.

The 49'ers broke through later in the period. Joe Perry took Albert's pass in the flat and ran into the end zone. Vetrano added the point.

San Francisco added another touchdown on the first scrimmage after the kickoff. Chet Mutryn fumbled Ratterman's pass and Eddie Carr picked up the ball and whipped 35 yards behind great blocking.

The Bills moved 78 yards in the fourth period for the last score. Ollie Cline barged over from the 2.

The victory was the Bills' first in four league engagements.

Thackara Wins Tennis Tourney

Jim Thackara gained his second leg on the Allie S. Freed Memorial Challenge Cup over the weekend by swamping Phil Neff in four sets in the finals of the Northern Virginia Open Men's Singles Tournament. Thackara needs another leg to retire the cup.

Playing at the Buckingham Tennis Club, Thackara dropped the first set, 4—6, then went on to take three in a row by 6—1 scores. By identical scores Don Leavens and Buddy Adair beat Thackara and C. Alphonso Smith for the doubles championship.

Gun Club Event Won by Hanson

Richard Hanson, Detroit, Mich., won the 50-yard event and the two-day aggregate championship yesterday in the Greenbelt's Gun Club's final meet. Hanson had a perfect 400 in the 50-yard event and an aggregate 2371.

John Kelley, Fort Worth, Tex., won the 100-yard event with a 394 and second aggregate with 2368. In the only other event held yesterday Richard Oler scored 395 to top the 50-meter event.

Brookland-Woodridge Beats Mt. Rainier, 26-0

Suggs Wins Open Title

she sank the putt for an eagle three to go five under par at that point.

On the fifteenth she added another birdie with a twenty-five-foot putt but took her first and only bogey of the round on the short 186-yard seventeenth. Her tee shot on the seventeenth was in the trap and after exploding out she needed two putts to get down.

Miss Suggs is forming a habit of taking the big ones, one year after Mrs. Zaharias. She won the British amateur in 1948 after the Babe had become the first American to bring home the title and again yesterday followed in the Babe's footsteps, taking the open title away from Mrs. Zaharias.

Carol Diringer was tied with Beverly Hanson for the top amateur prize at the start of the final round but Beverly quickly eliminated herself with a 41-42—83 for the final round.

However, 15-year-old Marlene Bauer, playing with Misses Diringer and Suggs came forward to give battle with Miss Diringer for the amateur award.

Marlene turned in a 38 on the front nine to move up within one stroke of the leader, Miss Diringer. She faltered to a 43 on the back nine, however, and an 80 for the round, giving her a 311 total and a tie for sixth with Beverly Hanson, Frances Stephens, 1949 British Queen and Mae Murray, the Vermont title holder from Rutland, Vt.

Second amateur prize after Miss Diringer went to Dot Kielty, the national amateur finalist from Long Beach, Calif., who turned in a 77 yesterday for a 310 aggregate. Also coming in with a 310 was Patty Berg, the Savage ,Minn., pro whose effort gained her an $800 award.

Rounding out the top 10 was Polly Riley, Fort Worth, Tex. with a 312. Helen Sigel the Philadelphia amateur finished eleventh with 313 and Marjorie Lindsay, Decatur, Ill., 314 was twelfth.

Cup Regatta Closes

Columbia Yacht Club Wins Sailing Laurels

By Happy Walker

The curtain was rung down on the 1949 President's Cup water sports festival yesterday with the conclusion of the two-day sailing events.

Notwithstanding unfavorable winds, skippers from far and near put on a beautiful exhibition of sail maneuvering, taking advantage of every puff.

It was our local skippers from Columbia Yacht Club, who reached the winning circles most often, throughout the three race series.

In the heavier Star class, Naval Academy's Alex Grosvenor, took top spot in yesterday's single race in his highly touted Flo. With the exception of second place, which went to Dick Heintz of West River.

Slugger Sets Two Records

Cincinnati, Sept. 25 (AP).—Ralph Kiner connected for his fifty-third home run of the season today, establishing a new National League mark and tying another, as the Pittsburg Pirates knocked off the Cincinnati Reds in both ends of a twin bill, 7-3 and 5-3.

Kiner's round-tripper, which came in the first game, was his twenty-fifth on the road, bettering Hack Wilson's 1930 record of 24. It was his fifteenth of the month, tying Cy Williams's record of May, 1923.

Golfing Roundup

Bounce-Back For Eagle Helps Burney Win; Wilson Wins Kenwood Title for 2d Time

It was blustery and cold and mostly for the birds on the Bethesda Country Club course yesterday but Redford Burney would have to say it had its moments, even for golf.

From about 160 yards out, Burney jabbed a five-iron shot blind over a hill toward the sixteenth green. Awed spectators watched the ball bounce past the cup, smack the pin which was lying horizontal on the green, and bounce back into the cup for an eagle 2.

With this little assist from a careless foursome up ahead, Burney went one up on Joe LaSalle, and eventually won 2-up to go into the quarterfinals of the club championship.

Winkler Beats Baldwin

Other match winners in the tourney were George Winkler who defeated Tom Baldwin, 5 and 4; Tony Topolaski, who defeated Ben Whiting, 6 and 4; Col. R. B. Oxrider, who defeated Fran Donaldson, 6 and 4; Jerry Hart, who defeated Willis Hurd, 3 and 2, and Tom Manning, who won by default over Alan Sherrier.

Sherrier, who's moving to California, played off his tie for the tournament medal with Joe LaSalle, and lost, 77-79.

KENWOOD — Joe Wilson knocked off Bill Briggs, 6-5, in 36 holes, to take his second club championship in the 10 years he's been playing out at Kenwood. J. G. Martenson won the first flight with a 5 and 4 victory over J. W. Molyneaux. Six players shared blind bogey honors. They were L. V. Stambaugh, 94-16—78; J. A. Barbeau, 88-10—78; K. A. Brashfield, 95-17—78; Don Jones, 82-4—78; A. H. Youngquest, 84-6—78; R. J. Dexeraux, 84-6—78.

ARGYLE — Dick Mothershead, last year's champ, went into the 1949 club championship finals yesterday, defeating Bob Harmon 5 and 4. Mothershead will face Frank Miller, who beat Tom Shenk 2 and 1, for the title. On the women's side, Faith Clark became a finalist after defeating Helen Sasscer, 3 and 2.

INDIAN SPRING — C. M. Wood, with 80—13—67, J. Pascal, with 85—18—67, and John Owen, with 78—11—67, bested some 100 aspirants for the Board of Governors' Trophy. They'll play off next Sunday to see who wins it.

MANOR.—79 was the magic number in the blind bogey here yesterday and seven golfers came up with it. They were W. F. McCarty, 88—9—79; Gene Archer, 92—13—79; George McCabe, 90—11—79; J. W. Stuart, 91—12—79; H. P. Brightman, 94—15—79; J. F. Coogan, 90—11—79; Ed Kekenes, 89—10—79 . . . In the second round of the Maryland State Four-Ball Tournament Annapolis Roads No. 1 defeated Suburban No. 1, 1-up, 20 holes; Sparrows Point No. 1 defeated Rolling Road No. 2, 1-up; Bonnie View No. 1 defeated Prince Georges No. 2, 1-up, 19 holes; Washington No. 1 defeated Country Club of Maryland No. 2, 3 and 2; Indian Spring No. 2 defeated Kenwood No. 1, 4 and 3; Catoctin No. 1 defeated Manor No. 2, 5 and 4; Prince Georges No. 1 defeated Bethesda No. 1, 7 and 6.

EAST POTOMAC—Eddie Balkr shot a hole-in-one. He used a No. 5 iron on the 160-yard fifteenth hole. Fred Kammoto and Henry G. Witham witnessed the feat.

CONGRESSIONAL — Billy Shea overwhelmed Fleming Bomar, 9 and 7, in the 36-hole final to win the club championship. The championship flight consolation prize went to Gene Pittman, who defeated Charley Given, 2 and 1. Other flight results: (2) C. G. Brown defeated Tom Lennon, 5 and 4; (3) Frank O'Connell defeated Earl Draper, 1 up; (4) Dr. Al W. Gray defeated H. B. Alderson by default; (5) Harry Radcliffe defeated Denison, 4 and 3; (6) Julie Radice defeated Jim Conroy, 5 and 4; (7) Harry Merrick defeated Dr. Winthrop Wilcox, 2 up; (8) Dr. Benjamin Bean defeated Frank Hewitt, 2 and 1; (9) Carlos Nagel defeated G. Moore, 1 up, 27 holes.

BELLE HAVEN—Col. Ben Schriever defeated Joe Daniels, 5 and 4, and Comdr. Frank Heyer defeated G. E. Marple in the championship flight semi-finals of the club tournament. Other flight results: 1—Col. J. H. Kalberer defeated Capt. J. McElroy, 4 and 3; R. Peed defeated H. G. Clark, 1-up; 2—J. E. Neal defeated John Lyons, 4 and 3; Henry Dement defeated R. McCaffrey, 2 and 1; 3—R. H. Dunn defeated R. F. Kneeland, 1-up; Col. F. A. Nichols defeated E. E. Kriegrsmon, 3 and 1; 4—L. Allen defeated C. Hageman, 1up.

'We Should Have Won'

Middies Still Cocky Despite Loss to U.S.C.

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Los Angeles, Sept. 25.—There comes a time in every losing team's football history when the players no longer like to hear that old chant, "tough luck, boys, you played a good game and deserved a better fate."

That time arrived for Navy yesterday following its 42-20 loss to mighty Southern California.

"Nuts, we should've won," said Middie after Middie when well-wishers tried to comfort them today with the "tough luck, boys," routine.

And they meant it, too. This is a cocky, confident crew coach George Sauer has mustered this year. They are guilty of overestimating their ability when they think they should have beaten the Trojans, but you can't convince them of it.

"We made enough mistakes in that one game to last us three seasons, said Quarterback Bob "Zug" Zastrow, the best ballplayer in Memorial Coliseum yesterday.

Jim Hunt, a defensive stalwart, wasn't quite as outspoken as Zastrow. "Their tackles, especially Vollney Peters, who I think is better than Al Wistert of Michigan, were good, but the other linemen weren't as sensational as the newspapers said."

Of Navy's many mistakes, their two first quarter boners were the ones that put them in a hole to stay.

The Middies had been repeatedly warned of SC's double-safety man setup on punt returns. They had been told to watch for a fake hand-off and that's exactly what Troy did to score its first touchdown.

Jay Roundy gathered in Davy Jones' punt on the Troy 33, neatly faked to Jimmy Williams, then sped 67 yards for a tally. Not a Middie touched Roundy.

Three minutes later, practically the same thing happened. This time Williams grabbed the punt and slipped it to Halfback Don Rogers on a criss-cross and the latter raced 35 yards to set up a second score.

Bad break No. 3 came a few seconds later. Zastrow spotted End Tom Bakke in the clear on the Trojan 44-yard line and hit him with a perfect pass, but lo and behold, Bakke dropped it.

The Sailors, who haven't won a game in 15 starts, weren't downcast over the defeat. They were only mad at themselves and somebody is going to feel their wrath. From the looks of things today as the squad enplaned for Annapolis, Princeton is the victim next Saturday in Baltimore. On that you have the word of every man-jack on the squad.

Nats Divide With Macks

Moses, who in turn scored on a long fly.

These blows were concentrated in the third and fourth innings, and 24-year-old rookie Alex Kellner who has lost 11 games, did not have to work unduly hard in chalking up his nineteenth victory. Since he probably will start one of the two games at Washington next weekend, Kellner may become Connie Mack's first 20-game winner since another southpaw, the great Bob Grove, took 24 in 1933.

Washington cut into his 7-0 lead with four counters in the sixth. Eddie Yost, who made four of the Nats' 10 hits, led off with a double off the left wall, and with one gone, Eddie Joost erred on Sam Mele's grounder. A single by Bobby Ortiz, a walk to Clyde Vollmer and a single by Ed Robinson to right, with Moses fumbling the ball, produced the four runs.

Singles by Yost, Mele and Ortiz resulted in another Washington tally in the seventh, but Kellner checked the Nats thereafter.

Whatever the arguments in Washington's favor, the Cards, league champions in 1947 and western division titlists last season, go into action favored by 10 points. If you don't want points and still like the Redskins, the odds-makers will give you 3 to 1 you've picked the wrong team.

Baugh is likely to start tomorrow, despite his bruised ribs, as Whelchel puts everything he has into an effort to start the season right. Six other veterans are listed in the backfield along with Slingin' Sam, who is also starting his thirteenth season.

With Ed Quirk out because of a damaged ankle, the Redskins have no seasoned fullback unless Dick Poillon is shifted over from a halfback slot. Dan Sandifer, Eddie Saenz, Howie Livingston and Frank Seno have halfback experience, and Tommy Mont can be used at either quarter or half.

Car Credit Tops Ft. Belvoir, 7-6

Fort Belvoir, Va., Sept. 25.—Car Credit, the Metropolitan Amateur Football League's unlimited champion, kept its three-year undefeated record intact by edging the Fort Belvoir Engineers, 7-6, here this afternoon before 8000 fans.

In the final period Car Credit Center Joe Dowling, former Georgetown U. lineman, blocked an Engineer punt on the Fort Belvoir 30-yard line, recovered the ball and went for a touchdown. Gil Buckingham, former Gonzaga High star, kicked the extra point to provide the winning margin.

Civil Service Alters Reassignment Rights Of Career Workers

Several important new changes in layoff regulations have been made by the Civil Service Commission. They are:

Reassignment rights have been taken away from career employes who are veterans and who are laid off from jobs outside the Civil Service system. The new rule covers workers in non-Civil Service agencies such as the FBI, Atomic Energy, Tennessee Valley, Central Intelligence, and all exempted jobs throughout Government.

Reassignment rights of other career people who are laid off have been restricted. It has been the practice to reassign such an employe to any other job held by a person with fewer retention rights, provided he could meet the job's "minimum qualifications."

Under the new rule the displaced employe must be "fully qualified" for any job he's reassigned to. The change will narrow down the number of job opportunities for a laid-off career worker.

In making discharges, the agencies now do not have the right to retain certain employes who would otherwise be fired "for the good of the service." The provision was struck out at the suggestion of veterans' groups.

However, it's still possible to retain certain of its employes who are specialists during layoffs. The new rule says an exception to the regular layoff order can be made when the "employe to be retained is engaged in necessary duties which cannot be taken over, without undue interruption to the activity."

ORDER: The proposed executive order to cover into regular Civil Service jobs about 5000 war-service and temporary employes who were appointed before March 15, 1942, has been rewritten. After it's through another routine check, the President is likely to sign it—probably the latter part of this week.

SICK LEAVE CHANGE? Several members of Congress have an idea in mind to reward those Federal workers who don't use all their sick leave.

The City of Detroit has come up with a good plan to encourage its employes to take leave only for bona fide illness. At the end of every year, it will credit toward next year's vacation half the unused sick leave, if any, of each worker.

NOTES: The Senate Armed Forces Committee has okayed a bill to authorize construction of a research laboratory for the Army's Quartermaster Corps . . . William Player, formerly of New York Post, has been appointed special assistant to Assistant State Secretary George V. Allen . . . Jack McFall may be appointed Assistant Secretary in charge of Congressional relations. He formerly was on the staff of the House Appropriations Committee . . . Philip C. Brooks, records officer of the National Security Resources Board, is the new president of the Society of American Archivists. Helen Chatfield of the Budget Bureau staff was re-elected society treasurer.

BCF: The Bureau of Community Facilities (an agency in the General Services Administration) is about to get a new lease on life. The President has asked Congress to give it two million dollars in cash plus eight million dollars in contract authority to launch a public-works program in Alaska.

INQUIRY: A checkup is being made on June spending of Federal agencies. The inquiry is being conducted by the Hardy Subcommittee of the House Expenditures Committee. Many agencies are notorious for buying large stocks of supplies and equipment before the fiscal year ends so they won't have to turn back money to the Treasury. Now they will be exposed.

PAY HOPES: At long last, this is the week for a showdown in Congress on the several pay raise bills.

The Senate votes at 5 p. m. today on the military pay raise bill. It will take up the executive pay bill Tuesday, to be followed by the classified and postal bills. The House debates the postal pay bill Tuesday and the classified bill Wednesday.

The executive pay bill is in deep trouble in the Senate, where an attempt will be made to recommit it to a committee. More than one wise observer believes that if the executive pay bill is killed the classified and postal bills also will fail enactment.

Friends, Mother Puzzled

G-Girl Phones Police, Then Dies of Poison

An attractive brunette Navy Department supervisor, 23, apparently without a worry in the world died early yesterday morning after phoning police that she intended to take her life.

Police, friends and her mother were all puzzled by the death of Miss Myla Hubbard, a former George Washington University student now employed as an assistant supervisor in the Publications Division of the Navy Department's Bureau of Aeronautics.

She spent the morning of the fatal day putting away her summer dresses, according to her mother, Mrs. Eva Hubbard, who lived with her in an apartment at 3026 Wisconsin ave. nw.

Enrolls for Course

She also sent out fall suits to the dry cleaners, Mrs. Hubbard added, and recalled that earlier in the week Myla had signed up for a course in a Washington modeling school.

The poison police believed caused the death was roach powder, which had been in the apartment for several years.

All indications pointed to some sudden something which happened causing the girl—almost as a whim—to take the powder.

Too Late, She Tells Policeman

Police Pvt. John Andrykovitch who answered the emergency call and found the girl still conscious, poised and calm said she merely said, "You've come too late, I've already taken it."

The officer said she gave no reason, but indicated that she had changed her mind and wanted to get to the hospital.

A friend who wished her name withheld said that Myla was most attractive, popular and highly intelligent. "She wasn't moody. She lived what was apparently a normal, happy life."

She added that Myla had told her on several occasions that anyone who committed suicide was a coward. However, the friend said, Myla had never given her any indication that she intended to end her life.

Myla, who withdrew from George Washington University on April 19 because of a minor illness, planned to return in October. A Business Administration major in the night school, she had received a certificate from the Junior College of G. W. U. after two years' work. She was to have graduated in 1951.

From Boswell, Ind.

Myla and her mother were members of a prominent Boswell (Ind.) family, coming to Washington in the early days of the war shortly after the death of her father, Dr. Henley H. Hubbard, a highly regarded surgeon there.

Her sister is married to Carl Jacobs, a Boswell lawyer, who is the brother of Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.). One of her brothers is Second Lieut. Wallace Hubbard, graduated from West Point in 1948, and now stationed in Germany.

Mrs. Hubbard works for the Veterans' Administration.

Police say they received a call from Miss Hubbard around 10:45 Saturday night. A previous call had gone to the Emergency Hospital requesting an ambulance a few minutes before.

"She walked to the ambulance," the investigating officer said, and showed no obvious signs of poisoning.

At 1:30 a. m. on Sunday, she was pronounced dead at Emergency Hospital. Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg said the death certificate would be withheld until a chemical analysis could be made.

Shuttle Bus Service Studied To Equalize School Loads

District school officials are considering the possibility of transporting students from overcrowded schools to undercapacity schools by bus.

Dr. Hobart M. Corning, District school superintendent, said yesterday he and his staff have begun a study to determine feasibility of a bus-shuttle plan, now in operation in Detroit.

The plan might provide partial and temporary relief for the 4000 District school children who now attend part-time classes, Dr. Corning said. However, he stressed his objection to "uprooting" students from their communities on a long-term basis.

Favors It as Stopgap

Schools should be focal points of neighborhood life, he said. It would be a wrenching adjustment for youngsters to be thrust into a strange environment and separated from their usual playmates, the added.

However, he thought the plan might have merits on a stopgap basis, until new school construction begins in a year or two to catch up with population shifts which have left some schools with empty classrooms while others in some areas are jam-packed.

The most serious overcrowding of schools for white students is in the Southeast and for Negro students in the Northeast, Dr. Corning said. A principal factor, he said, is the mushrooming in those areas of large housing developments which have shifted the concentration of population.

Members Favorable

Most members of the board of education available over the weekend said they thought the suggested bus-shuttle plan should be adopted if feasible.

C. Melvin Sharpe, board president, said the plan suggested last week by another board member, Adelbert Lee, "merits the serious consideration of every board member and every parent in the city."

Sharpe said he wrote letters to Detroit authorities to find out how the scheme works there.

Questions he said he wanted answered included: (1) Is it more advantageous to charter buses or should the school system buy its own? (2) What is the reaction of parents to the plan in Detroit? (3) What are the distances, costs, safety problems and promptness factors in the Detroit operation? (4) Is it necessary to have attendants (parents, teachers or others) in all buses? (5) How many of the District's 4000 students now in part-time classes could be accommodated at other schools and would it require more teachers?

Buses Used for Handicapped

Sharpe pointed out that the District now transports handicapped children to schools. He said that where Capital Transit buses have been chartered the plan has "worked beautifully, and the drivers have taken a very personal, human interest in the youngsters."

Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger expressed the view that "Something must be done immediately about overcrowded school conditions and the bus idea appears certainly to deserve a trial if practicable."

Dr. James A. Gannon considered the suggestion "very sensible" but wondered "where's the money going to come from when we can't get enough money to buy lead pencils?"

As a stopgap until enough money for schools can be obtained, he said he believed the bus plan is a "good idea." Parents, he said, would have to be convinced it is more important for their children to get an adequate education than to remain at schools in their home community.

Mrs. Velma Williams viewed the suggestion with doubts. She pointed out that it might lead to demands that the school system provide transportation for all students who have to travel considerable distances to attend school. This, she said, would doubtless prove prohibitively expensive.

For example, she pointed out that vast numbers of Negro youths living in the Northeast must travel to the Northwest to attend Dunbar, Armstrong or Cardozo High Schools.

After Extra Sleep

Capital Back On Standard Timetable

The District, Maryland and nearby Virginia went back on Standard Time yesterday and residents recaptured the hour of sleep lost last May.

At 2:01 a. m., it became 1:01 a. m., officially.

The time switch required material adjustments for some railroad, bus, and air facilities. Most of these will not become effective until today, because the affected local service does not operate on Sundays. Suburban train and local buses will shift schedules back an hour so that they will bear the same relationship to working and business hours as they had previously.

A number of airlines began the shift in flight schedules yesterday.

Workers for Western Union, which operates and corrects approximately 1500 clocks in Washington, made some of the changeover through automatic apparatus at the 2:01-1:01 hour yesterday. However, in other cases, the clocks will be shifted this morning by individual workers.

The Federal Government, which has nearly 20,000 timepieces to shift, had workers on the job Saturday, but in many cases the task will not be completed until some time today.

Daylight saving time took effect in Washington April 24 under an act of Congress which has now expired. If the District gets daylight-saving time next year, it will take another act of Congress.

McGrath to Be Guest of Honor At Show Dinner

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath will be guest of honor at the dinner Friday at 7:15 p. m., in the Statler Hotel, which will launch the third annual Home Show Exposition.

The dinner, which 1000 persons are expected to attend, will precede the exposition sponsored by the Home Builders Association from October 8 to 16 in the National Guard Armory.

Ten of the entries in the show's television queen contest will appear at the dinner, along with a program of professional entertainment.

Reserve Unit to Meet

The Air Force chapter of the Reserve Officers Association, Washington Department, will meet today at 8 p. m. in the Raleigh Hotel. A technical noncombat film will be shown. All Air Force reservists are invited.

Alexandria Referendum To Be Asked

Vote Sought on Plan To Set Nonpartisan System of Electing Members of Council

The Alexandria City Council will be asked Tuesday night to call a referendum in November on a proposal to establish a nonpartisan system of electing council members.

The referendum is being sought by the seven-member Alexandria Charter Commission, formed last April to redraft the city's charter, as a means of determining public sentiment toward abolishing the two-party system for electing the seven council members.

Sought for November

An official spokesman said yesterday the commission had requested that the proposal be placed on the docket Tuesday night so that the referendum, if approved by the council, could be held along with the general election November 8. This would spare the city the expense of a special referendum, necessitating only an addition to the election ballots.

The commission spokesman said the outcome of the referendum, if authorized, would be used by the group as a guide when it prepares its final recommendations on election methods to be prescribed in the new charter.

Urged by Women Voters

The commission, which is studying all phases of the Alexandria charter, which has been termed "obsolete" by city officials, is expected to submit its findings late this year.

Nonpartisan election of council members already has been urged by the League of Women Voters. In a poll of candidates for the council, the league said it found abolition of the two-party system was favored by five of the seven men who later were elected to the body.

Shotgun Death Of U. S. Clerk Ruled Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday in the death of John E. Oliver, 58, Treasury Department clerk, who shot himself Saturday night at his apartment, 2703 Allison st., Mt. Rainier, Md.

The certificate was issued by Dr. John T. Maloney, Prince Georges County medical examiner. Oliver had left a note saying he had "no further desire to live."

The note was addressed to his wife, Mrs. Marion R. Oliver, who found him Saturday about 10:15 p. m. when she returned from a moving picture.

According to Mount Rainier Town Policeman Walter M. Daniels, Mr. Oliver had held a shotgun in one hand, resting the butt on a table, and pulled a string attached to the trigger and run beneath a chair rung and the table to his other hand. He was a native of Fairfax County, Va.

Board Favors Apartments In Arlington

The Arlington County Board's indorsement of the proposed 20-million-dollar Arlington Towers apartment-hotel project will be laid before the Federal Housing Administration today.

FHA will hear of the indorsement from County Manager A. T. Lundberg. It is an effort to counter opposition to the project by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Arlington County Board Member F. Freeland Chew said yesterday.

Chew said Lundberg and County Planning Engineer C. L. Kinnier would confer at Arlington with FHA representatives, who already have been asked to approve a loan to help finance the mammoth project.

The project, sponsored by the O'Driscoll Construction Co., of Washington and New York, would include an 11-story apartment hotel, complete with penthouses, elevators and parking facilities, according to the plans. It would be built on a 15-acre site just west of the Boundary Channel Bridge.

The County Board's support of the apartment-hotel proposal was expressed Saturday, after it was learned the planning commission opposes the hotel on the grounds it would concentrate too many people on one site and would complicate rush-hour traffic in the area. The board previously had approved a rezoning to permit the proposed construction.

Lawyers to Hear Adrian S. Fisher

Members of the United Nations League of Lawyers will hear an address by Adrian S. Fisher, legal advisor to the State Department, at their semiannual business meeting Wednesday at 6 p. m. in the Army Navy Club.

Fisher, former general counsel of the Atomic Energy Commission, will speak on "International Legal Aspects of Atomic Energy."

Officers will be elected after the lecture.

Jennie, Floppy Ears and 450 Pounds, Is One Elephant You'll Never Forget

'Nice and Decent, . . . Good-Natured,' Says Zoo Keeper

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

There are those who contend, not without reason, that Jennie, the baby elephant, is the most fetching animal to hit the Zoo within recent memory.

These people, looking at Jennie through the bars, are seized with an insatiate desire to pick her up in their arms and cuddle her—despite her 450 pounds.

Frank O. Lowe, the headkeeper, explains this attraction:

"She's just like a baby—just a youngster. Nice and decent and good natured . . . and we hope to keep her that way."

Her Floppy Ears

Lowe might also have spoken of her reddish-brown hair, sparse as any baby's; of the way her eyes shine, her small ears flop about; the way her tiny trunk toys with a wisp of hay, or hopefully reaches through the bars for her favorite delicacy, carrots; and the way she swings rhythmically back and forth on her legs as if dancing.

Jennie is 4 feet 6 inches high. She's got about 25 years to go before she reaches her full 8 to 11 feet. When that time arrives she'll be eating 90 pounds of food a day. Right now it's a baby's 15 pounds, consisting of grain and vegetables — carrots, apples, beets and sweet potatoes —which she gets at 8 a. m. and 3 p. m., and of "all the hay she wants" all day long.

Jennie will soon celebrate her third birthday. To get an idea of what age that is for an elephant, you need only be told that the famous Old Babe reached a venerable 98 before she died at the Zoo.

Four Months From Siam

It has been almost four months since Jennie left the Siamese jungle by airplane to take up residence in Washington. She seems to be getting along beautifully in her new home.

In this regard, Lowe yesterday gave out the secret of rearing a baby elephant.

It bears a striking resemblance to the modern-school theory of rearing human children and is: "Let her do what she wants to do." Don't inhibit her.

Or put another way: "Don't make her do things she doesn't want to do."

The head keeper gave this further explanation into the workings of a young elephant's mind:

If you make her do things she doesn't want to do there will come a day, perhaps three years later. She looks up from her hay and, through the bars, her eyes come to rest on a two-legged freak bearing a general resemblance to the one who three years ago made her come inside when she really wanted to stay in her outdoor pen. And suddenly she picks up a big clod of dirt with her trunk and lets go at this freakish specimen.

"Nice and Decent"

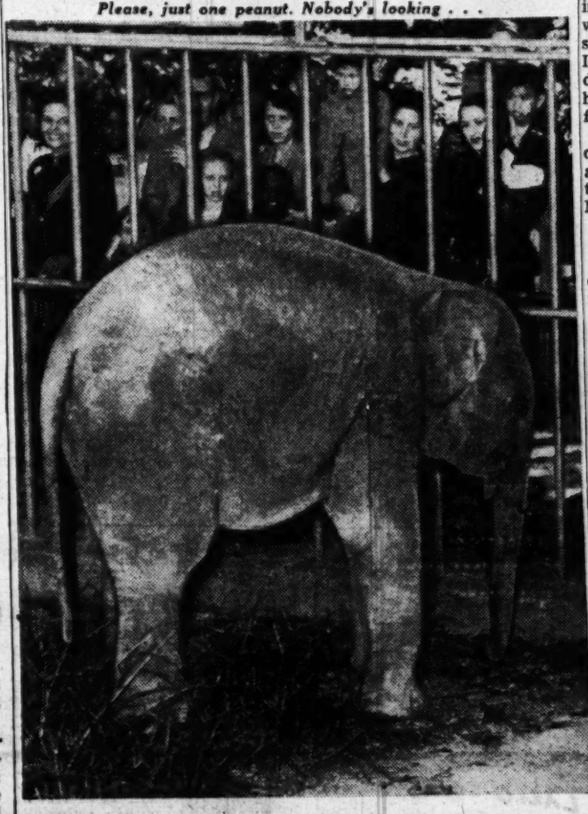
But Jennie today is "nice and decent and good-natured" and the three keeper foster-parents assigned to her rearing are bending all efforts to keep her that way. Such things as letting her do as she likes, and giving her hair a brushing every afternoon.

Her admirers could help out, Lowe suggests, by obeying the big sign "do not feed the elephant" instead of giving her the peanuts she's always asking for. This is mistaken generosity.

"A dozen peanuts won't hurt," as Lowe points out, "but when 5000 people bring in a handful of peanuts each. . . ."

Jennie, like other babies, it seems needs to be kept on a diet.

Please, just one peanut. Nobody's looking . . .



Shucks, not one peanut. Nothing but smiles . . .

By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post
So I gotta stick to my feeding schedule, huh?

Delay Seen For Payments To GI Students

Some of the 26,000 veterans in the District area going to school under the GI Bill of Rights will have to wait until December for first subsistence checks from the Veterans' Administration.

This was disclosed yesterday by Chester F. Naumowicz, regional office manger here.

A combination of the registration procedure at schools, colleges and universities here, plus a resultant "log jam" in the VA regional office, is responsible for the outlook, Naumowicz said.

Registration at major universities were scheduled from September 1 through October 3, he said. Some schools will not forward veterans' papers to the VA for 20 days after registration. One major university, he said, will enroll 5000 veterans, but VA doesn't expect all the institution's documents until October 21.

"As a result," he said, "many veterans entering schools will not receive subsistence checks as early as they might have expected. The majority of veterans will be paid by November 30."

Naumowicz said that with overtime work and extra staff detailed to processing, he said, peak output will be 750 cases per day.

He urged veterans not to write, telephone or visit the VA office about their subsistence checks. He said that this will tie up individual workers and result in slowing the entire procedure.

Woman Dies, Traffic 6th Victim Here In 8 Days

Struck by Panel Truck Saturday; 48 Traffic Deaths Recorded in 1949

District traffic deaths, 1949..48
Deaths this date, 1948.....50
Total traffic deaths, 1948....67

The sixth Washington traffic death in eight days occurred yesterday when Mrs. Lucy Mayo, 48, of 2111 18th st. nw., died at Freedmen's Hospital.

She was injured Saturday at New Jersey ave. and N st. nw., when, police said, she was struck by a panel truck driven by Silas H. Hunter, 30, a construction laborer, of 506 P st. nw.

Police said Hunter told them he was driving north on New Jersey ave., with a streetcar proceeding slightly ahead of him. He said he saw two women standing in the intersection and believed they would remain there until the streetcar and his vehicle passed. Instead, he told police, one suddenly stepped directly in front of him and he was unable to stop before striking her.

He was held yesterday for a coroner's inquest. Authorities said an autopsy will be performed to determine exact injuries suffered by Mrs. Mayo.

The other victims were:

Mrs. Effie Mae Hill, 26, of 914 3d st. nw. died from injuries received when she fell or jumped from her husband's auto at 3d and C sts. ne., last Sunday.

Mrs. Ruth Phillips, 37, of 3100 Connecticut ave. nw., died instantly in a crash into a tree in the 3900 block of Cathedral ave. nw., last Sunday.

Robert C. Taishoff, 8, 4545 Linnean ave. nw., died in a bicycle-auto crash near Linnean ave., and Brandywine st., Tuesday.

William E. Rideout, 81, of 1820 Swann st. nw., died of injuries received when struck by a bus in the 100 block of 0 st. ne., Thursday.

Mrs. Florence Anderson, 58, of 46 F st. nw., died of injuries received when struck by a streetcar, at G st. and New Jersey ave. nw., Saturday.

Four Men Killed Near Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 25 (AP).—Four young men, all members of well-known Frederick families, died in an automobile crash near here early today.

The accident occurred on United States Route 40 about two miles east of Funkstown at 12:25 a. m.

State Police Cpl. Charles D. Mades identified the dead as: Raymond George Brown, 24; Archie D. Whisner, jr., 22; William Chester Kennedy, 21, and Charles Elmer Linton, 22.

Mades said Brown was the driver of the death car.

The officer quoted John M. Beckley, 49, of Hagerstown, as saying Brown's car, traveling east, started to pass Beckley's car, which was going in the same direction.

Beckley said the other car struck his left rear fender as it passed, went out of control, careened down the highway for another 125 feet, then struck a construction roller parked along the road.

Mades said all four men apparently were killed instantly.

Radio Man Injured In Flash Fire at Home

An Arlington radio repairman was injured slightly yesterday when he smashed out a window in the basement of his home to escape a flash fire.

Ernest A. Patterson, 23, of 3703 S. Four Mile Run dr., suffered lacerations to the right arm when he forced out the window. The blaze started when a container of gasoline ignited, Arlington fire officials said.

Mrs. Dimond, Wife Of Judge, Dies

In Two Groups

Gold Star Mothers Go To Arlington

Two groups of mothers who lost sons in the World Wars gathered at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier yesterday to observe Gold Star Mother's Day.

American Gold Star Mothers of the World Wars made their eighteenth pilgrimage while the infant American Gold Star Mothers, Inc., made their first visit.

The Gold Star Mothers, Inc., laid wreaths at a 1 p. m. ceremony at which its national president, Mrs. Elmer D. Boyd of Long Beach, Calif., made a short speech.

At ceremonies beginning at 2:30 p. m., Mrs. Mathilda Burling, the president of the other organization, read a message from President Truman imparting his greetings.

On hand, too, for the afternoon observances were representatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Regular Veterans Association, United States Coast Guard, Catholic War Veterans, Amvets, Fleet Reserve Association and Jewish War Veterans.

Music was furnished by the United States Army Band. An honor guard was furnished by the Fort Myer ceremonial detachment.

Concert Set at Gallery

The National Gallery Orchestra, led by Richard Bales, will give a concert at 8 p. m. Sunday in the East Garden Court, National Gallery of Art, Constitution ave. and 5th st. nw. Giovanni Bagarotti, violinist, will be soloist.

The Air Force chapter of the Reserve Officers Association, Washington Department, will meet today at 8 p. m. in the Raleigh Hotel. A technical noncombat film will be shown. All Air Force reservists are invited.

William H. Colvin

Evanston, Ill., Sept. 25 (AP).—William H. Colvin, 79, retired broker and former president of the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago Stock Exchange, died in his home here today.

The death at Anchorage, Alaska, of Mrs. Dorothea Miller Dimond wife of a Federal judge there and former residence of Washington, was disclosed here yesterday by friends and relatives.

Mrs. Dimond

Mrs. Dimond was the wife of Judge Anthony J. Dimond, who from 1933 to 1945 was delegate in Congress from Alaska.

Friends were informed she suffered a cerebral hemorhage, Saturday, and died within a few hours. She was 57.

A native of Seattle, Wash., Mrs. Dimond moved with her family to Valdez, Alaska, when she was 10 years old. There she met and married Mr. Dimond. He held a number of public offices in the territory until he became delegate in 1933.

He received the Federal judgeship appointment late in 1944, and was confirmed shortly afterward. In 1945, he moved with Mrs. Dimond to Anchorage to take up his new duties.

Mrs. Dimond was active in affairs of the Congressional Club during their residence here.

Beside her husband, Mrs. Dimond is survived by three children, Sister Marie Therese, a nun at Trinity College in Washington, Anne, and John; three brothers, John D. Miller, a Department of Justice attorney whose residence is in Washington but who is now on the West Coast; Fabian Miller, Palo Alto, Calif., and Henry Miller of San Gabriel, Calif.; and two sisters, Miss Catherine Miller, Oakland, Calif., and Mrs. Andre Colbank of Mazieres-sur-Oise, France.

Chest Leaders Named

Charles N. Graham, manager for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. in Silver Spring, Md., and William J. Wohlfarth, president of the Edgemoor Motor Co., Bethesda, Md., have been appointed chairmen of the Montgomery County Community Chest campaign for the eastern and western suburban areas, respectively.

R. T. Swaine, Noted Lawyer, Dies at 63

New York, Sept. 25 (NYHT). Robert Taylor Swaine, 63, head of the law firm of Cravath, Swaine & Moore, of 15 Broad Street, and one of the Nation's leading lawyers in the field of corporate finance, died today at his home in Hampshire House.

A specialist in reorganizations and consolidations, Swaine took part in the reorganization of many railroads. Among them were the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, St. Louis-San Francisco, the Seaboard Airline and the Western Pacific.

For many years, Swaine was general counsel of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway, and director and counsel to the board of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific. In 1931 and 1932, he helped write the controversial Section 77 of the Federal bankruptcy law, which provided for court action to decide the insolvency of a railroad, and to pave the way for reorganization without consent of the stockholders.

Swaine was a director of the Chemical Bank and Trust Co. and the Westinghouse Electric Corp.

Swaine was born April 29, 1886, at Tingley, Iowa. He worked his way through the University of Iowa, and was graduated in 1905 as the youngest member of his class. He taught history for two years. In 1907, he entered Harvard Law School. He served as an editor of the Harvard Law Review for two years, and was its president in his final year.

Leading his class in scholarship, he was graduated in 1910 cum laude.

In 1910, he joined the firm of Cravath, Henderson & de Gersdorff. He became a partner in 1917. The firm became Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, in 1928, and Cravath, Swaine and Moore in 1944.

Swaine was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic fraternity, and Delta Sigma Rho, forensic fraternity.

Arthur G. Cousins

Henley, England, Sept. 25 (AP).—Arthur George Cousins, 67, chairman of the London Daily Herald and Odham's Press, Ltd., died at his home here today. He was one of the trustees of Reuters, British news agency.

The publishing group which he headed claims to produce newspapers and periodicals with a weekly circulation of 22 million.

Mrs. Johnson, Sculptor, Feted On Eve of 103d Birthday Here

Appropriately, the festivities for Mrs. Johnson, who says she will be 103 years old today, began with a program in the crypt of the Capitol before her monument to Susan B. Anthony, Lucretia Mott and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, her contemporaries in the suffragette movement.

The program was followed with a reception in Mrs. Johnson's old studio-home at 230 Maryland ave. ne., which was featured by an elaborate birthday cake and gifts.

The birthday program marked the start of a campaign by the Friendly Service Group to raise funds for Mrs. Johnson, now in straitened circumstances, and the care of the sculptures in her Maryland ave. home. The immediate goal is $15,000.

In a brief talk that brought tears to the eyes of those present at the reception, Mrs. Johnson alluded to her dream of a museum to remind women of what earlier women had undergone to raise the sex to its present status, and said, "I can truly say this is the greatest day of my life.

"I see the fulfillment of my dream beginning, and whether I shall be privileged to see the end depends on God's will."

For the program and reception she wore the same raiment that she wore when the statue to the women's rights pioneers was unveiled in the Capitol in 1921—the first monument to women in any national capital—over a white dress a white whipcord cape frogged in white satin, all of her own design and making.

On the cape she wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses, and in her hair a lacey ivory comb that had belonged to her great-grandmother. The comb increased her resemblance to Queen Victoria, in her later days, a resemblance that has been often remarked.

Paying tribute to Mrs. Johnson, her old friend, Clinton N. Howard, superintendent of the International Reform Organization, said at the Capitol program, "To have lived a century is honor enough, but a century of artistic creation that will survive centuries after she has gone to her reward is to be crowned with immortality on earth and heaven."

Dr. Howard Dawson, representing the National Education Association, Dr. Florence Armstrong, acting chairman of the National Woman's Party, of which Mrs. Johnson is a life member, and Mrs. Grace Meta Keebler, in whose home at 126 C st. ne. Mrs. Johnson has lived the past two years, also spoke.

Among the distinguished guests was Kalervo Kallio, Finnish sculptor, whose clay portrait bust of Mrs. Johnson stood on a pedestal by her white sculpture banked by flowers and palms from the Botanic Garden.

Mrs. Emile Hurja was honorary chairman and Dr. Elizabeth Conrad, president of the University Women's Club, was master of ceremonies.

Mrs. Johnson was born in Plymouth, Ill., the daughter of a successful '49er. Her family was connected with Stephen A. Douglas and President Andrew Johnson, and Abraham Lincoln is said to have been a visitor in her parents' home.

Archie Engel Dies; Local Optometrist

Archie D. Engel, 67, local optometrist, amateur magician and World War I secret agent, died early yesterday morning at his residence, 4512 Connecticut ave. nw., after a short illness.

Mr. Engel

An optometrist for 40 years in Washington, Mr. Engel was also a pioneer in the local entertainment field. He operated one of the first motion picture theaters in the District, the old Lafayette Theater in the 1300 block of E st. nw.

An active member of the Variety Club, for several years he has been the general chairman of the annual program fund raising committee.

Mr. Engel was active in Masonic circles and was made a thirty-third degree Mason by Supreme Council Southern Jurisdiction in October, 1919, one of the youngest ever to reach this honor in this section. He was first master of Albert Pike Lodge 36 which he organized and chartered in 1921.

He was also a member of the Oldest Inhabitants of Washington, D. C., Optometric Society and International Brotherhood of Magicians.

During World War I, he was a secret agent for the Treasury Department. During the last war, he was active at the Stage Door Canteen, and was the recipient of a Certificate of Merit from the Treasury Department for his efforts on behalf of war bond rallies.

Mr. Engel was born in Washington, the son of David and Mamie Engel. His father was a well-known inventor. He is survived by his wife, Katherine Curtis Engel.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 3 p. m. at the Scottish Rite Temple, 2800 16th st. nw. The body will lie in state at 1 p. m. Burial will take place at the Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

Mrs. Duncan, Ex-Indiana Teacher, Dies

Mrs. Pearl Kimble Duncan, 71, Washington resident of 32 years and former Indiana school teacher, died at her home Saturday just a week after the death of her husband, Frank C. Duncan, a retired Government employe.

She lived at 4406 Greenwich pkwy. nw. and had been ill for several months.

Mrs. Duncan was born in Metamora, Ind., and was graduated from Brookville High School and Indiana State Teachers' College before becoming a teacher in her home State. She also taught a year in Puerto Rico.

Mrs. Duncan was married in 1913, and came here four years later. She was a member of the board of managers of the Crittenton Order and the Foxhall Garden Club.

Surviving are two nieces, Mrs. Grover Federman of Indianapolis, Ind., and Mrs. Patricia F. Evans of Baltimore.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at St. Patrick's Episcopal Church, Foxhall rd. and Greenwich prkwy. nw. Burial will be in Bloomington, Ind. It is requested that no flowers be sent.

Seven-Day Public Festival Will Mark 150th Year For Naval Gun Factory

WHEN the Naval Gun Factory celebrates its 150th anniversary this week there'll be fun in it for the whole family.

Seven days of parades, tournaments and exhibitions have been planned to make it very much worth your while to drop over to see the world's largest naval armament plant. And the good part is, the kids will enjoy it just as much as you.

The factory, which stretches a mile along the Anacostia River, will be open to visitors from 1 to 6 p. m. daily Monday through Friday for special demonstrations and just plain sightseeing.

But the festivities over next weekend will highlight the birthday observance. Saturday's schedule opens with the Naval Gun Factory softball championship game for the 150th Anniversary Trophy. That will be at 11 a. m. From 1 to 1:30 p. m. the Navy Band will give a concert at Willard Park.

Races Next

CANOE and shell races will follow at the waterfront. At 2:15 dozens of colorful floats will take part in a water pageant and then a full-dress boat parade will move along the river front. At 2:30 the Navy's newest air ships—including phanton jets—will pass in review at an altitude of about 300 feet.

From 3:30 to 4 p. m. an underwater demolition team will use high explosives to remove sunken obstacles, and other demonstrations of Navy techniques will follow.

After dark Saturday there'll be an illuminated canoe show, a fireboat display, another boat parade and the crowning of a Queen of the festivities.

Sunday morning several ships visiting at the Gun Factory's docks will be open to the public. And from noon to about 4:15 p. m. there will be a power boat regatta.

Tennis Matches Set

HIGHLIGHTING the weekday entertainment will be tennis tournaments on the Gun Factory's clay courts. Rear Admiral F. G. Fahrion, factory superintendent, has invited several of Washington's top Army, Navy and Air Force officers to join him in the Flag and General Officers Doubles Tournament. It gets underway at 2 p. m. Thursday.

The All-Service Singles match begins at 2 p. m. Tuesday and lasts through Friday afternoon. Following the final matches Friday, Pauline Betts, former women's national singles title holder, will meet Harris Everett, the Army Navy Country Club pro in an exhibition game. Lieut. Comdr. Helen Hull Jacobs, USNR, will referee the matches.

New Food Tips Coming

WHAT'S new in foods?

The very latest tips, hot off the griddle from the national Newspaper Food Editors Conference in Chicago, will reach you this week via The Washington Post.

You'll learn about new foods soon to be introduced, hear about unusual dishes and menus through the stories of Post Food Editor Lucia Brown, who is attending the conference. There will be reports of significant nutritional studies, exciting news about china, pressure cookers, and other household equipment. So watch for the stories from Chicago on the women's pages beginning Tuesday.

See the Teacher

SO YOU'RE worried about your child's new teacher! You aren't too sure Mary, Johnnie or Jim will like her. And suppose little Sue doesn't like to study and whispers too loud and often. Or perhaps you'd like to explain Robert's nervousness. Well, why not meet the teacher and quit worrying? All the 69 branches of the Parent-Teachers' Association are mapping out ways and means this week to persuade you to join your nearest branch.

Hooked Rug Lore

HOW would you like to learn the art of making hooked rugs? It's fashionable, as well as an outlet for your artistic talents. In addition, it's a way to save dollars on carpets.

Some 50 women will display their handiwork in a two-day, hooked rug exhibit, sponsored by Mrs. Phyllis H. Larsen. Open to the public, the exhibit will be held Friday, September 30, noon to 10 p. m. and Saturday, October 1, 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., in the Hamilton-Adams suite at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Each day a demonstration on hook-rug making will be given by several members of Mrs. Larsen's class. Both antique and modern designs will be made before your eyes. At the same time you can sign up for classes should you like.

One interesting design, made by Mrs. Larsen was inspired by the wall paper in George Washington's bedroom at Mount Vernon.

Helpful Girl Scouts

IF YOU live out in Arlington, having toddlers needn't prevent your taking a Girl Scout leader's training course.

A special "sitter service" has been arranged by the Arlington Girl Scouts to take care of the children while their mothers train. They'll all be tended at one central place while mother is in class, says Mrs. George Pollard, commissioner.

Leaders for Intermediate Scouts are vitally needed, so if you can help out, call the Girl Scout office in Arlington this week. The classes will be held each Wednesday beginning October 5 and ending November 2. Hours are 10 a. m. to 2 p. m., and the meeting place is the Clarendon Presbyterian Church, 1300 N. Irving st., Arlington.

Jobe Says...

Skirts Creep Up As Foliage Falls

WHEN I came back from Paris, I found everyone up in the air about skirt lengths. I'm not surprised, because even Paris was confused.

Skirt lengths there varied from 13 to 16 inches from the floor. But the very short lengths were on tight skirts that are too extreme for general wear anyhow.

Finally the best fashion minds — both Parisian and American — virtually agreed that the prevailing skirt length for this season will be moderately short—reaching the curve of the calf. This is about 14 inches from the floor on a tall girl—5 feet seven—less on shorter women.

Curve-of-the-calf is a becoming length for all women because it adjusts itself to her own height.

Chocolate, in Particular

If You'd Banish Acne, Shun Rich, Fatty Foods

By Ida Jean Kain

This is the seventh of 12 articles on tenn-age slimming.

THIS column on acne may not be of general interest, but to some teen-agers it will be the most important in the series.

Happily, the protective diet needed to normalize weight will also help clear up skin blemishes. The foods to be restricted are the same in each case—sweets, foods high in starch and foods rich in fat.

IDA JEAN KAIN

Excessive amounts of sugar and starch often interfere with normal functioning of the skin, so consequently aggravate acne. Rich fatty foods, greasy foods and fried foods also play a considerable part in the cause of skin blemishes.

The main factors involved in the correction of acne are diet, skin cleanliness and exercise. We'll start with diet. The one food that must be avoided altogether is chocolate. That means candy, sauce, frosting, cakes, cookies, puddings, chocolate milk, cocoa, hot chocolate, chocolate ice cream—all forms of chocolate must be strictly avoided.

Other fats to shun are gravy, fried foods and the fatty part of meats. Go light on mayonnaise, French dressing, peanut butter and cream. Avoid all rich pastries and desserts, whipped cream and sauces on ice cream. Also stay away from hot breads and such things as dumplings with gravy.

Never mind if this cuts out many of your favorite foods—the results will be well worth it. You may ask ruefully, what's left? All the protective foods, the foods around which a good weight-control diet is planned—milk, fresh and canned fruits, green and leafy and yellow vegetables, all vegetables, wholegrain bread and cereal, lean meat, fish and fowl, eggs and cheese: You won't go hungry.

In some allergy cases the acne may be caused by a particular food sensitivity—to milk or eggs, for example—but these are the exception.

With others, the trouble may be traceable to a cosmetic allergy, including powder, face cream, nail polish, hand lotion, lipstick. Or the allergy may be to feathers, dust or something of that nature. A skin specialist, called a dermatologist, can make tests to find the offending substance. Be sure to ask his fee first.

Cleanliness is all-important. Don't powder over a dirty face or use a soiled puff or rub face with dirty hands. Wash your face several times a day with a mild soap, one that is low in fat. Rinse off all soap. Avoid face creams that are rich in fats. Particular attention should also be given the scalp and hair.

Outdoor exercise stimulates circulation and is imperative for healthy functioning of the skin. Join a hiking club, play badminton, tennis, skate, bike, rake leaves . . . any active outdoor exercise.

Drink plenty of water between meals. Have a large glass of warm water with juice of half a lemon before breakfast, and after breakfast allow time for regular elimination.

How to Restore Color to Dress

I have a rayon faille dress of navy blue which has turned red under the arms from perspiration. Is there any way to change it back to blue? R. G.

The blue color in the dress may have been destroyed by the stain—in which case there is no way to restore it. If, however, it has been just changed, you may restore it by dampening with water and holding in the fumes of an open bottle of ammonia; or, sponge it with a half-and-half ammonia and water solution. After sponging with ammonia solution, immediately sponge with white vinegar.

Please tell me if we can buy colored burlap (for use in framing pictures and doing other handicraft work) anywhere in Washington. R. A. M.

Colored burlap can be purchased in several Washington department stores. It is sold where drapery materials by the yard are sold.

Will you please publish a recipe for making sour cream as much as possible like the processed type which is available in grocery stores? M. J. H.

Commercially processed sour cream is made by innoculating pasteurized sweet cream with lactic acid and incubating it at 68 to 72 defrees F. for 18 hours. The heavy body is obtained by the development of lactic acid at strictly controlled temperature under sterile conditions. The excellent flavor of commercially soured cream is due to its development aseptically which absolutely eliminates growth of putrafactive organisms.

When souring cream at home, it is very difficult if not impossible, to keep it at the optimum temperature for development of lactic acid and sterile. However, if you wish to experiment a bit, here are some suggestions which might help you: Mix pasteurized buttermilk with pasteurized coffee cream. I can't say how much, but it won't take a great amount, for all you want to do is introduce the lactic acid organism into the sweet cream. Let stand at 68-72 degree temperature for 12 to 18 hours. For excellent flavor it is necessary that the cream be kept as sterile as possible. To do this, boil all utensils used in the process and cover the container tightly during the incubation period. If you start with pasteurized cream and buttermilk, you will not need to boil either before combining.

Recently I read in The Post about a Government booklet entitled "The Child from Six to Twelve." Can you tell me where I should write to get this and what it costs? B. D. O.

The booklet can be purchased for 20 cents by writing to the Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington 5, D. C.

Is there any group in Washington that does choral singing? I am an amateur and am particularly interested in groups that meet during the day. E. L. K.

The Young Women's Christian Association has tentative plans for organizing a mixed choral group to meet Friday evenings, 7 to 8 p. m. For further information about this group I suggest you call the "Y" at Metropolitan 2100, extension 31.

Wise Mother
FINDS NEW RELIEF!
For STUFFINESS, COUGHS of COLDS

Wise mothers know how really effective Vicks VapoRub is when you rub it on.

Now, they know for new, amazing, all-family relief when there's much coughing or stuffiness . . . it's wise to use VapoRub this special way, too . . . in steam! It brings relief almost instantly.

Put 1 or 2 good spoonfuls of VapoRub in a vaporizer or bowl of boiling water, as directed in package. Then . . . breathe in soothing, medicated vapors.

Use it in steam—Rub it on, too! VICKS VAPORUB

TO HUSBANDS whose Wives are going through
"CHANGE OF LIFE"
No question about it! A woman going through "the change" is often a real problem. Nervous, tense . . . depressed one day, cranky the next . . . it's enough to drive a man almost crazy!
But take hope, Mister! If your wife is just a "bundle of nerves" because of functional upsets, tell her about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.
Developed by a prominent doctor, this famous uterine sedative has been used by over 7 million women, often with remarkable results. Taken regularly, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts as a tonic to help build up resistance and calm jittery nerves. It may be just what your wife needs to make her feel "like herself" again.
Ask your druggist today for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. 35 tablets, 50¢. Liquid, $1.00.

Flower Prize Goes To Manassas Man

In addition, Adams captured sweepstakes in Division 1, garden flowers, and one of three special awards for best roses in the show.

The show, sponsored by seven different organizations of garden and rose enthusiasts, attracted more than 1000 persons, and proceeds will be used for a number of garden club civic projects. These include planting of the Alexandria Hospital grounds, Gadsby's Tavern courtyard, and beautifying of roadside planting and improvement of grounds of historical homes.

Sponsoring groups included the Hunting Creek Garden club; Garden section of the Alexandria Women's club; Potomac Rose society, of Washington; garden section of the Belle Haven Women's club; Beverley Hills Women's club; and the Yates Garden club.

Entrants competed in 47 garden flower classes, 10 classes of dahlias, in addition to 40 more in which entries were not judged, 48 classes of roses; and a number of other classes including commercial exhibitors and inter-club competition.

In addition to exhibits of individual and club competitors, the show featured a number of displays by commercial growers as well as exhibits of newest gardening equipment, supplies, and chemicals.

Mrs. R. C. Beverly, general chairman of the show, presented the special awards at 7 p. m. They were:

Over-all sweepstakes, J. E. Adams; sweepstakes, Division 1, J. E. Adams; sweepstakes, Division 2, Mrs. Virgil Davis, Alexandria; sweepstakes, Division 3, Harold J. Holt, Baltimore, Md.; sweepstakes, Division 5, Mrs. James O'Neil, Belle Haven, Va.

Also, Inter-Club Invitation class, Division 5, Neighborhood Garden Club, Arlington, Va.; special awards for best dahlias, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Robert Daniel, Alexandria, and Mrs. Davis; special awards for best roses, Mr. Holt, Mrs. R. H. Hutchings, North Arlington, Va., and Mr. Adams.

Also, award to garden club winning most points on membership basis, Potomac Rose Society; special award, novice class in dahlias, Mrs. Davis; special award, novice class in roses, Irving Axelrad, Alexandria; silver medal certificate of Potomac Rose Society, Mr. Holt; and bronze medal certificate of Potomac Rose Society, Mr. Axelrad.

Postlude

Bales Leads Orchestra At Gallery

By Richard Keith

The National Gallery Orchestra, Richard Bales conducting, played a concert last night at the National Gallery before a large audience of Washington music lovers.

A slow movement from one of C. P. E. Bach's Concerti opened the program and was dedicated to the memory of the late Hans Kindler. Its sorrowful yet dignified lines made it a very fitting memorial piece.

The middle of the program was an odd collection of what really amounted to very pretentious salon music—ponderously pointless.

La Salle Spier's Journey With a Clarinet, a thick pottage of folk tunes and Foster melodies about Virginia, still sounds like movie music of the primitive school.

Benjamin Britten has streamlined and chromium-plated several little Rossini tunes in his Second Suite after Rossini. If you like this type of thing, here is a skillful bit of it for you.

The program closed with the great Jupiter Symphony by Mozart, which is anything but salon music.

It is early in the season and the orchestra sounded pretty ragged. Without doubt it will soon recover that precision which it displayed so admirably last season.

WHEN KIDNEYS Work Too Often

Are you embarrassed and bothered by too frequent elimination during the day and night? This symptom as well as burning, itching passages, Bladder Irritations, Backache, Strong Cloudy Urine, pressure over the Bladder, swollen ankles or rheumatic pains, may be due to temporary germ irritation and non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. In such cases the very first dose of CYSTEX usually goes to work right now helping you these three ways: 1. Helps nature remove certain irritating non-specific germs in acid conditions. 2. Thus helps relieve a frequent cause of many aches and pains. 3. By relieving and calming irritated tissues, it helps reduce frequent or smarting passages day and night. Get CYSTEX from your druggist. Give it a fair trial under satisfaction or money back guarantee.

NOT FOR LONG does French Capt. Cary Grant enjoy this quiet moment with WAC Wife Ann Sheridan in "I Was a Male War Bride," the new comedy at the Palace. Soon Cary will be masquerading as a uniformed WAC

Aged Cars Rattle Into Luray First Night of Glidden Tour

By Harmon W. Nichols

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 25 (U.P.)—While most of the Nation turned time back one hour to get back on standard time, 85 brave citizens rolled it back 25 years today to prove the gasoline buggy is here to stay.

With a clatter and rattle heard for miles, the automobiles of another decade began sputtering off on a six-day, 600-mile caravan through Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware in a revival of the early Glidden automobile reliability tours.

The fastest of the vehicles made the 125-mile distance in five hours, but some were still straglihg into Luray late tonight.

Dusters and Goggles

The hardy drivers were decked out in linen dusters and goggles as the strange parade started its winding, torturous route. Several wore fur overcoats and one, Walter Matter of Hawley, Pa., had on a pair of button shoes.

To prevent further jams in the already-jammed Sunday traffic, the old cars left in small bunches—the smaller and slower cars first.

The first to chug out of town at 7 a. m., EST, was J. H. Gest of Montreal, Canada. He was driving a 1902 Knox special.

The oldest car in the lineup was a one-cylinder Oldsmobile of 1901 vintage.

Matter—he of the button shoes—was driving a 1910 Model T Ford, which he said "takes all the hills in high."

Mrs. Paul E. du Pont, who accompanied her husband in a 1924 Du Pont, took no chances on the food situation en route. She packed along the makings of a lunch and a sterno stove.

The tour, limited to cars of 1924 vintage and earlier, is sponsored by the Antique Automobile Club of America, with the assistance of the American Automobile Association.

Tours Started In 1905

The Glidden tours were started in 1905 to prove that old Dobbin was spavined and out of date and that the horseless carriage was here to stay.

They were revived by M. J. Duryea, son of the pioneer auto builder, Charles E. Duryea.

When the tour winds up in Wilmington, Del., there will be a number of prizes. One will be awarded for the most interesting car. Others will go to the best two-cylinder car; best early four-cylinder job, the best six-cylinder car, the best Model T Ford and the best steamer.

There also will be a prize to the owner of the motor that traveled the farthest from home.

N. J. Fair Honors Worton, Md., Farmer

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 25 (NYHT). A 29-year-old graduate of Maryland Agricultural College today was chosen as Farmer of the Year at the opening of the New Jersey State Fair.

He is Williams McGregor, a cattle raiser from Worton, Md., and an exhibitor at the fair. He was chosen by W. C. Sketly, of Rutgers University, director of the fair's cattle department.

One on the Aisle—

Cary Carries On as a WAC

By Richard L. Coe

THERE ARE a good many laughs in "I Was a Male War Bride," but not even the slick comedy skill of Cary Grant can disguise the fact that the new film at the Palace is a collection of burlesque blackouts strung together on one idea.

Every possible angle has been exploited to keep the central joke spinning, but the effort eventually gets too frantic for comfort. Ann Sheridan, as the object of Cary's discomfort, proves remarkably good-natured for the situations she's in and one can only congratulate her for surviving her ordeal.

Briefly put, Cary's a French army officer who's been assigned to work with an American officer in carrying out an occupation mission. That's Ann. They loathe each other; naturally they fall in love. Their marriage is accompanied by Army red tape and personal confusion. When Ann is ordered home, Cary wants to go with her. This means that he's got to masquerade as a WAC officer to get on the same ship. Only at the end of the picture are they permitted to be alone for the first time since the Army chaplain, the civil ceremony and the French priest have united them.

You don't have to be told that such a thing might have happened at more modest extremes. That an act of Congress admitting the spouse of United States personnel to stateside transportation could have given rise to odd circumstances is too true. You're willing to accept that. But the extremes, the efforts to postpone the wedding night and the stock farce characters and situations are too much for even fact! Cary.

The couple's adventures in carrying out their assignment are often rollicking slapstick, but even there you get a variation on the two-in-one-bedroom blackout that's worked to the nub. Cary set for the night on a hard chair, searching for a place to put his hands, Cary bunked in a bathtub, Cary roaming a port town for a bunk and winding up with the inevitable GI from the Bronx and a sharp WAC—on it goes, the obvious worked to death.

Grant comes close to fooling his audience that this is all good, brisk fun, but the script writers and director have asked too much from him. Yes, you'll get laughs, and some good ones, but the factory belt insistence that a classy comedy consume a particular number of minutes has preferred barrel heads of beer to champagne bubbles.

Senators Talk Of Absorbing Pay Hike Cost

By The Associated Press

Senate economy advocates yesterday talked of trying to tie a money-saving string to an armed services pay boost expected to win approval with little opposition.

The Senate is scheduled to vote Tuesday on the measure providing for the first general readjustment of military pay in over 40 years.

Under the bill most ranks from private to major general would get more money. The House already has passed a similar measure.

The pay hike would go into effect October 1, and the cost between then and the end of the fiscal year, next June 30, is estimated at 274 million dollars. The Senate Armed Services Committee figures that would jump to 348 million dollars the next fiscal year and then level off at 304 million dollars annually.

Passage Predicted

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.), a leader of the economy bloc, said there is no doubt the bill will pass and that he is for it. But he said there might be an effort to require the armed services to readjust their budgets for the current fiscal year to meet the initial 274-million-dollar cost of the measure.

"Quite a group of us have been talking about offering an amendment providing for absorption of that cost out of military funds already appropriated for this year," Bridges told a reporter.

The New Hampshire lawmaker is the senior Republican on the Senate Appropriations Committee. He said he is convinced that enough money can be squeezed out of funds now earmarked for the military to take care of the pay boost the first nine months.

"I don't look for any other attempts to amend the bill," Bridges said. "The lack of opposition in the debate so far makes it pretty clear it's a popular step."

Senators Hill (D., Ala.) and Magnuson (D., Wash.) also predicted easy passage.

Examples Given

Under the Senate version, the basic monthly pay and allowances of a major general with 26 years' service, for example, would be increased from $895.33 to $1118.25—a 25 percent boost.

The monthly basic pay of a private first class with three years' service would go from $94.50 to $102.90, a hike of 9 percent.

Congress members have explained that the increases are bigger in the higher ranks because there has been no pay adjustment at the top levels for many years.

Alexandria Man Elected to Head Holy Name Group

Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 25 (AP).—Clarence Dyson of Alexandria was elected president of the Richmond Diocesan Union of the Holy Name Society today. He succeeds John J. Bailey of Norfolk.

Alexandria was selected as next year's convention city.

William H. Collins, a Washington attorney and winner of the 1949 Vercelli Medal as Holy Name Man of the year, was the principal speaker at the convention. He asserted that "a broader and a fuller return to the spiritual" is the only hope of "preserving the civilization that we all cherish."

Collins told the Holy Name members "your task is to know your faith and live your faith and by the example you thereby give influence your fellow man."

Jacob Devers School Dedicated in York, Pa.

New Record Set In Construction Contracts for July

By The Associated Press

July set an all-time high record of 500 million dollars for construction contracts awarded by States, counties and municipalities, the Government reported yesterday.

This was one-fourth beyond the previous monthly peak of 396 million dollars in July, 1948, and a 29 percent increase in a single month.

For the first seven months of 1949, these contracts stood at $2,441,000,000, or 25 percent above the same period of a year ago.

This was reported by the new General Services Administration.

The contracts cover such projects as highways, sewer and water lines, schools, utilities and hospitals.

Municipal construction awards soared 50.6 percent in a month, State 13.2 and county 5 percent. The totals for the municipalities for July were 260 million dollars, for the State 176 million dollars, and counties 64 million dollars.

2 Burned in Crash In California Are Unidentified

Bakersfield, Calif., Sept. 25 (AP). The California Highway Patrol was trying to identify today the bodies of two men burned to death last night in a spectacular truck crash on the Ridge highway, 30 miles south of here.

The 20-ton truck careened out of control at Grapevine, high in the mountains. It plunged over a 150-foot precipice and set fire to a Grapevine restaurant, bar and the postoffice. Six automobiles parked in front of the cafe were damaged and six other cars, all unoccupied, were swept over the cliff with the truck.

Witnesses estimated the speed of the truck at 90 miles per hour just before it smashed into a gas station and then into the string of parked vehicles.

Flames, apparently started by the broken gasoline pumps, swept the building.

Two Pastors Changed By United Brethren

Roanoke, Va., Sept. 25 (AP).—Two major pastorate changes were announced at the final meeting of the three-day Virginia Conference of the Evangelical United Brethren Church here today.

The Rev. E. E. Miller will be stationed at Dayton at the Shenandoah College Church. The Rev. James A. Swain, formerly at Dayton, will go to Miller's former church at Harrisonburg, the stationing committee announced.

No other changes were made by the committee.

3 Area Men Receive Posts In Elks Group

Three Washington area men yesterday were named to committee posts in the Maryland, Delaware and District of Columbia Association of the Elks Lodge. The appointments were made at the close of a two-day meeting of the association at the Silver Spring Elks lodge.

John J. Mealy, Wilmington, Del., association president, appointed Joseph Mutyka, of the Washington lodge, as chairman of the auditing committee; H. Brooks Perring, of the Silver Spring lodge, as a member of the membership committee; and Charles H. Kopeland, of the Silver Spring lodge, as chairman of the publicity committee.

About 300 members and wives attended the session from 13 lodges, and all officers and committee chairmen were present.

President Mealy announced that the 1949-50 budget of the association will provide for operating Camp Robert South Barrett, at Camp Ritchie, Md., where 600 underprivileged boys spend a free week each summer.

Students Greeted By New St. John's College President

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 25 (AP).—The new president of St. John's college—home of the "100 Great Books Program"—met the new students at the institution today and told them he feels like one of them.

Making his first appearance before the student body since his appointment, Dr. Richard D. Weigle confessed a "feeling of particular affinity" with the class 1953.

"Perhaps both of us approach the 100 great books with a certain amount awe and trepidation," the 37-year old former State Department official said.

Only a few of the 120 or so upper classmen were on hand, but the 70-member freshmen class was well represented as Weigle spoke at the 159th convocation of the college.

The Yale graduate said he would accompany the students is reading the 100-odd books which are the heart of the institution's program.

"Only in that way can I gain a true understanding of the program," he explained.

10,000 Gather For Episcopal Meeting in West

San Francisco, Sept. 25 (AP).—Delegates to the 56th triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America registered today preparatory to opening their two-week meeting Monday. More than 10,000 bishops, priests and laymen were in attendance.

Prominent on the pre-convention program was the sermon at Grace Cathedral preached by the Rt. Rev. Cyril F. Garbett, Archbishop of New York and representative of the mother Church of England.

"If there is danger of catastrophe, if the time is short, we must do our best to make this world more ready for the coming of the Lord.

"If the time is short, we should use it to build up the kingdom of God and extend it to those who have never heard of it."

Wheaton Chamber Meets Wednesday

A special meeting of the Wheaton (Md.) Chamber of Commerce has been called by the newly-elected president, Thomas Oyster, for Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Glenmont Elementary School, Georgia ave., extended.

The session, Oyster said, is to make plans for a gala Halloween party for the children in the Wheaton area. Members will also discuss sponsoring an open meeting with civic groups and residents of the area to support proposed public parking lots, improved traffic lighting, sidewalks and the widening of Georgia ave.

Boy, 15, Shoots Father to Death; Calmly Tells Police

Scituate, Mass., Sept. 25 (AP).—A mild-mannered 15-year-old high school boy acted out for police today how he shot and killed his father with a borrowed pistol last night, then coolly went to sleep at a neighbor's

Francis Whorf, a sophomore at Scituate High School, was charged with murder. Investigators said the boy apparently was motivated by resentment of his father's beatings of his mother.

The father, Kenneth, 49, an employe of the Scituate Highway Department, was slain about 10 o'clock last night as he slept.

Shortly before 6 a. m. today young Francis woke his mother and hold her he had done "a terrible thing." She told him to go to a neighbor's and call police.

Labor, Business Heads to Discuss Chest Drive Today

Labor participation in the 1950 Community Chest Red Feather campaign will be the theme of a special labor-business luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today in the Hamilton Hotel.

C. F. Preller, campaign vice chairman, said yesterday the joint meeting, more than a month ahead of the first campaign report luncheon on October 31, will bring together interested leaders in both labor and business for an exchange of views on how to reach and exceed the $3,991,719 goal. Preller is president of the Washington Central Labor Union.

Campaign Chairman Frank J. Luchs invited unit, area and division chairmen of advance gifts—business I—to attend the joint session.

Kentucky Pastor Accepts Call to Arlington Church

The Rev. Dr. David Byrd, pastor of Waddy Baptist Church in Waddy, Ky., has accepted a call to the pastorate of Memorial Baptist Church, Arlington, Va. He will begin his work there November 1.

He will succeed the Rev. James W. Farmer, who has resigned to accept a post with the Virginia Baptist Board of Missions and Education.

Dr. Byrd is a native of Mississippi and a graduate of Mississippi State College. He is also a graduate of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., from which he received his doctorate.

Memorial Baptist Church was organized in April, 1947, under the leadership of Mr. Farmer, and now has a membership of 180 persons. The church is erecting a chapel at N. Glebe and Ditmar rds. in Arlington, which it expects to occupy within the next month. Services are now held in the Glebe Theater, N. Glebe rd. at Lee hwy.

'Agitator' Attacks Negroes, 'Ike' Says in Harlem

New York, Sept. 25 (NYHT).—American Negroes are constantly subject to attack "by a person called the agitator," General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University, told a Harlem audience of 10,000 this afternoon. He said race prejudice still exists in most parts of the United States but suggested the time will come when all citizens of the country will be simply "Americans."

Negroes have made great progress since the Civil War, Eisenhower said, in comparison with advances recorded over much longer periods of time by other races. He said Dr. Ralph Bunche, former U. N. mediator for Palestine, is "today one of the greatest statesmen this country has produced."

His listeners were especially enthusiastic over his definition of democracy: "A political expression of a deeply felt religion."

D. C. Shriners See Crippled Boy, 11, Walk First Time

Philadelphia, Sept. 25 (AP).—Victor Cattan celebrated his eleventh birthday by walking for the first time in his life.

In the presence of hundreds of guests who had come to help him celebrate at Shriners Hospital for crippled children, Victor discarded his crutches, and walked. Victor, plagued by a muscular condition that has crippled him since birth, had been termed a hopeless case by several hospitals. Ten operations have been performed in the past 20 months and doctors say one or two more may be necessary before the boy regains full use of his legs.

Among the guests at today's birthday celebration were 300 Shriners from Washington. Renah G. Camalier, imperial potentate of Washington, presented a check for $25,000 to W. Freeland Kendrick, who announced the hospital has received three million dollars in endowments. Kendrick said the money would be used to increase the hospital bed capacity to its full quota of 125 beds.

Mission Service Held

A farewell service was held last night for Frank H. Cox, who has been in charge of the men's department at the Central Union Mission, 613 C. st., nw., for the last three years.

The Rev. H. E. Eberhardt, superintendent, said Cox will leave this week to become superintendent of the Wayside Cross Mission, Anderson, Ind., which Eberhardt helped established 20 years ago.

Air Force to Send Rescue Plane for Lowell Thomas

New York, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—The United States Air Forces will send a rescue plane to pick up Lowell Thomas, news commentator who was seriously injured in the isolated mountains of Tibet, when his caravan reaches the Indian border, it was revealed today.

Thomas, who apparently suffered a broken thigh bone when he fell from his horse while crossing a 17,000-foot mountain pass, will be carried to the Indian border by bearers.

He will begin the 16-day trek Monday.

Hearings to Start On Video Changes

Looks Improved

Rubber Mask Fad Hits New York

New York, Sept. 25 (AP).—Come out from behind that false face, Ferdinand—we know you.

You're just a sad little guy who doesn't think much of himself, and you're trying to show a brave, bold face to the world.

The psychiatrist put it in longer words but that's the gist of how he explained today a strange new American custom—the wearing of rubber masks by otherwise normal people.

A drug store at 51st st. and Avenue of the Americas is selling 100 a day—"to business men, well-dressed women, all sorts of people."

For $1, it appears, you can transform yourself instantly into a pirate, a witch, a glamorpuss, the devil or 10 other weirdly assorted personalities.

Robeson Concert Quiet

Chicago, Sept. 25 (U.P.).—Negro baritone Paul Robeson sang the second of a series of three concerts here last night without any demonstration against his pro-Communist political sympathies.

By The Associated Press

Hearings which eventually will redesign the Nation's television system open today before the Federal Communications Commission.

They are expected to last for several weeks. Of most immediate importance from the public's standpoint will be the proposed addition of 42 new television broadcasting channels to the 12 presently available.

The addition is designed to more than treble the presently possible local television outlets.

The present 12 channels, in the "very high frequencies," will accommodate about 400 video stations in 140 population centers. The additional channels, in the "ultra high frequencies," could be expected to expand the operating potential to some 2000 stations in 1400 cities, towns and communities across the country.

Most existing television receivers are made to tune in the present 12 channels only. However, in areas which may receive the new "UHF" frequencies, adjusting devices would be made available at relatively low cost to enable UHF reception on existing sets.

The FCC hearing will also consider again the question of licensing color television for regular commercial operations. This matter will be considered first, and the first three weeks of the hearings will be devoted to color alone.

Specific proposals for operating color broadcasting systems have been submitted by Columbia Broadcasting System, Radio Corp. of America, Color Television, Inc., of San Francisco and Dr. Leon Rubenstein, New York inventor. In addition, Dr. Charles Willard Geer of the University of Southern California will demonstrate a special color-receiving tube and Webster-Chicago Corp. of Chicago will show an adapting device for tuning in color program broadcasts on black-and-white sets.

Brennan Takes Stand Today in Hearts Slaying

Dover, Del., Sept. 25 (AP).—Sixteen-year-old Robert Brennan takes the witness stand Monday in his own defense in Delaware's lonely hearts murder trial.

Mrs. Brennan met Wooldridge, Stone Mountain, Va., carpenter, through lonely hearts correspondence.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—The United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund, whose offices are at 405 E. 42d st., is soliciting individual contributions . . . Clifford Odets, in explaining his admiration for producer Jed Harris, said: "He's the only one on Broadway who knows who Lord Acton was" . . .

Bill Gargan was a close friend of the late Frank Morgan. And during a visit to Morgan's home they discussed the publicity about Morgan's controlling interest in the Angustora Bitters Company. "Actually," Morgan confided to him, "I have only a small interest in the company. Not even worth talking about" . . . Gargan asked him why he never discouraged the publicity about his alleged vast income from the Bitters company . . . "I encouraged such publicity, because it helps me in the dickering over contracts," said Morgan. "You can always get more money from movie companies, if they think you don't need it."

Carleton Smith, of the National Arts Foundation, last week visited the Gunsbach, Alsace, home of Albert Schweitzer, the 75-year-old philosopher-missionary-organist. Schweitzer, who carries special "organ shoes" with him, next spring will make disc recordings of his Bach interpretations. He'll practice all winter in Laubarence, Africa, on a piano with organ pedals. Schweitzer left for a trip to Sweden, and rode 3d class, a 30-hour trip in a train using only his overcoat as bedding. . . . Of his recent trip to America, he said he was most amused by having to write his food-orders in the dining-cars of trains. "I exercised my Statue-of-Liberty, land-of-the-free rights," he said, "and refused to write my order."

AMA Man Quits Health Fight

By Robert S. Allen

The American Medical Association has lost one of the top officials of its $3,500,000 drive against the President's national health insurance program.

He is David Brown, former editor of Liberty magazine.

Brown resigned because of strong disapproval of tactics and statements by Whitaker and Baxter, the high-powered, $100,000-a-year team of California publicity agents employed by AMA to mastermind its campaign.

One W-B assertion particularly challenged by Brown was an intimation that the Justice Department is terrorizing doctors opposing the President's plan. This charge was made to Washington newsmen. Brown investigated and stated he found the claim untrue.

An ace editor, Brown left Liberty to become editorial director of the AMA's drive. He was in immediate charge of the series of dinners AMA is staging for newsmen in big cities. In resigning, Brown told Whitaker and Baxter that if he had known in advance the nature of their methods and policies, he would not have joined them.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

What About Halloween?

In just a few weeks, now, one of the favorite holidays of America's youngsters will be upon us. Halloween has a long, though not always honorable, history in the United States.

For the most part, it has been a boys' holiday. Girls, of course, could bob for apples, dress up in witch costumes or something else appropriate. But as far as tricks on the townspeople were concerned, the gentler sex took a relatively minor role. It was the boys who turned over ash barrels, soaped windows, unhinged gates and engaged in other such deviltry. And it was their idea of good fun.

In a number of communities today substitute fun has been planned for the destructive fun that we used to enjoy. The schools, churches, neighborhood groups and even the community as a whole plan a kind of carnival in which youngsters and their parents may enjoy themselves. There are competitive games, community costume dances, church parties for the younger fry and a variety of other kinds of fun.

In spite of fond memories of the mischief we did, one has to agree that this newer approach is really better.

FLOWERY NOTES FOR BUDDING CORRESPONDENTS

CUT OUT BLOSSOMS
MRS F.E. CLAYTON WAUPACA, WIS.
DEAR MARY RUTH: MAKE STEMS AND LEAVES ON CALICO FLOWERS WITH PEN OR COLORED PENCILS.
PASTE IN POSITION
HERB. SWEET-
9-26

A lady in Wisconsin suggests this attractive way of decorating paper for note writing. This is a trick that can be done by anyone who can cut and paste materials. Although it looks very simple, the work must be done carefully or a very messy job results. There is a lot of opportunity for originality and color training.

Obtain small scraps of colored print in tiny patterns and using scissors cut out these small designs, and paste them in the corner of a sheet of plain note paper. If colored paper is used the cutouts should be from material that will combine well. Be careful and do not put too much paste on the material for it will smear and spoil your work.

Add stems and leaves or buds to the flower design after it is in position. Colored pencils or inks may be used for this. You will be proud of your finished paper, so write notes to your friends and see what their comments will be.

Tomorrow—Brown Bears From Burdoc Burs.

What's the Verdict

HIGH HEDGE

Q. The owner of a home on a corner lot plants a beautiful and expensive boxwood hedge. As the years pass, the intersection becomes a busy traffic spot, and the hedge becomes a serious traffic hazard because it completely cuts off the view of drivers. The police order the home owner to cut the hedge to a maximum height of 4 feet. Must he comply?

A. It is the duty of the city to maintain the streets in such a way as to make them safe for public use. Here, the city, acting through the police, is trying to place on the private property owner the burden of making this particular corner safe. In the absence of a lawful ordinance limiting the size of hedges, the home owner may not be forced to cut his hedge. To do so would be to deprive him of property without due process of law. The city could provide a traffic light, or a traffic policeman, or by the exercise of the right of eminent domain acquire an easement of view—whereby it would have to pay the owner for taking from him his right to the kind of hedge he wants.—F. Unknown Tomorrow

Tomorrow is a vision of . . . A day we do not know . . . With very cold or warming winds . . . That may not ever blow . . . It may be bright with happiness . . . Or it may hold a tear . . . Or it may just remind us of . . . Another yesteryear . . . Tomorrow is a question mark . . . That punctuates the line . . . Wherein we ask if it will rain . . . Or if the sun will shine . . . It is a hopeful picture of . . . The things there are to be . . . But not with any promises . . . Of love or sympathy . . . Tomorrow will be wonderful . . . . Or commonplace for some . . . While there are other souls for whom . . . That day will never come.

BARNABY

Well, Ellen. . I bought a television set today. I figure it's a good investment if it makes Barnaby forget that imaginary pink-winged Fairy Godfather of his. . .
You may be right, John. Barnaby is all worked up about television—
Darned old television! Since Paddy's Bar and Grill put in that set, my Fairy Godfather hasn't been around to see me once! Not even ONCE!
Barnaby! You're not playing right. . .
You're supposed to be the father coming home from a hard day's work and. . .
Aw, it's no fun playing make-believe things. I want my Fairy Godfather!

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Odds Are That the Less You Bet the More You Lose When You Win

This month's Reader's Digest (Page 37) has an item about a fellow who made a living by betting that he could pull either an ace, jack or deuce out of a deck of cards in three tries.

The item adds: "His victims . . . never did figure out that the odds were in his favor, 36 out of 52."

George E. Doying, sr., of 2833 27th st. nw. says that he's heard some argument on that point. The skeptics point out that 12 cards in the pack are aces, jacks or deuces; therefore 40 cards are not, and the odds against pulling one of the three mentioned cards are 40 to 12 in one try, or 40 to 36 in three tries.

According to that method of figuring, the odds would be 40 to 36 against the one who is drawing, rather than 36 out of 52 in his favor.

District Liner Doying had me convinced that the magazine article was in error. But Statistician Morris Katz, who compiles the charts that appear on our business page, says "no."

He says that "when the chances of success go up to 24 on the second draw, the chances of failure must be reduced to 28, because the total must remain constant at 52. On the third draw, it's 36 to 16, which is the same as 36 out of 52."

When I greeted this information with one of my blankest looks, he put it this way:

"Three chances at three different cards is the same as one chance at nine different cards. And if you could win by drawing any one of nine, and lose by drawing one of the other four, that would be 9 to 4—or 36 to 16."

Please direct complaints, if any, to Mr. Katz. I don't want jacks and deuces anyhow, and I know the odds against drawing an ace.

BALTIMORE BLVD.

Nell Baldwin of 4516 30th st. nw. suggests that the accident rate on Baltimore blvd. might be reduced by widening the highway (extra lanes on either side) and putting a grass plot in the middle, to stop the head-on collisions.

Sounds like a sensible suggestion. But what about the bottleneck at Laurel, where it isn't practical to widen the road, and the town fathers don't even prohibit parking on the main street when the races bring huge crowds through the city?

THE RED MENACE

Our recent remarks about lipstick on restaurant glasses has caused Mrs. William L. McDaniel of 1501 Olive st. ne. to do a great deal of soul searching.

"What should we women do?" she wonders. "Should we remove our lipstick before dining? These days it's an occasion when my husband takes me out to dinner, and every woman likes to look her best on these special occasions. So—is lipstick-on-glasses the woman's problem, or the restaurant's?"

Not a very easy question, but I'm not afraid of it. I'll give it my full attention just as soon as I perfect my perpetual motion machine.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

In order to get a job, you have to be able to show that you're experienced. But how do you get experience without having a job in the first place?

What's more, a fellow can't get a decent job until he's 21. What's he supposed to do from the time he graduates from high school at the age of 17 or 18—starve?

David W. Rouleau,
1835 Ontario pl. nw.

Dear Dave:

I went through the same sort of thing, so I can't very well lecture you for being impatient.

But if you think you have troubles, imagine what mine were. I was graduated from college in the middle of the 1933 depression, when experienced newspaper veterans were walking the streets, and willing to work unlimited hours for $15 a week.

Young people who are willing to work after school and during vacations have a big jump on their fellows when it comes to landing a full-time job.

Lacking that background, they need either luck, pull, or patience. A combination of the three is particularly useful.

Another helpful idea is to try the U. S. Employment Service office, which is free to both employers and employes.

Bill.

New Diplomacy Essential Now

By Drew Pearson

Last week's news that Russia had unloosed her own atom bomb caused this writer to do some digging into his own columns written during the Christmastide immediately after the first A-bomb was exploded.

Pearson

We have all become a little more calloused, a little more hard-boiled, a little more weary than in those breathtaking days when the war was just over in 1945. But the ideas set forth at that time probably apply just as much as ever, and with apologies they are reprinted herewith:

"Sometimes it takes the abyss of pessimism and hopelessness to arouse people to new and revolutionary measures.

"The atom is a revolutionary weapon, the most revolutionary in all history. It needs revolutionary diplomacy to combat it. Old-fashioned talks between three or four diplomats, who sit for a few days around a green baize table and then issue brief communiques to the public aimed to cover up what they didn't accomplish, will not cure the gnawing suspicion, the selfish ambition, the lust for power that breeds war.

Jesus a Revolutionary

"Only diplomacy of the most revolutionary kind, based upon the Sermon on the Mount can counteract the revolutionary weapon of the atom bomb. Many of us have forgotten that Christ was a revolutionary. Sometimes the world has forgotten this just as woefully and completely as it has forgotten the principles which he taught.

"At the time Christ was born, a much higher standard of moral ethics existed than there is in the world today, and the prophets of Israel had repeatedly warned their people that if they did not live up to those standards they would be destroyed.

"Later Jesus epitomized all this teaching and brought forth the highest expression of moral and ethical standards ever given to man in the Sermon on the Mount.

"Now, 2000 years later, in the heart of Christian Europe, where more professed Christians live than any place else on the globe, people have virtually destroyed themselves with a war of their own making. They chose to disregard the teachings to which they gave lip-service.

World's End?

"In the United States a scientific capsule has been given man which offers the world two distinct and definite alternatives:

"1. We can get into another war and see the globe made into a ball of fire by the hand of man himself; or

"2. We can use practical Christianity to prevent war, and by harnessing the energy of the atom, make the world a virtual Garden of Eden.

"The problem is immediate and urgent. We have to decide now whether we are going to fight for peace just as vigorously as we fought for war, or whether we are going to drift—which eventually means another war.

Heading Off War

"Congress doesn't seem to realize that the time to head off war is long before it starts. And if they would spend a fraction as much money harrowing the international ground for peace as they paid for the weapons of war, then the next generation could live in security.

Selling the Idea

"Christ was a man who went out and worked at his religion. He didn't stay in one place. He didn't hide his candlestick under a bushel. He battled so hard for His cause of peace on earth, good will toward men, that eventually He sacrificed His life.

"He had what He thought was a great idea and He traveled day and night trying to sell it.

"Now in this country we have a great form of government and a great basic concept of getting along with our neighbors. And it's time we went out as Christ did and tried to sell our American religion.

"We can't sit passive in big, ornate houses as most of our Ambassadors do, giving ritzy cocktail parties for upper-crust old ladies and other has-beens. Our diplomats have got to go out and talk to the real folks that make up the backbone of the country.

"This is not just theory. It works out in practice that when the people of a country are behind you, and don't have to worry about their government, their government—even an out-and-out dictatorship—can't make war on you. The people won't let 'em.

"However, if the Russian people are fed by a controlled press and radio and know only what their Politburo wants them to know about us, then the problem becomes more difficult. The boys in the Kremlin are now much more afraid of the spread of democracy than we are of communism. They are adopting exactly the same system toward us that for 17 foolish years the State Department adopted toward them.

They don't want their people to mix with ours. They don't want American newspapermen or preachers to circulate over there. They don't even like children of the Russian Embassy in Washington going to our schools.

"This makes the problem difficult but not insoluble. After all, use of the atom up until a short time ago was considered insoluble.

"The solution, as I see it, is to go over the heads of the Soviet isolationists and win over the Russian people."

The above ideas, written in December, 1945, when Russia did not have the A-bomb, are even more appreciable today when she has.
